By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Left-wing army officers in Damascus overthrew the Socialist government of Syria before dawn today, arrested government leaders and closed the country's borders and communications.

It is not clear whether the coup was bloodless or not.

News of the coup d'etat—the 15th since 1949—was broadcast by Damascus radio in a series of communiques that indicated the rebels plan to speed up the country's march toward socialism.

Army units seized power at 3 a.m. by arresting Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian head of state and chairman of the presidency council, Prime Minister Salah Bitar and Defence Minister Ger Mohammed Omran.

(Reuters news agency said Aleppo radio announced that negotiations aimed at ending the crisis were taking place between the coup leaders and the international leadership of the Baath party.)

OPPOSITION MOUNTS

As military communiques announced the coup, opposition was mounting in northern Syria. A radio broadcast from Aleppo in the north, Syria's largest city and its business capital, declared the army garrison there was against the rebellion.

The military garrison in the central Syrian city of Hama also was reported against the Damascus coup.

The Aleppo broadcast demanded that power be handed back to the old regime, with Hafez as head of state and the international command of the Baath party as the government.

Damascus radio said the coup was a shuffle of power inside the ruling Arab Baath (reawakening) Socialist party that came to power itself in a rebellion in 1963, but the list of those arrested indicated the Baath regime had actually been obliterated.

The rebel command, calling itself the "temporary command of the Baath party," said party founder Michel Aflak also was under arrest along with party Chief Mouniff Razzaz.

THEY'LL BE 'CRUSHED'

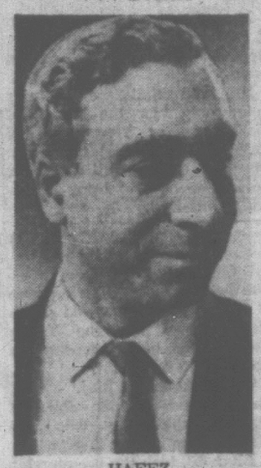

Broadcast communiques said Hafez and the others would be brought to trial and "crushed." They were denounced as "rightists" who had betrayed Syria's Socialist revolution.

The communiques did not identify the rebel commanders,

SPECIAL EMISSARY TALKS VIET PEACE

MOSCOW (UPI) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent a special emissary today to confer with a North Vietnamese official at their embassy here on peace for Viet Nam.

British Disarmament Minister Lord Chalfont, who accompanied Wilson here for talks with Soviet leaders, spent several hours with North Vietnamese charge d'affaires Do Phat Quang. Hanoi's ambassador to Russia was away from Moscow.

Details of the unscheduled talks were not immediately available, but sources said the conference was requested by the British to discuss Viet Nam.

Wilson, who met again today with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, has made numerous appeals both to Kosygin and other Soviet leaders for co-operation in reconvening the 1954 Geneva convention on Southeast Asia to take up the Viet Nam conflict.

All his efforts so far have been rebuffed by the Soviets who told him it is for the United States to talk to the North Vietnamese directly.

FIREWORKS FIRM

Plant Ripped By Explosion

DUNBAR, Pa. (UPI) — An explosion ripped a fireworks plant where workers were filling sky rockets and Roman candles with powder today, killing five women and injuring seven other women and a man.

Three of the injured women were hospitalized. Four women and the man were treated and released. The condition of those detained at the hospital was not know immediately.

The owner of the plant, Bedy Liza, 74, collapsed after hearing news of the blast and also was hospitalized.

The blast occurred in a one-storey frame assembly building of the Keystone Manufacturing Co. The walls of the specially constructed building were designed to cave outward in event of a blast.

"We just don't know what happened," a plant employee said. "The women were filling rocket tubes with powder, and then—wham—the building went up."

The dead had been working in the same structure. Five other frame buildings nearby were damaged, and the blast could be heard three miles away. The injured had been working in the other buildings.

Police at first said all six women in the assembly building were killed, but one of the blast victims was found still to be alive when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The plant, which produces only fireworks, was in the midst of its busy season, preparing an inventory for the Memorial Day and Fourth of July holidays. About 50 persons, most of them women, were employed at the plant.

Canadian Selected As Chairman . . .

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth sanctions committee on Rhodesia met today and named Canada's high commissioner, Lionel Chevrier, as chairman of this and future sessions.

The 20 delegates—representing all Commonwealth countries except Ghana and Tanzania—gathered at Marlborough House amid persistent reports that an oil embargo on Rhodesia is being foiled to some extent by shipments from South Africa.

Chevrier's selection as chairman was significant in that a debate over who should preside arose at the first meeting Jan. 25 of the committee, established by an emergency conference of Commonwealth prime ministers at Lagos.

A communique at the end of today's 2½-hour meeting said merely that the committee "examined the progress of sanctions and agreed to keep the matter under continuous review in further meetings of the full committee."

Body Found In Trunk Of Auto

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sought to establish today whether there is any connection between the revolver-slaying of a lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases and government efforts to stamp out a bankruptcy racket.

Investigation of the shooting of Francois Payette, 36, was being carried out amid reports that he was slain before he could turn over to police evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

The slaying recalled statements made last fall by Justice Minister Wagner when police were smashing a widespread arson racket in the province. At that time, Mr. Wagner said at least seven persons and perhaps as many as 12 had been killed in an underworld attempt to stop disclosures about the arson racket.

Four lime - covered bodies were recovered last fall in an area south of Quebec City. Later a fifth body was recovered in the Lake St. John district.

Five men have been found criminally responsible by coroner's juries, but none has yet come to trial.

SHOT FOUR TIMES

Detective-Captain Roland Jodoin of Montreal police said Mr. Payette, found in the trunk of his car Tuesday in the city's north end, had been shot four times.

Capt. Jodoin said he could not comment on a possible connection between the killing and a bankruptcy racket.

He also declined comment on published reports that the dead lawyer had been on his way to keep an appointment Tuesday with city police officials to turn over evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

But he said:

"We have taken Mr. Payette's files from his downtown St. James St. office and are examining them at headquarters."

LAST SEEN SATURDAY

Mr. Payette, a civil lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases, was last seen by his family about 9:30 a.m. Saturday. He left home following a phone call to meet someone in a restaurant.

His wife reported him missing early Sunday and a search began for his car. It was found on Laverdure Street by a motorcycle policeman Tuesday.

Payette's body was in the trunk, frozen by the weekend sub-zero temperatures. There were no identification papers on the body.

Neighborhood residents said the car had been parked there for three days.

INCREASES PRESSURE

The Quebec government started its drive on phoney bankruptcies in 1962 and the pressure has been increasing since.

Special investigators were appointed to study and report on ways to stop the racket. One of the investigators was Gerard Laganiere, now a judge but formerly deputy chief crown prosecutor for Montreal.

Less than a year ago Mr. Laganiere said that phoney bank-

By JOHN MIKA

Premier Bennett was the target Tuesday of one of the most caustic attacks ever heard in the legislature. He didn't hear it but he'll read it.

Gordon Gibson (L — North Vancouver) poured vitriol at his empty seat, then told the silent house he would send the premier a copy of his remarks.

Mr. Gibson said the premier was so power mad that he used "exactly the tactics of Huey Long, of Al Capone, of Hitler and of Castro" to buy and bully voters."

He said the premier thought he was a god but "he isn't some one we must pray to."

Mr. Gibson accused the premier of "stinking, rotten, low" whispering campaigns, threatening voters, intimidating university and hospital administrators and municipalities.

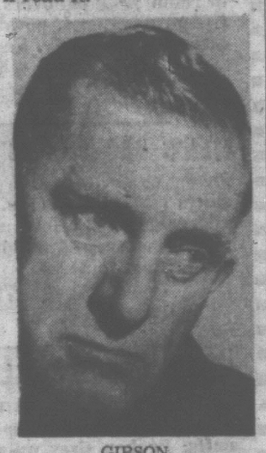

He also squashed a heckle by recalling that he had touched off the Forests Minister Robert Sommers case and warned that it was still not finished.

There were only two interruptions.

After he said the only "real danger (to the province) is the mind and brain of the premier," Deputy Speaker William Speare stopped Mr. Gibson and told him there were to be no further personal attacks.

"I thought it was the government I was talking about, because Premier Bennett is the

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Sheriff Mel Bailey said today a cache of dynamite found in the woods may lead authorities to the dreaded "Birmingham Bombers" who blew up a church full of Negro children in 1963 and scattered time bombs around the city last year.

Vancouver Deaths Attributed to Flu

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors today blamed the flu virus sweeping the Lower Mainland for the deaths of two young people in hospital.

One of the victims was Susan Browne, 12, a Grade 7 student, who became ill Monday and was taken to hospital. Heart failure was given by her doctor as the direct cause of her death, but it resulted from being "overwhelmed" by the flu bug. An autopsy is being performed.

The other was a 17-year-old Grade 12 high school pupil whose parents asked not to be identified because of another illness in the family.

His father said the boy had "never had a cold in his life" but became ill Tuesday and died in hospital a few hours later. The family doctor attributed death to viral pneumonia.

Meanwhile Dr. G. A. Mott, city assistant medical health officer, said there is no thought of closing schools in the area, despite absenteeism from some classes of up to 32 per cent because of the flu.

Teachers as well as pupils are being affected. The Vancouver school board Tuesday could not find enough regular substitute teachers to replace those felled by flu. Some of the substitutes themselves were stricken.

Health authorities in Victoria said today the flu virus has apparently not reached this area.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for Greater Victoria said there may be one or two cases of flu "but not from Vancouver."

"There has been no increased absenteeism in schools, which would indicate the virus has not hit here," said Dr. Whitbread.

PM Rejects 'Spy' Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today rejected any judicial inquiry into the case of alleged spy George Victor Spencer of Vancouver.

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons that after a review of the case he wished to confirm the view expressed Jan. 31 by Justice Minister Cardin that a juricial inquiry is not necessary.

Mr. Cardin has said that Spencer will be kept under surveillance as long as he remains in Canada although he will not be prosecuted.

TESTING SOVIET MANNED MOON SHOT

Flying Pups Higher Than Anyone

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two dogs are spinning around the earth in a Soviet satellite today in a move expected to help space scientists decide whether they need to send dogs to the moon before men.

The dogs, Veterok (breeze) and Ugolyok (little lump of coal), apparently are flying higher than man or beast has ever been—some 550 miles. They soared into space Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110.

The highest-flying Soviet cosmonauts, Pavel Belyaev and Alexei Leonov, were about 310 miles above the earth at the high point of their orbit aboard Voskhod 2 in March last year.

Another cosmonaut, Gherman Titov, said recently scientists would have to send dogs to the moon before man could land there. But Russia's first spaceman, Yuri Gagarin, disagreed with him.

Though Russia orbited a number of dogs between 1958 and 1961, this apparently is the first time a Cosmos satellite has been used.

There never has been any information whether the Cosmos satellites are brought back to earth, but Western space experts say they usually orbit for about eight days and then return.

Soviet space scientists can almost certainly study the dogs' reaction to their flight by means of data radioed back to earth. But they are thought likely to want to see whether the flight has any permanent effects, including that of cosmic radiation.

'MAKE FRIENDLY APPROACH'

Thomson Pleads With West To Understand Russians

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publisher, today pleaded with the West to show greater friendship and accommodation towards the Soviet Union, maintaining that the gap between communism and capitalism has narrowed sharply and that the Kremlin has no intention of initiating a war against the West.

"I am firmly of the opinion that almost no development short of an actual attack on them could cause the Soviet Union to go to war with us," Thomson said in a European Club speech.

"Let us make some genuine friendly approaches to them with the determination that they shall succeed and that the difficulties between us shall be minimized."

THOMSON
. . . Reds envy us

Thomson, who conferred with Soviet Premier Kosygin last year, maintained that remaining Soviet hostility towards the West results partly from envy over capitalist achievements and partly from the need to maintain Communist world leadership. If the Kremlin lost this leadership to the Chinese, "this would be a great disaster for the world."

From his own talks with Soviet officials, he said, it appeared possible Soviet disputes with the Chinese over their long border might result in bloodshed. He was convinced top Soviet officials were deeply concerned with the Chinese problem.

As for the Soviet Union's own system, he believed it was moving gradually towards private ownership.

VANCOUVER — Boiled as a Boot wants to stay that way.

Boot, hero of a skid road hotel fire Friday in which he rescued six elderly men, had this message Tuesday for his admirers:

"Tell them to quit buggin' me. I just want to be left alone."

His real name is Jaydee Dymons, but he told police after the fire his name was Boiled as a Boot. He has been swamped since his rescue effort with offers of money, clothes and jobs. But he doesn't want them.

"I'm a happy lush who wants to stay that way. I just want to be left alone. When I want to get a job, I'll get one. Not until. So tell people to quit buggin' me."

Boot made his plea in a city newspaper office and was later driven back to the skid road area.

"I'm going to drink all night and I'll be happy," he said as he got out of the car. "As long as I'm left alone."

LONDON—A man in perfect health has been admitted to between 300 and 500 hospitals and had 15 abdominal operations during the last 15 years a psychiatrist reported today.

The man, a 29-year-old truck driver, is one of six surgery addicts who have cost Britain $300,000 in unnecessary treatment, Dr. John Barker wrote in the British Journal of Clinical Practice.

The doctor, a hospital consultant, studied the six addicts—people who tell lies about their condition to keep going to hospitals—since 1957.

Barker said hospitals should be given more up-to-date information on these addicts, whose condition is not mentioned in surgical reference books.

LOS ANGELES—Rev William H. DuBay, the rebel priest who once asked the Pope to remove Los Angeles' archbishop, has come up with a new idea: A collective bargaining union for the 58,000 Roman Catholic priests in the U.S.

"We need an American federation of priests just as teachers need their American Federation of Teachers — because priests, like teachers, are employees," says the chaplain of St. John's Hospital.

Through collective bargaining, he says, "priests can arrive at a formal contract with their chancery on the issues of professional standards and rights, personnel practices and wages."

He favors AFL-CIO affiliation, but: "We can hardly ask the AFL-CIO to charter us until we get our union off the ground. Only priests can organize priests."

2 Students Wounded In Jakarta Protest

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Two students were wounded today when government troops opened fire and the United States flag was pulled down at the American Embassy as rival pro- and anti - government demonstrations broke out in the Indonesian capital.

The flag was ripped down by students affiliated to the National party, which backs President Sukarno, amidst disturbances which followed a cabinet reshuffle by Sukarno Monday.

The two students were wounded when troops opened fire on anti-government demonstrators of the powerful Students Action Command (Kami) as they tried to reach President Sukarno's palace.

Armored cars were brought up against the students who climbed over them shouting "hang Subandrio" (the foreign minister), "dissolve the Communist party," and other slogans Some were armed with knives and daggers.

CLIMB OVER FENCE

Meanwhile, a rival group of students climbed over the high iron fence in front of the U.S. Embassy shouting "go home Yankees" and "to hell with Green"—U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green. They then tore down the flag.

Some of the 300 demonstrators stayed outside the fence bearing placards which read "long live President Sukarno" and "Green trying to topple our president."

Police fired warning shots into the air dispersing the demonstrators.

ruptcies in Quebec have developed over the last 30 years into a $100,000,000 racket. He estimated 85 per cent of the racket was concentrated in Montreal.

There has been a quiet, but steady procession of cases through the Montreal courts.

The Quebec government may act at the current session on recommendations made by Lucient Mercier, internal auditor of the revenue department who reported last August on a 10-month investigation into bankruptcies. He recommended changes in various laws to make it tougher for the fly-by-night bankruptcy operators.

Mr. Mercier found the method of the rings was to form a company, buy goods on credit, sell them and then dissolve the firm.

"These adventures usually proceed by incorporating a series of many companies," Mr. Mercier said. "We traced as many as 60 companies in one ring, the operations of each company usually lasting only a few months."

"By astute means the first company buys on credit all that it can possibly acquire. These goods are sold at minimum prices to other companies in the ring and these specialists in fraud appropriate the receipts in different ways as soon as they are paid in."

Once the merchandise was sold the company went into bankruptcy. The remaining goods were sufficient only to pay costs of the federally-licensed trustee charged with supervising the bankruptcy. There was never enough left to allow the creditors to open an inquiry.

MAC-POWELL APPEALS SALES TAX DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced Tuesday it will appeal a supreme court decision regarding a company appeal against a provincial sales tax assessment.

The company protested an assessment of $8,541,000 tax on 39,000 acres of some 139,000 acres that were purchased from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway in 1964.

Macmillan Bloedel contended the government should have assessed the entire property at one time, not just a portion of it.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer dismissed the company's appeal Monday.

In a statement issued Tuesday, the company said it does not dispute its liability to pay the tax, but objects to the method of assessment.

government," shot back Mr. Gibson.

Later, Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan protested the language used by Mr. Gibson would not be tolerated in any legislature in the country.

"There are two sides to this coin," replied Mr. Gibson. "I didn't hear you say that last year when I flattered him — and you knew it wasn't right. Take the bitter with the sweet."

The Liberal member said in last year's budget debate he had suggested a monument should be raised to the premier atop the Peace River Dam.

"But, for his actions Friday night I will rescind that. I am going to build him a cage to wander around in, up there."

(He was referring to an incident in the speaker's office where the premier was reported to have threatened a snap election when the speaker disagreed with him over a procedural matter.)

"Last Friday night in this house I witnessed the most arrogant, childish display I have seen in my life," he said. "The premier seemed like a man who had lost control of himself and was in no position to hold the honored position of premier.

"It was just another display of either his or the government's lust for power — if he couldn't have his way about house rules, he acted like a little baby, like a kid."

Mr. Gibson opened his speech with sarcastic references to the fact the premier frequently leaves his seat during a session.

"It seems that whenever a backbencher speaks, the premier is here. He seems to love flattery.

"But when a little opposition comes in from this side of the house, he doesn't want it.

"That's what he's paid to listen to but he doesn't want it.

"I'm very sorry he's out of his seat now for a cup of tea. If he doesn't come in I'll send him a copy of my speech."

Mr. Gibson said when the Social Credit government was formed, "they would have done much better if the minister of highways (P. A. Gaglardi) had been premier instead of the one we have had. That's my honest thought and it's not very flattering to the minister of highways either."

When Waldo Skillings (SC — Victoria) tried to heckle, Mr. Gibson recalled the Sommers case in which the Socred minister went to jail for accepting bribes.

He pointed out that several other charges involving others in the case resulted in hung jury findings but were never resolved by being tried again.

"Even the judge said the case wasn't over — that there should be more evidence brought in and charges by the attorney-general. But that wasn't done.

"Well, I'm just as happy because a great many more people would have been involved."

Mr. Gibson said the premier talked as though the budget was his money and not the people's.

"There is enough money (in the budget) to do all the things that are needed in B.C., but instead of this, the money is being spent with only one idea — how will it get more votes?

"Apparently the only thought for the old aged and the sick is — why bother? they may be dead before the next election."

"This government has bought all the votes it can in the north of the province and on Vancouver Island," he said.

Mr. Gibson claimed that Premier Bennett would not build a bridge across Burrard Inlet because he was holding the motorists "for ransom, like a kidnapper."

He said the daily frustrations of drivers caught in traffic jams was counter-pointed by "dirty, ugly rumors going around every cocktail lounge and beer parlor and in so-called society groups in West Vancouver — 'If you want a bridge, learn how to vote. Get rid of Gibson.' "

"Get two more political puppets, get two more Bennett-branded sheep. How low can politics sink when people can no longer pick the party of their choice."

Mr. Gibson offered to resign if it meant that Premier Bennett would build a second crossing.

He said that the premier acted only "for the benefit of his party or from political greed" and claimed that from the start of his political career he had worked to bring everyone to his heel.

Bitar, 53, took the premiership Jan. 1 after assurances from the military that the Syrian army would stay out of politics. Today's communiques, however, declared the armed forces must be "the vanguard of the people" and must be made an integral part of the party.

The Baath regime rose to power March 8, 1963. Hafez, 43, became the strongman of Syria four months later when he put down an uprising by supporters of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

based on the profit motive and on the conclusion that men are selfish and must be rewarded.

Thomson, who has amassed huge newspaper holdings, said there are some advantages in using massive central planning to carry out new developments. But his observation suggested that much of the Soviet central planning is not efficient, perhaps because national planning on the Soviet scale "requires a group of supermen and these just do not exist." Many of their directors had university training but no practical experience.

Communist countries now were bending their principles, prepared to compromise with capitalism.

"Surely it is our responsibility to meet them halfway."

In Bulgaria, Thomson said he was surprised to find the government offering to participate 50-50 in a profit-making company which would sell goods to the West as well as to Communist countries, and the Bulgarian government would guarantee the investment. Premier Todor Zhivkov had supported Thomson's plans to build a holiday villa on the Black Sea.

"I am going ahead with this and I look forward to having many happy holidays in my villa in Communist Bulgaria," Thomson said in his prepared speech.

Police Action Was Described

In the Times report on Saturday of police action in detaining certain persons in connection with the investigation of the Bank of Montreal holdup, it was stated that the detectives "converged on the Olympic Cafe, 636 Johnson Street."

Owner of the cafe, George Zabaras, says this reference has had the effect of injury to his restaurant business.

The Times reference was made only for the purpose of establishing the location of police action. There was no intention of imputing that the cafe, open to all the public, had any connection with the persons who were apprehended by police.

Temperatures were again on the mild side overnight in B.C. They ranged from 13 at Kimberley to 47 at Spring Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island. A Pacific storm off the west coast this morning is moving northward and weakening. A minor disturbance which had moved out of the storm giving showers to southwestern B.C. is now producing snowflurries to the eastern sectors. This disturbance will be out of the province today. Behind it some clearing will take place in the interior but the Pacific storm will continue to feed fairly moist air to the coastal areas, becoming gradually dryer by Thursday. Another disturbance approaching the north coast will bring rain to that area Thursday.

PCS DEFEND LITTLE IRISH TOWN

'Pull in Your Horns!'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives picked up an Irish shillelagh and some old newspaper articles Tuesday and used them to belabor the government on defence policy.

Debate in the Commons on defence department spending estimates for the 1965-66 fiscal year ranged over two main points — Conservative allegations that the Liberals did an about-face on nuclear policy in order to get elected in 1963 and expropriation of part of the little village of Shannon, near Valcartier army camp just north of Quebec City.

At the sitting's end, Conservatives were hotly maintaining that they would hold up passage of the estimates until the government pulled in its horns on the move to expropriate 10,000 acres of land, including part of the 25-family Irish settlement of Shannon, for a weapons range.

"The first responsibility of Parliament is to the rights of the individuals," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in a special plea to Prime Minister Pearson that the Shannon villagers "not be dispossessed of their heritage." He made the appeal to Mr. Pearson because he had given up "trying to soften the adamant attitude" of Defence Minister Hellyer and Associate Defence Minister Cadieux.

Pulling out the stops, Conservative MPs compared the expropriation move to the expulsion of the Irish and to that of the Acadians in Canada.

Mr. Hellyer said several times that 10,000 acres of land near the camp is needed immediately for a mortar and artillery range.

WILL NEGOTIATE

Mr. Cadieux said he is willing to begin negotiations again on the expropriation case and "do everything in our power" to facilitate the "legitimate aspirations" of the families. All the land involved has been expropriated but settlements with the individuals are incomplete, he said.

Earlier in the debate, Mr. Diefenbaker led a concerted attack on Mr. Hellyer. It centred on the contention that the defence minister tried to present himself as the one man who could determine what Canadian defence needs are.

If Mr. Hellyer was so infallible, Mr. Diefenbaker asked, why had he changed his mind about Canada's nuclear role?

For years in opposition he had said that Bomarc nuclear anti-aircraft missiles would do nothing but make Canada a target for nuclear weapons by any enemy country. He had said the Voodoo interceptor was obsolete and designed for a threat against manned bombers that Canada would never have to meet.

But he had changed his mind in February, 1963. And the Liberal government had gone ahead and set up the Bomarc bases and purchased the Voodoo.

SEEKS REASON

"What brought about that change?" he asked.

Out came the old newspaper articles.

One referred to how the U.S. ambassador to Canada at the time, Livingston T. Merchant, had held briefings for Canadian reporters on the American view that Canada should accept nuclear weapons under the North American Air Defence Command.

Mr. Merchant had briefed Ottawa reporters "against the anti-nuclear policy of the then Diefenbaker government," Mr. Diefenbaker said in reading from a column by Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services.

It sounded as though Mr. Hellyer had been at the same briefings, the Opposition leader said.

"I would like to deny it," Mr. Hellyer said.

Had he heard what Mr. Merchant had said? Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

"I deny that," Mr. Hellyer replied.

USES CLIPPINGS

Mr. Diefenbaker also hit Mr. Pearson with some old news clippings on the nuclear issue by Pierre Elliot Trudeau, a "new guard" Liberal and one of Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretaries.

He quoted from an article in the French-language publication Cite Libre in April, 1963, that election pollsters were saying that Mr. Pearson and his Liberals had information that "pro-nuclear policy would lose him his majority of electors. Power was within Mr. Pearson's reach. He had nothing to lose, except honor."

So the Liberals became "turncoats," the Opposition leader said, still quoting from the Trudeau article he added:

"Once the leader had shown the way, the flock followed with the grace of animals headed for the feeding trough."

RECALLS ACADIANS

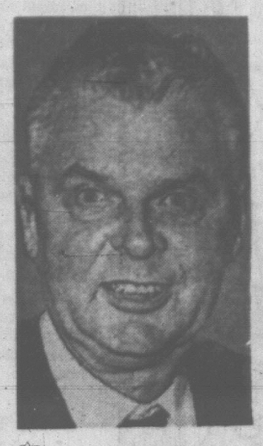

Mr. Diefenbaker compared the expropriation of the Shannon land to the expulsion of the Acadians and Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked:

"What has the minister got against the Irish?"

By adjournment, Conservatives were arguing that the expropriation be cancelled.

The Irish families had been in Shannon since the potato famine and the government measure had "all the earmarks of administrative lawlessness and contempt for the individual."

With all of Canada's empty spaces, why had the defence department picked on an ancestral Irish settlement?

Strachan Vs Bennett In Shouting Match

Premier Bennett and Opposition Leader Strachan late Tuesday night stood waving their fingers and shouting at each other during a brief outburst.

It began with Randolph Harding (NDP — Kaslo-Slocan) telling the House the premier has had several outbursts of violent temper and he deserved to have a deputy-premier help him bear the strain of office.

He angrily berated the government members for accusing the oppostition of delaying Friday night's sitting by keeping the speaker waiting 10 minutes.

"We did not keep the Speaker waiting — we were in our seats," he stormed.

"We were in our seats," Mr. Strachan shouted from his chair, waving his finger at the premier.

Mr. Bennett leaped to his feet and, waving back, shouted:

"Another wild statement. He's back as the wild leader again."

Mr. Strachan jumped up and shouted back:

"He's wrong again. He's blown his top."

Both leaders were loudly supported by their backbenchers but the eposode died down with Premier Bennett offering 100-to-one odds that he was right and the opposition had kept the Speaker-waiting.

PROMOTIONAL EFFORTS AS FUTURE PM DENIED

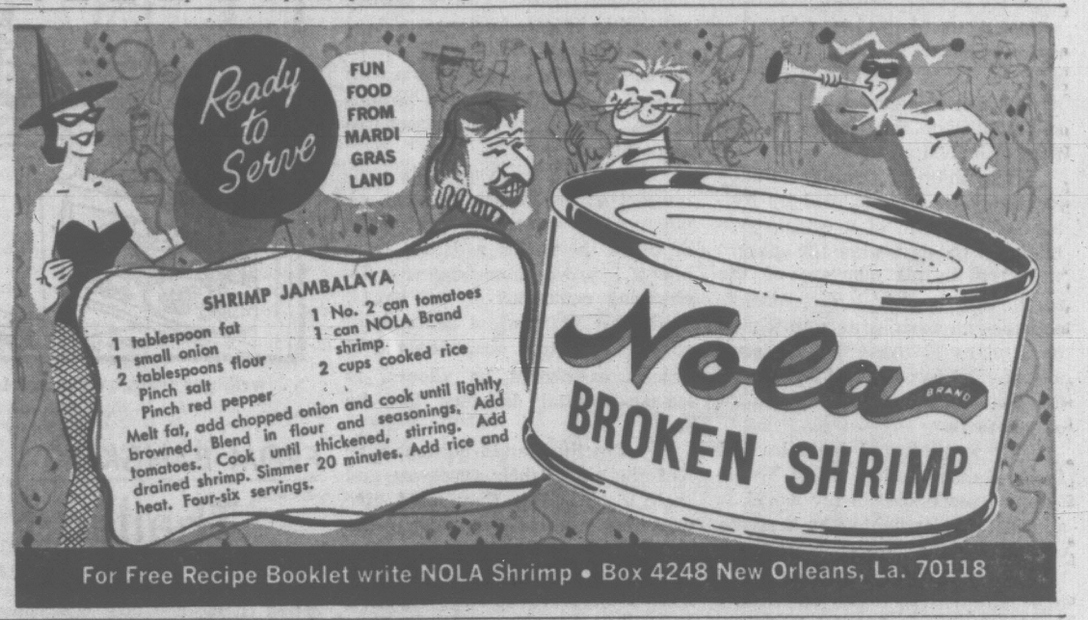

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer rejected a suggestion Tuesday that his department's directorate of information service is being used to promote him as the next Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. Hellyer told the Commons the 76 information officers "work very hard" supplying information to the press, producing magazines and conducting tours.

Mr. Hellyer was replying to David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) who said he doesn't believe the information section needs 76 persons on its staff. He said he believes they are public relations experts and there is no need in the department for them "except for the obvious reason that the minister wants to become prime minister."

you too, can be a wine expert!

The wine-wise person in today's modern way of life knows that the selection of wine to accompany any food is purely a matter of personal choice.

The idea that the only socially acceptable use of wine is restricted to certain specific wine and food combinations is pure myth.

Matching foods and wines is a matter of taste — not of color — and there is only one simple rule to wine drinking . . .

if you like it — drink it!

Such combinations as in the chart below are an excellent starting point for the fun and pleasure of experimenting to find your own favorite wine/food combinations. However, they should not be considered as rules which must be followed, and even the serving temperatures are subject to personal preference.

GLASSES: Wine may be served in any type of glass, but stem glasses are specially designed for wine and add a touch of gaiety. Champagne and sparkling wines are best, and most fun, when served in champagne-type, hollow stemmed glasses.

STORAGE: Store your wines in a cool, dry place, away from direct light.

You'll find it convenient and satisfying to keep several types of wine on hand.

Survival of the Fittest

GREAT BRITAIN'S IMPORTant revision of its defence policies involves a clear recognition of two basic facts. First is that the country can no longer support global defence commitments on the scale it did when it was a world-encircling imperial power. Second is that in a nuclear world the island kingdom must fight wars in co-operation with allies, and that global peace-keeping in this age is more clearly the responsibility of the United Nations than of individual states.

Recognition of these facts must inevitably be accompanied by feelings of let-down, of a certain nostalgia for the days when the Queen's writ ran in all quarters of the earth. But the British government's action—unappetizing though it may be to many Britons—shows a good measure of forward-looking statesmanship along with its acceptance of cold facts.

The concentrated home-based force, transportable quickly by air to any trouble spot in the world, is a logical development when the costs of foreign bases are enormous and the far-flung massing of men tends to be outmoded by twentieth-century developments. And Britain's dependence on United States-built bombing planes will last only during the period between abandoning present RAF equipment and taking on new Anglo-French planes in the 1970s. The cut-back in the fleet air arm is in favor of land-based aircraft, with an eye on the high cost of carrier ships and the new role of nuclear submarines.

Britain obviously is acting on the theory that no sizable war in Europe will fail to become nuclear, and that any large-scale fighting British forces do will be in conjunction with American, NATO or United Nations forces. These seem to be reasonable assumptions.

But there is no evading the seriousness of the British decision. A policy trend set today could make or break the nation a decade from now if it proved inadequate for the changing conditions of our world. With this in mind, a sentimental clinging to past armaments and procedures cannot be allowed to hamper vital decisions for the future.

Past methods and traditions have had their use, their successes and their glories. But they must give way to new procedures under conditions of transportation, power and weaponry which the world has never seen before. No country—Britain, the United States, Canada or others in East or West — can be free of military choices today which may determine national life or extinction tomorrow.

Inasmuch . . .

A FREE FOOD STALL IS NOT in any sense the answer to poverty, but in the absence of an overall solution to that predicament it can be a godsend to individuals or families who lack adequate means.

That much, and much more, can be said for the food distribution stall which was opened here by Mrs. Barbara Green seventeen years ago and in its latter years has been faithfully operated by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper.

Off the direct route of daily affairs for most residents of this fortunate community, the surplus food stall has served hundreds of needy families over the years, adding staple diet and perhaps an occasional treat to larders that have been poorly stocked on welfare allowances.

Now the facility is faced with closure, as the Harpers prepare to follow doctor's orders and retire from their voluntary careers as Good Samaritans. The many elderly folk who assist with the stall, and the many individuals and commercial firms which have contributed produce over the years, will shortly need a new focus for their efforts. Directing the collection and distribution of the food each month is a full-time occupation, as Mr. and Mrs. Harper have found. Their list of qualifications is an exacting one: organizing ability, capacity for long hours, satisfaction only through knowledge of a job well done, and love for one's fellow man.

The Harpers rate the last requirement the most important. Their selfless service to the community over the past 13 years has well illustrated their fitness in every respect. Greater Victoria owes them a debt which cannot really be paid. But their only wish is that someone will come forward who is willing and able to carry on the work. The invitation could not have been issued at a more propitious time than now — in the midst of the annual Brotherhood of Man Week. Who will answer it?

Costly Discipline

SOME WEEKS AGO ON THIS page Mr. Edward Crankshaw described the wave of protest that rose in the Western world against Moscow's plans for the "show" trial of Russian writers Andrei D. Sinyavsky and Yuli M. Daniel, whose novels, published outside the USSR, drew stern condemnation from the Kremlin authorities.

The protests came from distinguished figures of the current literary world, by no means to be found in the ranks of red-baiters.

The trial and the severe sentences are now history. The protests were to no avail. But Communists outside Russia have since taken occasion to express their disapproval of the way in which the writers were treated and the manner in which the Soviet authorities handled the issue.

In Eastern Europe, Mr. Eric Bourne reports to The Christian Science Monitor, intellectuals among the Communists are disturbed by the "trial by Tass", in which guilt was proclaimed and calumny heaped on the defendants before the trial started.

Comment by the secretary of the Austrian Communist party, Erwin Scharf, concludes with the statement: "The effects of the anti-Soviet propaganda unleashed by the verdict of the Moscow court are far greater than any books of two writers unknown to us could ever have caused."

The British Communist party, noting that it was "natural" that the books of the two writers had aroused indignation, has expressed concern over the non-judicial nature of the trial.

It is not surprising that the protests of Western literary figures were rebuffed by Moscow. But, having disciplined the two Russian writers, the Kremlin must now weigh the costs in the alienation of affection among its friends.

Help for the Retarded

IN ITS CURRENT FUND-RAISing campaign, the National Crusade for Canada's Mentally Retarded draws attention to the assistance that can be given if about $5 million can be raised by private subscription throughout the country. This is approximately one-third of the total needed to finance the five-year program of the crusade. The rest is expected from federal, provincial and other grants.

Statistics show that the number of mentally retarded persons in this country is twice the combined total of all afflicted by blindness, polio, cerebral palsy and rheumatic heart diseases. Most significantly, authorities say that 95 per cent of the mentally retarded can be trained to the point of self-care. Some can be assisted to a degree which equips them for productive employment, and virtually all can benefit from the specialized treatment the crusade seeks to provide through special regional centres and specially trained staff.

Compassionate Canadians are trying to help unfortunate citizens to come out from the shadow land created by their affliction. That help will be effective as all Canadians provide support to the National Crusade for Canada's Mentally Retarded.

"... well, gee whiz, you've got to have SOMETHING do in the evenings when you've stopped smoking ...!"

FROM BANGKOK

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Thailand and the Viet Nam Policy

NEARLY 16 years ago, George F. Kennan, working at fever heat, dashed off the first draft of a famous policy paper. On the basis of the arguments therein set forth, President Truman made his magnificently courageous Korean decision, and a long chain reaction of Asian disasters was thus averted, albeit at heavy cost. If one can trust the transmitted versions of Kennan's recent Senate testimony, he has by now forgotten just about all the arguments he assembled for presentation at the Korea meetings at Blair House. But with regard to this country, he is at least quoted as admitting that an American retreat and surrender in Viet Nam would have an "unfortunate" effect.

Alsop

"Unfortunate" is a pretty mild word for the reality. The Chinese Communist Foreign Minister, Chen Yi, has quite openly described Thailand as "next" on the agenda after Viet Nam to at least one Western visitor in Peking. And the preparations for an assault on Thailand's independence are quite plain for anyone to see.

In order to grasp the nature of these preparations, it is first of all necessary to grasp the basic facts of Thailand's geography. Briefly, the mountainous northeastern part of the country and the southern provinces on the Malay peninsula are both fairly inaccessible from the centre, and both regions have non-Thai populations.

The northeast, with its Lao and Vietnamese inhabitants, and the extreme south, with its Malays, have therefore been selected as the prime targets by the Communist planners in Peking and Hanoi. In the southern provinces, a base was provided by the Communist guerrillas who fled into the Thai jungles after the failure of the assault on Malaya. In the northeast, the Vietnamese who fled to Thailand during the French war also offered useful human raw material.

A good deal has already been published about this Communist effort in Thailand. But its coldly calculated character has never been well conveyed. In the southern provinces, for instance, secret jungle camps were organized, where recruits from the villages were intensively trained by the refugees from the Malayan war.

Recruits Smuggled In

Many scores of recruits from the northeastern provinces were also conveyed in secret into the parts of Laos controlled by the North Vietnamese army (from which solemn treaty obligations of course required the North Vietnamese troops to be totally withdrawn four years ago). A hundred or so of the most important agents were even taken by sea to Hong Kong, and thence into China, for advanced training.

In this manner, quite serious though still limited guerrilla movements have by now been organized in both the target areas. The ruthless terrorism that is such a characteristic feature of "Liberation" movements, has begun on a considerable scale. In short, the pattern is clear, down to the last detail.

As of now, it is not an especially alarming pattern, since the Thai government has organized energetic countermeasures. But let the U.S. take the advice of George Kennan and his friends. Let the Vietnamese war end in a retreat and a surrender. Then anyone with the smallest knowledge of Asian affairs can foresee that the effect in Thailand will be quite dramatically "unfortunate."

Unknowledgable

To be sure, Senator Fullbright's anti-administration witnesses do not seem to have included many persons with any knowledge whatsoever of Asia. If one may judge from this distance, a good specimen witness was Professor Hans Morgenthau, whose errors of basic historical fact concerning southeast Asia have been so crude and glaring that his pose as an expert is in the nature of a comic turn.

Yet the double standard that now prevails is still a bit bewildering. Think, for instance, of the outcry that would be heard from people of Morgenthau's stamp, if the CIA were discovered to be attempting in North Korea, or even in North Viet Nam, anything comparable to what the Chinese and North Vietnamese Communists are quite openly attempting here in Thailand!

Even more bewildering, one must add, is the total carelessness of consequences and the flat refusal to face unpleasant facts. For these preparations for an attempted take-over in Thailand, please remember, are undoubted, well-established facts. And there can be no doubt that the shock of an American retreat and surrender in South Viet Nam would open the door wide for this attempted Communist take-over.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mr. Pearson, Canada, and the Three Wrenching Tests

BEFORE this year is out the Pearson government will have consolidated itself or consigned the Liberal party to the wilderness at the next election. No one understands these alternatives better than the government itself. But it is by no means clear which alternative the government will choose. Though the changing fortunes of any political party are usually of small account in a nation's history, the success or failure of the Pearson government at this critical point means success or failure for Canada. No Canadian can escape the consequence of the government's decisions, wise or unwise, strong or weak, during the next few months.

Hutchison

In this period the government must meet or evade three wrenching tests, all of them inter-dependent, that loom like mountain peaks above the rubble of ordinary public business.

One test, highly significant as a measure of the government's courage, has been met already in a preliminary fashion. By refusing to raise all old age pensions at the price of demoralizing the national budget, the government took its life in its hands and survived on a chillingly narrow vote. But will its decision stick? Or will the government back down later on, with some suitable face-saving device?

Answer In Budget

The answer to that and many other questions will come in the second test of the April budget. As another report will indicate, the budget must involve not merely expenditures and taxes but the whole direction of the national economy and the value of every Canadian's private dollar.

If these financial problems look daunting they are quite simple beside the third test, the supreme problem of Quebec. And in the present year that problem must be faced as it has never been faced since the conscription crisis of 1944.

The racial crunch immediately ahead will focus on the vast complex of issues known as federal-provincial relations. No one but a trained expert can hope to grasp them in detail but in essence the crunch is readily understood. Nothing less than the federal government's sovereignty, its right to govern, will be at stake when it meets the provincial governments in June and, for a final confrontation, in the autumn.

Quebec is demanding a far larger share of the nation's basic revenues than the federal government can possibly grant and still perform its own functions. Moreover, Quebec insists that any revenues transferred to it from the federal treasury for a specific purpose like education can be spent for any other purpose, at the provincial government's pleasure. Thus the right of the national government to spend its own money for national purposes is directly challenged.

If these demands were confined solely to Quebec, which already has a special status in Confederation, they might be manageable. In fact, they will be pressed by other provinces, perhaps by all of them, in greater or less degree. If they were to succeed the results would be disastrous to the nation.

In the first place, the federal government cannot further reduce its share of the income, corporation and estate taxes in favor of the provinces by any substantial margin without unthinkable damage to its own treasury. Its spending commitments are so gigantic that it will need every cent of revenue it can collect, quite possibly with higher tax rates in the forthcoming budget.

Secondly, if the federal government were driven, step by step, out of the basic tax fields it could unload many of its present costs on the provinces and at first glance this appears to be an attractive financial proposition. But once the federal government can no longer collect the basic taxes on a uniform scale throughout the nation it must lose control of the national economy. It must abandon the central levers of fiscal policy, the power to budget for surpluses or deficits, by which recessions are cured and inflationary booms restrained.

Finally, if the provinces possess most or all of these revenue fields they will exploit them as they please, at differing rates, in a kind of fiscal war among themselves. That way lies chaos for Canada.

Yet the political problem of all the provincial governments is acute, even when they privately regard Quebec's claims as impossible. If special concessions are given to Quebec, in the cause of national unity, most or all of the other provinces will demand the same treatment. How can a provincial premier face his own voters and ask them to accept a financial position inferior to Quebec's?

On the Spot

Like Prime Minister Pearson, the English-speaking premiers, however patriotic and non-partisan they may be, are on the spot. At least some of them, who put the nation above their provinces and personal ambitions, ardently hope that the Pearson government will reject Quebec's demands and save federal power from fatal erosion. At least some members of the government are determined to stand firm in the crunch.

Ultimately everything will depend on the prime minister. Already he has stretched his government's patience to the limit, and its revenues almost to the limit, for Quebec's benefit, at heavy political cost to himself. He cannot go much further without a break in his cabinet and party. On the other hand, he cannot break with the Lesage government without risking a fundamental break with French Canada and the gravest sort of national crisis.

Attitude Hardened

Mr. Pearson's attitude toward Quebec has definitely hardened in recent weeks. Now confronting the old paramount problem of all Canadian prime ministers in a new guise, he evidently realizes the risks before him—the risks to his government, to his own place in history and, far more important, the risks to the nation if Quebec turns angry and intransigent.

Will Mr. Pearson measure up to the ultimate test of his career? Or will he equivocate and make the worst of all possible worlds? Will Quebec and the other provinces be reasonable if he rejects their demands? Such is the nature of this year's historic crunch which, incidentally, can make or break the Pearson government.

Looking Back

From The Times, Feb. 23, 1906.

The legislature this afternoon killed the bill to provide for an eight-hour day in smelters on a close vote of 19 to 17. The feature of the confused debate on this question was the judicial speech of the leader of the opposition, who made clear his position on the subject in an unequivocal manner. Through his efforts during the recess an amicable settlement of the labor question in smelters was brought about and this session he voted to give the legislative sanction to an eight-hour day.

Shutting the Public Out

They keep talking about buying more land—must have more land for parks for the general public. Yet the department of lands and the provincial parks branch has reportedly approved granting a 30-foot foreshore lease which includes a small park to a private enterprise applicant. Granting this lease cuts off access to a small beach which is a favorite place for young swimmers and an "old age" pensioner repainting and repairing boats.

This giving away public rights has got to stop. Private enterprises keep pressuring the government for rights at Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park; now they have a precedent in this small park give-away.

Citizens, write your letters of protest, send them to the government at once before this precedent snowballs.—Eunice V. Breadin, 6985 Anglers Lane, Brentwood.

White Cane Week

I wish on behalf of the CCB Victoria White Cane Club to extend our grateful thanks for your wonderful publicity. Pictures and stories of the blind activities contributed greatly to the success of our White Cane Week. Again thanking you.—Elizabeth Watling, President of CCB Victoria White Cane Club.

Moral Education

Now that the budget has been brought down and allocations of multi-millions of dollars have been made to various departments, not a word can one find that any have been specifically earmarked for the development of the spirit.

As man is a triune being, i.e., body, mind and spirit, it is surprising that nothing apparently is contemplated towards the teachings of Christian morals and ethics, rather the reverse. By the discarding of prayers and Bible readings, the trend is to ignore this important part in the education of our young.—R. Avery.

Mr. Pepper's Answer

The answer to the question, "What do they mean, God is Dead?" asked in your issue of February 17 by the editor of the United Church Observer, is made very clear by the terrible catastrophe of the food shortage in India at this moment. With millions of children suffering from hunger, millions of mothers unable to feed their babies and growing children; faced as we know they are with famine certain to result in millions of deaths due to the simple lack of sufficient rain to moisten their farm land and so produce food for 450 millions of people, no one can deny the positive truth that no "God" exists in India. — L. J. Pepper, 895 Heywood Ave.

Where Are the Women?

I was cheered to see Mr. Alex Macdonald, MLA for Vancouver East bring into the open the plight of women over 25 and their lack of status in the Western world.

This was brought home to me the other day when I glanced through a new catalogue, women's clothing section. I was appalled to find that every stitch of clothing was modeled by and for little girls. I desperately looked in the maternity section, only to find that they don't use women for expectant mothers any more.

Where have all the women gone? The accent on youth has turned into a bludgeon and there are no women left, except a strange species called a "Mom", whose apparent function is to proclaim the merits of soap powder, floor wax and toilet paper.—Mrs. Ann Henshaw.

Are the TV Klieg Lights Fading the PM's Dignity?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—A television critic has remarked on the dilution in dignity of the prime minister's position as a result of his frequent appearances on the Pierre Berton television show.

Fisher

There's much in the criticism, I believe. The explanation given by Mr. Pearson's advisers for his favoring of Mr. Berton is that he finds the mood, the interviewer, and the format of the show ideal for his talent as a friendly, low-key person.

The PM knows that basically Pierre Berton is an admirer. This would encourage most people under interview, especially a non-combative one like the Liberal leader.

The feather-plucking, performed by Diefenbaker two weeks ago on CBC's The Sixties is still a high-point of Parliament Hill conversations. My wife is a great fan of the victim, Charles Lynch, the Southam columnist. Out of his travail, she has found two rules for me: (a) don't try to interview Mr. Diefenbaker; (b) don't try to rebut him later with a newspaper column.

The Sixties has also been distinguished by one of the slickest non-sequiturs of this or any other year, Jim Eayrs, the University of Toronto professor, had scalped Paul Martin with a quick slash at one of those Martin circumlocutions.

Later Phillip Deane asked Mr. Martin to comment on the criticism. The old pro slipped the challenge with two sweet compliments to Mr. Eayrs. He was "brilliant" and "too articulate." Ever think of a quicker way to downgrade a critic than to credit him with being too smart and too glib?

At a recent Liberal caucus, one Toronto MP, Donald Macdonald (Rosedale), parliamentary secretary to Paul Martin, exploded over the proposed Channel 3 switch to Toronto from Barrie. He wasn't worried about consequences in terms of interference with the Buffalo channels. Why shouldn't the Liberals have a channel in Toronto?

He was ready to stand and fight behind Jack Pickersgill in his plans to get Snelgrove, Waters and Stirling into Toronto. Isn't it a pity that we cannot have this kind of honest comment out in the open?

Last week I heard Pauline Jewett, recently defeated in Northumberland by George Hees, give a talk on the role of the government backbencher in influencing policy. It was before a private group and I can't report on the gist of her argument. I hope that she will extend the talk into an article for publication because it would clear up a lot of mystery and many misconceptions about the scope given an ordinary MP.

One side point in Miss Jewett's talk was a discussion on how Walter Gordon worked with his MPs. It helped answer the question that often bothered those of us who were not too impressed with Mr. Gordon in the House. The strong loyalty to him from so much of the Liberal caucus was clearly well-earned.

Several years ago, an embattled young man, Raymond Rodgers, challenged the executive of the parliamentary press gallery over its refusal to let him join the gallery because he was only a part-time journalist (for the St. Catharines' newspaper). The issue went to the House committee on privileges and elections, from where it was tossed back to the Speaker for settlement.

He never did clear it up and Dr. Rodgers went off into the civil service and then, much disillusioned, emigrated to the U.S. Now he teaches at the department of political science, University of South Alabama at Mobile.

Dr. Rodgers has forwarded to friends in Canada a paper entitled "Canadian and International Themes: Raymond Spencer Rodgers, a bibliobiographic sketch." In it, he acknowledges that "my mistake . . . was the tactical error of daring to challenge the privileges of the press gallery."

Another comment of Dr. Rodgers has set me worrying about my own integrity as one who has recently been accepted as a member of the press gallery.

He writes: "If you want to join the establishment, take the safe path and fit yourself into its rigid pigeon-holes. If you cannot accept this, you pay the personal price of being Canadian. If you are too energetic to accept Canadian caution the only escape is migration."

'Try Your Luck, Try Your Luck'— At Marbles, or in Education?

By ART STOTT

THE high-piping treble comes riding in through the opened windows of this office during playtime in the schoolyard next door. "Try your luck," shouts the boy soprano. "Try your luck."

Stott

You wander to the window to see what sort of gambling game the young wheeler-dealer is promoting, and find it isn't really a gambling game at all. The youngsters are playing marbles.

It isn't any of the games people of my generation knew. It has remote relationship only to Big Ring, with its "Three-fingers flat, long-sides, short-sides everything." Nor is it exactly like Little Ring, the more genteel game of an earlier age, though it has some of its characteristics.

Vic Pitzer, Paul Brooker and the Clark boys, who between them won almost all the marbles at Margaret Jenkins in my time, would disdain the new variation. And maybe the young promoter shouting "Try your luck" is justified in suggesting it's all a matter of chance. Not much skill there, we old marble buffs would argue.

Still, the marbles are the same shape and roughly the same coloring. The kids are, too. Each acquires deep-seated grime on his hands in the course of the game and the knees of pants are a contrasting harmony in the vandyke brown of playground mud and whatever the basic color of the trousers happens to be.

Certainly the youngsters are merry enough at their play. They scarcely seem to realize that they're what some educators, using the barbarism of pedaguese, call "disadvantaged." They may have heard a trustee say that their school is a derelict, that it would not be countenanced by the presumably "advantaged" families of the Uplands. But the children show little concern.

Unquestionably they're entitled to a better school—a whole lot better.

But the new building, when it comes, isn't going to solve the educational problem of all the children. Other environmental factors will still play their important parts in determining how warmly the youngsters will be encouraged to follow paths of scholarship, or training, through the class rooms and up into the higher realms of academic or technical study.

The simple fact is that a large number of our children lack equality of education, not merely because they attend a substandard school, have unequal abilities or are subject to uneven teaching. They suffer, often, an inequality which is obvious in the homes. Some come to school without the vocabulary they should have acquired in the years at their mothers' knees—sometimes because the mother's knee has been absent from the house, sometimes because the mother's tongue has offered little in the way of communicative endowments to the child.

Some come from homes where well-meaning parents loudly proclaim that "Nothing's too good for my kid" and demonstrate the concept with vast quantities of plastic toys and virtually nothing in cultural transmission.

This throws just that much more of a burden on the schools. They are expected to provide what the home does not. And the good teachers try to do that, shouldering an additional load in the process. The not-so-good teachers shrug off the implied responsibility, say it's not their job and argue that they're doing enough for the money they're getting.

The other day a mainland school trustee suggested that we might find out what we needed in schools that serve virtually all the children if a royal commission investigated elementary education. He had a point, but the investigation has to extend beyond the class room and take in far more than reportedly unsafe stairs, fire hazards and worn-out flooring.

Unless broad studies are undertaken and lead to improvements, then our society is mutely joining the little fellow in the schoolground next door. He shouts "Try your luck. Try your luck," and assumes that he's talking about a marble game. We're quietly acquiesing to his invitation, but applying it to the foundation years of education.

Old Age Pensions Hardest Decision Facing Cabinet

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — One of the most critical issues before the Pearson cabinet at the moment is the problem of dealing with the recent report of the Senate committee on aging.

The committee's key recommendation called for the immediate guarantee of a minimum annual income for all Canadians over 65 that would amount to $1,260 for single people and $2,220 for married couples. Under the proposed scheme, Ottawa would pay to individuals the difference between these amounts and their actual earnings, with annual adjustments on the basis of the consumers' price index.

Newman

The plan, which would cost an estimated $100 millions per year and benefit up to 1.5 million senior citizens, is politically tempting. The Liberals are under pressure in the Commons to increase old age assistance but are already on record as having voted against a straight $25 pension boost. By accepting the Senate recommendation, they would gain the same objective without having to back down from their public position.

Not Rejected

While no cabinet decision has yet been reached, it is known that the Pearson ministers haven't rejected the principle of guaranteed annual incomes for specific groups of Canadians. (This doesn't represent as radical a departure as it sounds, since family allowances, unemployment insurance, and old-age security payments can be considered a form of guaranteeing their recipients minimum annual incomes.)

One thing the cabinet is trying to decide right now is whether the over-65 age group is the segment of the population which ought to be the first to benefit from the guaranteed income scheme.

Some voices inside the Liberal government are advocating a much broader approach. They insist that not only the aged but all of our urban and rural poor, including the Indians and the Eskimos, are in desperate need now of guaranteed incomes.

They see Canada as being in need of a much less confined scheme, perhaps on the lines of the so-called negative income tax, first proposed by Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago. (The War on Poverty office in Washington is currently giving the negative income tax scheme serious consideration.)

Cash Payment

A negative income tax would involve direct cash payments by the federal government to every adult (regardless of age) whose income falls below a pre-determined level. Instead of being a supplicant, involved with long welfare benefit lines and charity handouts, the person who needs financial aid could get it as a matter of right, with deductions from payments made according to his increased earning power.

The scheme would not require much extra administrative machinery; in fact by doing away with the proliferation of welfare agencies, it would eventually cut down on administrative costs. The national revenue department would simply add the names of the economically underprivileged to its tax rolls and apply the same machinery it now uses to send out tax refunds for the distribution of cheques to citizens whose annual income falls below the "poverty line."

In deciding when to go ahead with any major new spending — whether it turns out to be guaranteed annual incomes for the aged or negative income tax for everybody — the Pearson government faces a grave political quandary.

The provinces are plunging ahead in their own spending fields at a time when inflation has been declared a threat. In terms of the national economic interest, a good case can be made for Ottawa remaining in a passive spending mood for the next year or so, particularly since it's committed to the huge expenditures involved in the national medicare scheme and government estimates for the next year are already reaching a record of $10 billions.

The cabinet ministers who oppose this cautious approach are concerned that the absence of any new federal initiatives would allow the provinces to move into more fields where they can displace the federal government as the state agency most concerned with individual welfare and well-being.

They contend that at this crucial time in federal-provincial relations, Ottawa must move quickly into areas (such as direct payments to citizens) where there is no jurisdictional reason to back down before provincial demands. It's the only way, they insist, for Ottawa to maintain the kind of direct contact which allows it to reflect the needs and aspirations of the Canadian population.

How this dilemma will be resolved probably won't become known until Mitchell Sharp tables his first budget in April.

Polonium Suspected

Trace amounts of a radioactive element, polonium 210, in cigarette smoke may play a part in causing lung cancer.

Scientists at Harvard University measured the amounts of polonium in lungs of smokers and non-smokers. Their results are reported in the "New England Journal of Medicine." They found the radioactive element in higher concentration in the lungs of smokers.

Polonium can enter the body in two ways; it can be taken indirectly as "unsupported" polonium or it can arise in the body from decay of lead, its parent element. Polonium in organs other than the lungs probably arises from decay of lead which is present in many foodstuffs, as well as in the air in lo concentrations. Polonium levels in liver, spleen and kidney are similar in smokers and non-smokers.

Polonium emits alpha particles. It seems that relatively small increases in alpha radiation exposure to the lungs can significantly affect the incidence of cancer. Ionizing radiation also may increase the effects when components of cigarette smoke are applied directly to the skin of animals to produce malignant tumors.

U.S.-Soviet Exchanges Threatened by Viet Nam

By STEPHEN S. ROSENFELD
The Washington Post

The U.S.-Soviet exchange program—bond, bone and occasional barometer between East and West—is not far from the brink of becoming a sacrificial offering to Viet Nam.

In eight years of exchanging everything from lighthouse keepers to ballet dancers, Moscow and Washington have never before let the program succumb to political ill will. But Moscow is wavering now.

The latest (and fourth) two-year agreement—for 1964-65—has run out, although various projects on both sides are still coasting quietly on administrative momentum. The trouble is that no new agreement has been signed for 1966-67.

U.S. Nipping At Soviet Heels

Ever eager to make the broad contacts with Soviet society that the exchange program alone allows, the United States has been nipping at Soviet heels in an effort to get talks started on a new agreement.

Washington also would not be displeased by the sound of Communist China gnashing its teeth over the spectacle of Russians and Americans sitting down at a table to work out ways of getting to know each other better.

But the Russians have been sticky, apparently all too aware of how that spectacle would set Peking screaming about the Russians supping with the imperialist devil and selling out the world revolution.

They backed out of some of the highly fluorescent projects of the 1964-65 agreement, like "Hello, Dolly." They also resisted American tugs to start talking about a new agreement, even when the Americans warned that exchanges might be permanently crippled by continued delay.

Plan Not Far Below Par

All in all, though, fulfillment of the old accord wasn't much below par: about half the 19 planned scientific and technical delegations, three of four education groups, half the medical visits, two of three big touring exhibitions, four of five performing arts groups, the full complement of 20 summer language students a year, a fair part of the academic researchers. Only the exchange of writers and artists was downright disappointing.

Interestingly, exchanges with the Communist countries of East Europe have been soured hardly at all by Viet Nam. None of them is much interested in Viet Nam and none has engaged its prestige and established a public posture there as the Russians have. Exchanges with East Europe, with the semi-exception of a so-called "arrangement" with Rumania, are not conducted under the umbrella of formal agreements, anyway.

In its usual style of scuffing sand quietly over Soviet shoes, the Rumanians managed to send to the U.S. the most conspicuous exchange project imaginable—a highly successful folk dance group—just at the moment of greatest Soviet-American tension over Viet Nam.

The crunch with Moscow is close but not current. It still isn't too late to negotiate an agreement for 1966-67; spillover into 1968 could be arranged.

But it is getting awfully near the point where projects which demand a long crankup, like graduate student exchanges or bookings of big performing arts groups, may wither away even if an agreement eventually is concluded.

Moscow Gave Welcome Sign

Just the other day, the day that two Soviet writers were sentenced for sending their manuscripts abroad, the Soviet authorities in Moscow gave the American embassy a welcome sign. They presented a draft of a new agreement, months after the American draft had been handed to them.

It is now expected that negotiations will begin soon — in Washington. American officials hope the Russians want not just to talk but to make an agreement.

Without one, exchanges could theoretically still go on. Groups and individuals in the two countries could just invite each other. But the state department believes the Russians would then try to milk the program for their own purposes — chiefly, to tap American scientific knowhow and show off Soviet culture — and lop off the branches of most interest to the United States, which are to offer Soviet citizens information and an image of the U.S. through exhibitions, publications, research, personal visits and the like.

The state department could always simply work the levers of its visa authority, denying entrance to a Russian physicist or pianist in order to pry an American project over the Soviet border.

But it would look crude, would probably lead good-hearted Americans to cry shame on the state department for barring worthy Soviet guests, and might tempt the Russians to give in to their know-nothings and give up all exchanges, period.

Large Numbers Take Part

A remarkably large number of citizens have taken part in exchanges, aside from the millions who have visited the big exhibitions and cultural offerings. Adding up the discus throwers, biologists, teachers, irrigation specialists and everyone else exchanged over eight years, the total on both sides is well up in the thousands.

It has been a significant mutual invasion of the two cultures, a continuing counterpoint of personal encounters and individual experiences running — until Viet Nam—beneath the drone and crackle of politics overhead.

For Americans it has offered sights, contacts, information and a chance personally to test the barriers between the two lands. Indeed, the main appeal to Americans has probably been the person-to-person aspect: let the people learn of each other's lives even while the leaders circle each other warily in a thermonuclear crouch.

Some critics have thought that the exchanges merely let the Russians spy on and subvert us. There are similar cries, much louder, on the other side. One assumes that neither Moscow nor Washington ignores the national security, coming or going.

More Significant For Russians

For Russians, the exchanges may have been far more significant. Add to the sights-contacts-information motives the explosion of horizons which the exchanges mean to a country long constricted by tradition and fear.

The exchanges, for many Russians, offer a "window to the West," a symbolic affirmation of a change in the old Stalinist ways, and a kind of tenuous promise that life can be civilized and normal, after all.

Shoddy Goods, Poor Service British Industry Hallmarks

By C. J. HARRIS

Some Canadians have expressed embarrassment in recent years over the growing imbalance of trade between Britain and Canada.

Our exports to the United Kingdom now exceed $1 billion a year, about double the value of imports. In the last half dozen years our sales there have been climbing steadily, while Britain's sales here have actually declined in value.

There have been complaints from London about our rates of duty and customs evaluation procedures, and some Canadians have felt that we probably haven't been playing quite fair.

However, a British business director, Sheffield White, writing in the Atlantic Monthly, states that Britain's economic problems really stem from businessmen who remain mired in the outmoded methods of the past.

"In the past few years," writes Mr. White, "England has chewed on more self-delusion than any nation can be expected to swallow without acute indigestion. The economic situation of today doesn't lead to a wholehearted endorsement of the continuing opinion that British is best.

"England's forecast growth rate for 1965 is 1.1 per cent below that of 1964 and economists see the rate for 1966 falling to the discouraging figure of one per cent — which is far below the forecast figures for France, Japan, West Germany and the United States.

"One finds in the British public a debilitating willingness to go along with things good, bad or as they are. There is an apathetic acceptance of shoddy merchandise, second-rate workmanship and slipshod service. There is no passion for improvement, no sense of urgency. Enterprise is stifled in Britain today. There is still an abiding dislike, if not contempt, for anything that smacks of salesmanship.

"The English businessman makes little real effort to find out what his export market needs or wants. He makes it the way he always has, sells it on his own terms and more often than not fails to keep his delivery dates or his service promises. The English businessman simply does not know how to cope with competition. He is quite comfortable in his cartel mind. He is happiest with high prices and high profit percentages; let sales take care of themselves."

Perhaps Mr. White is too severe in his self-criticism, and no doubt there are exceptions to his generalizations. On the other hand, there is certainly no prejudice here against British goods, and yet sales have been declining while total imports have been climbing.

Bare Majority Votes To Keep Death Penalty

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

If members of Parliament could ring every door bell across Canada today, soliciting votes on whether or not capital punishment should be abolished, they would find a bare majority wants the death penalty retained in our Criminal Code.

But little more than a third of the population would abolish capital punishment.

Today's question: "If a national referendum (a public vote) were held today on the question of capital punishment—that is executing a person for murder—would you vote for retaining the death penalty in Canada, or abolishing it?"

The first Gallup Poll study on capital punishment was done in 1943. At that time and again in 1953, more than seven in ten adults felt that the death penalty (for murder) should be retained in our Criminal Code. About two in ten were against it.

Then in 1958, five years after the previous poll, a dramatic change took place. The death penalty had lost support from the public. From 71% in favor of capital punishment in 1953, the ratio had dropped to 52% in 1958. Thirty-three per cent wanted to abolish executions and a larger number than usual were confused and undecided.

Undoubtedly, the reason for this confusion and change in thinking was the fact that wide publicity had been given by newspapers and other news media to the subject. A parliamentary committee had been set up to study the pros and cons of capital punishment. The committee sat for nearly three years and, in the end, its recommendation to Parliament was to retain the death penalty.

MANPOWER PROBLEM

Que. Isolation Attitude Blasted

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec's attitude towards national manpower development was criticized Tuesday at a Canadian Labor Congress conference on manpower training.

Russ Irvine, assistant director of research for the CLC, told the 150 delegates, mainly from trade unions, he is dismayed with the attitude expressed at the conference Monday by Labor Minister Carrier Fortin of Quebec.

Mr. Fortin said Quebec is a special labor market with problems of its own that cannot be handled within national programs. He particularly rejected the idea of a national manpower mobility plan, contending it would drain Quebec of skilled workers.

Mr. Irvine, an economist, said a lack of co-ordination has been one of the most serious problems in manpower development. In the past it had been due to neglect and bad planning.

"But Mr. Fortin now appears to be elevating a lack of co-ordination to the level of a principle. Cutting Quebec and its workers off from a country-wide manpower policy would seriously reduce the scope and flexibility of manpower programs.

WOULD HURT QUEBEC

"This would hurt all Canadian workers, but it would hurt the workers of Quebec most of all."

The four-day conference, due to end Thursday, seeks a policy statement on manpower training to be presented at the CLC's biennial convention in Winnipeg April 25-29.

The emphasis in papers presented Tuesday was on the need for apprenticeship programs and adult retraining courses to equip workers for the new work procedures being developed by automation.

There was some controversy whether employers should be compelled to finance training on the same basis that they now must support workmen's compensation plans. Some delegates said that this would force management action. Others said sufficient government funds are available if provinces will only make use of them.

No Change In Property Tax Rates

A meeting of View Royal ratepayers was told Tuesday night that property tax rate for the Panhandle should remain the same if the area amalgamates with Esquimalt.

Questions from Panhandle residents on the results of proposed amalgamation were answered by Esquimalt municipal engineer John Graeme and assessor John Ismay.

More than 60 residents were present to toss questions to the chair on possible changes in lighting, garbage, police, fire, ambulance and other services.

AMBULANCES AVAILABLE

The two Esquimalt ambulances would be available to Panhandle residents, Mr. Graeme told the meeting.

Installation of sewers in the Panhandle area could be completed within 18 months, he said.

Esquimalt fire department, he added, had been able to reach destinations in View Royal in 2½ minutes in previous time trials.

The meeting was also told fire insurance on industrial property is higher in Esquimalt than View Royal.

'American Soldiers Unprepared'

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — New Zealand soldiers returning home after seven months in Viet Nam said Tuesday that a high casualty rate among American troops there stems from lack of adequate training.

Fourteen members of the 120-man 161st Battery said when they themselves arrived in Viet Nam their training "had prepared us all for what we had to face."

One major divergence from the practice followed by New Zealand and Australian troops was the tendency of the Americans to smoke at night. They also walked around "with transistor radios blaring, generally making things hard for themselves."

EXHAUSTIVE RETESTS PROVE JETLINER OKAY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — The director of flight standards for the Federal Aviation Agency, George Moore, said Tuesday that exhaustive tests and retests show the Boeing 727 jet airliner to be a sound, airworthy plane.

"My best brains, my best advisers, have given me absolutely no thought there is anything wrong with this airplane," he said at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing.

Moore gave this statement in reply to a question from John McDonald, who is representing the Air Line Pilots Association at the public hearing into the probable cause of a Boeing 727 crash at the Salt Lake City Airport last Nov 11. Forty-three passengers were killed.

U.S. SEEKS NUCLEAR-SHARING COMPROMISE

Italy, West Germany Block Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says state department officials have disclosed that West Germany and Italy have made it clear that they will not accept a proposed nuclear planning committee as an alternative to an allied nuclear force.

The Washington story says the German-Italian stand introduced new complications into the Johnson administration's efforts to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on a treaty to ban the spread of atomic weapons.

The story also says in part:

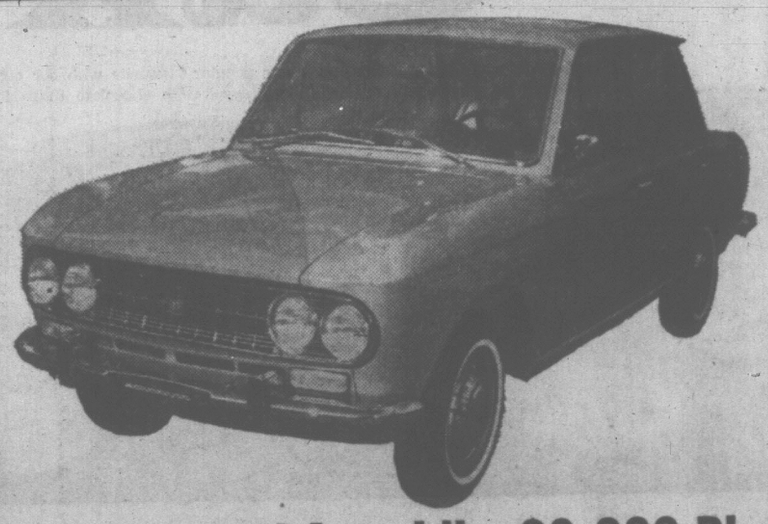

Within the administration and Congress there had been some hope that the nuclear planning committee—first proposed last spring by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara — might prove an acceptable compromise to both the North Atlantic treaty allies and to the Soviet Union, thus breaking the prolonged stalemate over a treaty. This stalemate has developed around the nuclear-sharing issue within the Atlantic alliance.

At the Geneva disarmament conference the Soviet union has emphasized that it will not accept a nuclear treaty that permits the NATO allies, particularly West Germany, to participate in an Atlantic nuclear force.

House Opens Historic Probe Of Divorce Law

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The first federal inquiry into divorce laws since Confederation has been launched by the Commons with hardly a ripple.

Various proposals to widen the grounds for divorce and relax provincial residence requirements—long regarded as taboo subjects by Canadian politicians—have been referred to the House committee on justice and legal affairs for study.

The 24-member committee is expected to hold public hearings, invite submissions from all interested parties and make recommendations to the government.

The inquiry will revolve around proposals for additional grounds for divorce and other changes contained in seven private members' bills sponsored by Liberal and New Democratic MPs.

The Commons passed the necessary motion in less than five minutes Monday.

At the same time, the health and welfare committee was instructed to conduct an equally unprecedented inquiry into the Criminal Code sections on birth control and abortion.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

The subject matter of private members' bills sponsored by three Liberals and Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) was referred to the 24-member health committee.

Dr. Harry Harley (L—Halton), health committee chairman, said Tuesday he is confident his group will hear any interested party on the issues of birth control and abortion laws. He could not recall any previous separate inquiry in this field.

The justice committee is headed by lawyer A. J. P. Cameron (L — Toronto High Park).

Mr. Prittie said "the Parliament of Canada has the exclusive power to legislate divorce reform," but no action had been taken since Confederation. There had been no inquiries, no free votes and all private members' bills on divorce had been killed.

A government spokesman agreed the divorce inquiry is unprecedented.

CLUB WANTS PROBE

A few hours before the parliamentary inquiry was set up Monday, a delegation from the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was asking Prime Minister Pearson to set up a royal commission on the subject. He told the Commons Tuesday this suggestion will be considered.

The proposed grounds for divorce placed before the parliamentary committee comprise separation, desertion, cruelty, incurable mental illness, non-support, alcoholism, drug addiction and criminal behavior, in addition to adultery and non-consummation.

The recommended periods required to prove desertion range from two to five years.

The private members' bills were introduced Jan. 24 by James Byrne (L — Kootenay East), who has two, Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard), Ian G. Wahn (L—Toronto St. Paul's), Robert Stanbury (L—York - Scarborough), Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) and Mr. Prittie.

The bills seeking to relax laws relating to birth control and abortion were submitted by Mr. Wahn, Mr. Stanbury, Mr. Basford and Mr. Prittie.

Two-Year Wait for Museum Tower to House Dutch Gift

An 80-foot tower and carillon for the provincial museum-archives complex may not appear for two years, Works Minister W. N. Chant said Tuesday.

He was commenting on plans to include the carillon in the 1967 complex marking the Canadian Confederation centennial.

The Dutch people of British Columbia are making the 37-bell carillon their gift to the people of B.C. and the government is building the tower to house it and its control mechanism.

Mr. Chant made the announcement in the legislature, following an earlier statement by the B.C. centennial commission.

He said the tower would rise over the two-storey archives building, which will be separated from the curatorial tower at Government and the former Elliott Street by a sunken garden.

OCTOBER, 1967

The museum and archives are expected to be open in September or October of 1967, but the minister said it may be another year or two before the tower, carillon and sunken garden will be ready.

The complex will make a big improvement in the appearance of Victoria, just as the city's Centennial Square has done, Mr. Chant noted.

It took great courage for the city to attempt its civic centre restoration, he said.

"Being quite candid about it, they've made a few mistakes in what they've done. But they've done a creditable job of improving the heart of Victoria and I'm sure much good will come of it," Mr. Chant said.

As an example he referred to McPherson Playhouse, the idea of which is good, he said.

"But the stage laeves a great deal to be desired in space and equipment. So often we are anxious to get things done we overlook some details," Mr. Chant said.

Power Battle Stalemate In Hydrofoil Company

SEATTLE (AP) — The fight being waged by two factions seeking control of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, Inc., reached another stalemate Tuesday.

A new six-member board of directors was named at a stockholders' meeting, but the size of the forces involved remained the same — three on each side.

"Stock was so closely split, it was the only way it could come out," said William I Niedermair, Winslow, president of the firm. "this leaves us in the same position we were before."

At stake is where the hydrofoil vessel Victoria, owned by the company and undergoing tests at Baltimore, will operate.

"The dissident group has no intention of bringing the vessel to Puget Sound," Niedermair said. "It plans to run the vessel between Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and the Bahamas.

"Our group is fighting to bring it to this area."

Niedermair and Allan Pomeroy, former Seattle mayor serving as secretary of the corporation, want the craft to ply between Seattle and Victoria.

Seven stockholders have been trying to oust Niedermair and Pomeroy.

The dissident board members voted into office are Chester W. Lytle, Albuquerque, N.M.; Francis B. Stewart, Chevy Chase, Md.; and Walter B. Lamaster Jr., Perryton, Tex.

The directors voted in who support the present management are Mrs. Elsie Backland of Bainbridge Island, Lacey V. B. Morrow, Washington, D.C., and Niedermair.

Because of the 3-3 split in the new board, the former officers carry on another term.

Violence Erupts In Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Violence erupted in Ontario's trucking strike Tuesday as negotiators for five teamsters' locals and company representatives tried to settle the five-week-old dispute.

In Hamilton, about 100 men surrounded a truck from a non-union firm and by the time police arrived they had flattened both front tires, slashed tarpaulins, twisted off a rear-view mirror, broken a headlight and ton up the bills of lading.

The connecting link between cab and trailer of a transport truck was pulled as the vehicle moved through a picket line in Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb. The trailer dropped to the pavement and traffic was blocked.

A flare was thrown into the cab of a tractor-trailer, causing $450 damage.

The strike by 6,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) was precipitated Jan. 13 and 14 by a walkout at several Toronto terminals, one week before a scheduled province-wide strike.

The Ontario Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing 55 trucking companies, then ordered the companies to cease operations.

The union earlier rejected a conciliation board recommendation for a 56-cent-an-hour increase and a 43-hour work week in a 3½-year contract.

The union wants the work week reduced to 40 from 48 hours. Under the previous contract city drivers earned $2 an hour and highway drivers were paid on a mileage basis.

Nationalize CPR, Farmers Suggest

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Greene suggested a broad federal study of grain movement problems Tuesday after the Canadian Federation of Agriculture asked the government to nationalize the privately-owned CPR.

CFA President James Bentley also said the Canadian wheat board had advised him that sales of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat were lost in the current crop year because of lack of rail transportation.

Mr. Greene was present as the federation presented its brief to the cabinet, much of it concerned with allegations of slow movement of Prairie grain by rail to shipping terminals.

After the meeting Mr. Greene said he was just posing a question, but perhaps it was time for a government agency or commission to take a "careful look" at the whole grain handling system to work out ways to make it more effective.

Mr. Bentley read the federation's annual brief to the government to Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Greene and several other cabinet ministers.

SERVE PUBLIC INTEREST

It said nationalization of the privately-owned railway would make possible a single, integrated system of rail service that would most rationally serve the interests of the people. The other major railway, the CNR, is publicly owned.

The CFA sought federal action to "ensure that the boxcar allocation provisions of our legislation are adhered to by the railways."

TIRE PRICE BOOST DUE

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A price increase of from one to three per cent on passenger, truck and farm tires was announced Tuesday by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., effective April 1.

Goodyear said the price increases still leave passenger tire prices below 1957 levels.

Canadian Car Makers Hike Exports

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian auto manufacturers more than doubled the number of cars and trucks exported last month compared with January, 1965, and most of the vehicles went to the United States.

Statistics released Tuesday by the Canadian Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association show the total number of vehicles exported in January was 21,810—16,667 cars and 5,143 trucks—compared with 8,257 in the same period last year.

Increased vehicle exports have been evident since the auto trade pact between Canada and the U.S.—allowing a tariff-free flow of vehicles and parts between the two countries—came into effect early last year.

West Coast Shows Revenue Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — Westcoast Transmission Company Ltd. has reported operating revenues of $42,813,417 for the nine-month period ending Dec. 31, 1965, up 12 per cent over the corresponding period of 1964. Net profit for the period was $1,139,000.

R. B. Stewart, president, reported that new facilities completed early in 1965 at a cost of $55,000,000, were now contributing to the company's revenues and "benefits from the new capacity will become increasingly more important as markets continue to expand."

The new facilities include a 220-mile extension of the company's pipeline system and added compression. It links Westcoast with the prolific new natural gas fields of the Fort Nelson area of northern B.C.

Wheat Shipments During January Gain Over 1965

WINNIPEG (CP)—The board of grain commissioners has reported that 23,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were shipped overseas in January, compared with 18,100,000 bushels in January, 1965.

Principal importers last month were China with 5,200,000 bushels, Russia, 4,700,000; Britain, 4,500,000, and Japan, 4,300000.

Since Aug. 1 1965, 284,700,000 bushels of wheat have been exported, compared with 201,900,000 bushels in the first six months of 1965.

January exports of other principal grains were: oats, 1,200,000 bushels, barley 1,700,000, rye 400,000, flax 1,200,000 and rapeseed 1,400,000.

B.C. Oil Industry Continues Growth

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's growing oil industry produced a total of 13,560,617 barrels, worth $28,699,198 in 1965, the department of mines and resources has reported.

The figures compared with 11,551,843 barrels of oil worth $23,460,152 in the previous year.

Total natural gas production for the year was 171,500,000,000 cubic feet compared with 146,800,000,000 cubic feet in 1964.

Goalkeeping Switch Certain As Dispute Rocks Leafs' Camp

AL MILLAR
. . . what now?

By DOUG PEDEN

Al Millar, perhaps professional hockey's most travelled player, is destined for another move.

Troubles that have been bubbling for two seasons between the 36-year-old goaltender and other players with Victoria Maple Leafs, finally boiled over Tuesday and today it seems certain that Millar has played his last game with the Leafs.

Coach Frank Mario and manager Buck Houle both said this morning that Millar was still with the club. No decision on whether or not he would be retained would be made until a meeting today. However, both indicated the former all-star netminder would not be in the nets tonight when the Leafs tackle Seattle Totems at 8:15 at Memorial Arena.

And both also indicated the controversial Millar would not be appearing in a Victoria uniform again.

Houle was expecting to talk by telephone today with Toronto coach Punch Imlach about a possible switch in goalies with another Toronto-owned club.

In the meantime, it is almost certain that rookie Gary Holland will stand between the pipes tonight. Holland has been in action with the Leafs for 10 minutes of one game and went all the way in a 2-1 loss at San Francisco last Friday.

It has been known that differences between Millar and several of his teammates have existed since last season.

Last winter, the Leafs got away to a bad start and eventually young Gary Smith was brought in to take over the Victoria netminding for seven games. Millar then returned to action and was a standout in a late-season drive that carried the Leafs into the playoff final.

Too Far the Other Way, Says Al

This season, Victoria got away to a sizzling start but harmony between Al and the other Leafs started to disintegrate in mid-December. Discord reached its peak during a Jan. 11 game here against Portland when Millar and Houle had a violent argument between periods.

There were more troubles on last week's California road trip.

One argument — between Millar and John Sleaver — erupted in the dressing room after Tuesday's practice session.

Houle and Mario had been considering obtaining a replacement for Millar for several days, but Tuesday's hassle seems to have made a move imperative if the Leafs are to become a co-ordinated hockey club.

Millar today believed he would not be staying with the Leafs, but said he was willing to continue.

"If Imlach says I'm to play here, I'll play to the best of my ability," said Millar. "I always do. I have some bad games, like everybody else, but I always do my best.

"I was told that after the argument on Jan. 11 that Imlach offered them any goalie but (Johnny) Bower and (Terry) Sawchuk but they didn't want them," continued Millar.

"They elected to go with me and if it didn't work out they have themselves to blame."

"You could almost split this club in half and you'd find one group of players on my side," Millar said of his troubles with teammates. "I've never had any trouble with the new players.

"I told him (Houle) I figured one of the other players was causing the most trouble. He's scored two goals and he's been trying to run this club like he had scored 52."

"I think Frank figured we were mostly old pros and should know what to do. But we all need a leader. He wanted to be the opposite of Rudy (Pilous, last season's coach) but he went too far the other way.

"We have the hockey players here to win, but we are all to blame. We took the easy way."

"This is a culmination of Millar and the others playing together for two years," Houle commented today. "Things have almost blown up a couple of other times.

At Point Where Change Will Help

"We have to get the team playing better, and we found out the team plays better without him (Millar). It's too bad, but the players don't want him."

Mario was calm this morning after reading reports of statements attributed to Millar, who called Mario "a puppet coach" and said the Leafs were "prize sheep without a shepherd."

"He can think what he wants to think, but this thing has been blown up out of proportion," said Mario. "Don't forget these troubles started last season.

"They seem to be putting one player above the club. And when that happens there is something wrong. I feel now that he (Millar) should not be playing with this club.

"You can't have a Monday morning quarterback and have harmony. Maybe he should be coaching the team.

"I believe that Millar has not been playing up to his ability. But this happens to a lot of goalies and is the reason why NHL clubs carry two goalies. I know that several things have been bothering him and I feel he has reached the point where a change will help."

When the change comes, it will be nothing new in the hockey life of Al Millar.

Since he turned professional 16 years ago, Millar has made 17 moves, including a return to amateur ranks for three seasons. His stay with this club, including a season at Denver, has been his longest stint with any one pro team.

This is the list of clubs he has played with since 1950:

New Haven, Kansas City, Portland, Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, Charlottetown Quebec, Springfield, Buffalo, Boston, Chicoutimi, Quebec, Hershey, Sudbury, Seattle, Denver-Victoria.

"There are a lot of things I'd like to say that I'm not going to say," Mario concluded.

"It's not worth it."

SIC 'EM, CHAPS!

Lend-lease travellers Fred Hucul (left) and Milan Marcetta are back in Victoria, ready to jump back into the thick of Western Hockey League race. Coach Frank Mario is hoping they'll supply spark needed to end seven-game winless streak when Maple Leafs tackle Seattle Totems tonight at Memorial Arena. Game time is 8:15.

Ouch Ten Times

LOS ANGELES — This is a Western Hockey League story that could be summed up simply:

"Ouch!"

But if detail is required, this could be the story that reveals, all of a sudden, that there is going to be a race for the league's fourth and final playoff spot.

That much was emphasized Tuesday night as Los Angeles Blades shell-shocked the front-running Portland Buckaroos, 10-0.

That's right, 10-0!

PRESSING TOTEMS

The stunning decision boosted Blades out of the cellar and to within four points of fourth-place Seattle Totems. San Francisco Seals, now the basement dwellers, are another point behind.

What prompts the suggestion of a hot race is the fact that Seattle has only nine home dates remaining. Both California clubs have a more favorable stretch-run schedule. The Seals have 14 home dates left while the Blades have 12.

Leo Labine and Buddy Boone triggered the Los Angeles offensive with three goals each as the Blades scored the most one-sided triumph in their history before 4,394 amazed fans.

NORRIS DOES IT

It was the first time this season that Portland was shut out by a WHL opponent, although Pittsburgh of the American League accomplished the feat Nov. 27 in an interlocking game.

Goaltender Jack Norris, whose last shutout was in 1964 against Seattle, turned back Portland. He kicked out 28 shots, including 15 in the second period, while Portland's Dave Kelly made 30 stops.

AUSTRIAN LEADING

Knight Sixth On Skate List

DAVOS, Switerland (AP) — Austria's Emmerich Danzer today strengthened his lead in the world figure skating championships in a thick cloud of snow at the Davos open rink.

After the completion of four of the six compulsory figures, Danzer had 720.3 points — 17.4 points ahead of his nearest competitor, another Austrian, Wolfgang Schwarz.

Gary Visconti of the United States was third with 689.9 points followed by Japan's Nobuo Sato with 682.0 and Scott Allen, 17, of the United States, the American champion, with 681.7.

Donald Knight, 18, of Dundas, Ont., the Canadian senior champion who finished third in the 1965 world competition, held his position in sixth place today with a 670.6 points.

The 22 men competing for the world title last held by France's Allain Calmat complete their compulsories this afternoon.

SNELLING IN 10TH PLACE

Dr. Charles Snelling, 29, of Toronto remained in 10th place with 641.9 points. Jay Humphry, 17, of Vancouver, the Canadian junior champion in 1963 and 1964, slipped to 14th place with 615.9 points.

Humphry was tied for 13th place Tuesday with Giordano Abbondato of Italy who moved into 11th place today with 630.9 points.

Compulsory figures count 60 per cent and the free-skating 40 per cent.

Soviet Union skaters held down first and second place in the pairs competition after compulsory figures Tuesday.

Ludmila Belusova and Oleg Protopopov collected 104.2 points compared to 103.1 points for Tatiana Zhuk and Alexander Gorelik. Margot Blockshuber and Wolfgang Danne of West Germany were third with 97.6 with Irene Muller and Hans-Georg Dallmer of East Germany next with 97.

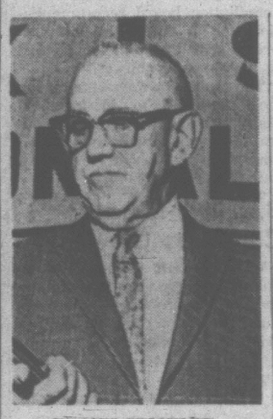

The Canadian brother-sister entry of Susan and Paul Huehnergard of Toronto finished last with only 84 points for the compulsory figures and blamed their performance on an error of interpretation in Canada of world rules.

Trainer Bruce Hyland said he trained the pair in the performance of the "serpentine footworks" as a school figure consisting of three curves in a mirror-like pattern.

He said world championship specifications demand this figure be skated three times in circles imposed upon each other.

He said Canadian authorities should have told him about the difference in rules but "there is nothing that can be done about it now."

Committee of 11 Seeks Another Crack at NHL

FRANK SELKE SR.
. . . 'fight like hell'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Can Vancouver mount a full-scale assault on the National Hockey League, which two weeks ago refused it a franchise?

Eleven prominent sports people, civic officials and businessmen think so. They have formed a committee to overcome the obstacles that prevented the inclusion of Vancouver in the recently announced six-team league expansion.

The committee will attempt to channel public opinion into constructive action at a protest meeting Thursday night.

Coupled with the rally are plans to circulate a petition of protest over the decision, announced Feb. 9, in New York by NHL president Clarence Campbell, in hopes of garnering at least 100,000 signatures.

Prime Minister Pearson will be asked to intervene personally, if possible, with the NHL board of governors and the committee has asked for letters of support from the mayors of all Canadian cities.

Hockey spokesmen admit the best they can hope for at this time is to persuade the NHL to re-examine Vancouver's case and they urge a better presentation of the basic facts supporting this city's bid for an NHL club.

McLean Opens the Door For Others

Cyrus McLean, who bought Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League four months ago and then made Vancouver's application in concert with broadcaster Foster Hewitt of Toronto, has indicated his group is willing to give any interested syndicate a clear shot at the Vancouver franchise.

The Canucks president has been the target of criticism, notably from Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, Campbell and Frank Selke, vice-president of Montreal Canadiens, who say the McLean application was a poor presentation that did not reflect complete public support.

Statements made by McLean have led to speculation that Calgary publisher Max Bell and oilman Frank McMahon could take over the franchise bid.

The pair, who withdrew from the Vancouver franchise bidding shortly after McLean purchased the Canucks, have given no indication they would be willing to make another attempt.

Meanwhile, officials of the Pacific National Exhibition have announced they will continue plans for a $6,000,000 trade and sports centre.

Selke, who arrived in Vancouver Monday to discuss details of the PNE project, added impetus to the Vancouver campaign by urging citizens to citizens to "fight like hell" for a franchise.

"If you are going to give up after one rebuff, the application wasn't worthwhile in the first place," he told reporters Tuesday.

"Now you have time to regroup forces and see if all interested groups can be joined together with full community support."

Grocers Grab Berth In Provincial Final

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Grocers sank Ex-Byng with an eight-point explosion late in the game Tusday night for a 68-63 victory to win the Vancouver senior men's basketball championship.

Leading by only a point with three minutes left, Grocers scored four baskets in less than a minute to ensure the victory and the championship they lost last season to Alberni Athletics.

The victory was the fourth in as many games for Grocers in the best-of-seven series with Ex-Byng.

Grocers were led to victory by centre Billy Joe-Price with 15 points. Al Birtles had 13 points for the winners. For Ex-Byng it was the league's most valuable player, Dave Way, who led the scoring with 12 points.

Grocers now meet Vancouver Island champion, the winner of a series now going on between Alberni and Victoria Chiefs. Alberni leads that best-of-seven series 2-0.

Norris Hospitalized By Heart Condition

CHICAGO (AP) — James D. Norris, co-owner of the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team, was reported Tuesday in satisfactory condition in Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital after treatment for a heart condition.

Hospital attendants said Norris entered the hospital Feb. 15 for diagnosis and treatment. He has had heart trouble in the past.

Funeral on Friday

REGINA (CP)—Funeral services will be held Friday for Alvin Horace Ritchie, who coached Regina teams to national titles in both hockey and football. Ritchie, 75, died Monday.

COOL Report Hotly Favored By West Clubs

CALGARY (CP)—Officials of the four Eastern Football Conference clubs arrived late Tuesday to prepare for the annual Canadian Football League meeting, expected to be highlighted by discussion of recommendations of the Committee of One League.

Delegates from all nine CFL clubs came prepared for lengthy consideration of the C.O.O.L. report. Other issues to be discussed were the 1966 draft of Canadian college players and the 1966 schedule.

Reports suggested the rules committee, which met two weeks ago, would submit significant changes, including readjustment of the rules on blocking, to the meeting.

Representatives of the five WFC clubs—Calgary Stampeders, Edmonton Eskimos, British Columbia Lions, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers—were in favor of adopting the C.O.O.L. report.

Chinook Session Slated Saturday

Guests will accompany members at the annual meeting of the Chinook Club at the Ingraham Hotel Saturday.

Members will handle the business of the Saanich Inlet angling club's annual session. Guests will join in the fun at a dinner and dance, which will be held in conjunction with the meeting.

Chinooks are reminded that tickets should be picked up by Thursday night.

Rasslers Return For Tuesday Card

The rasslers stomp back into Memorial Arena next Tuesday.

A triple main event will highlight the five-bout card, scheduled to start at 8:15 p.m.

Slated for action, in order of appearance, are Eric Froelich, Pancho Lopez, Ricky Hunter, Bill Dromo, Okiyama, Tim Geohagen, Paddy Barrett, John Tolos, Don Leo Jonathan and the masked "Black Terror."

Detroit Tigers Have Eyes for Canadians

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Canada, whose native sons dominate the National Hockey League, soon may have some playing major-league baseball.

Detroit Tigers have 10 Ontario-born youngsters in their organization, including three pitchers on the team's major-league roster.

"Canada is becoming increasingly important from a television programming standpoint," chief scout Ed Katalinas said.

"One reason we have gone into Canada is that under the new draft rules players from Canada, Mexico and Cuba are exempt. This means any team can negotiate and sign players as it sees fit.

TAKE LOWER BONUSES

"And we have found that Canadian players do not demand high bonuses to sign."

John Hiller of Scarborough appears to have the best chance of staying with the Tigers. He pitched six innings in relief for the Tigers late last season and did not allow a run.

Mike Kilkenney of Bradford, who posted a 14-15 mark at Daytona Beach and struck out 208 in 185 innings last season, and George Korince of Ottawa, 7-11 at Jamestown with 151 strikeouts in 133 innings, are the other pitchers on the roster.

Other major-league clubs are reported to be watching how the Canadians fare with the Tigers.

Avery Rallies To Lock Up Senior Title

NANAIMO (CP) — Frank Avery drew to the button with his last rock Tuesday to score a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over Mickey Brennen and win the British Columbia seniors curling championship here.

Down 5-7 after nine ends, the Vancouver skip took advantage of a Brennen miss to draw in the winning shot.

The Vancouver skip was supported by Ned Wigington, Les Kidson and Bill Person.

Earlier in the day they defeated Brennen 10-6 and will head for the national seniors finals at Winnipeg March 28-April 3.

THEY'LL TAKE IT . . . . . . OVER THREE YEARS

Koufax, Drysdale Only Want $1,000,000

By Associated Press

Stories appearing in a Los Angeles newspaper indicate Sandy Koufax and pitching mate Don Drysdale are trying to add to a trend that has become common in pro football—long-term, six-figure contracts.

A copyright story in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner says it will take more than $1,000,000 for the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers to sign their two star pitchers.

Willie Mays may have started the trend in baseball when he signed a two-year contract with San Francisco Giants for $250,000. Now Koufax is reported to be asking $600,000 and Drysdale $450,000 for three-year contracts.

Koufax was not available for comment. Drysdale had this to say:

"I will not comment on the figures, which would put me in the position of negotiating through the newspapers. However, Sandy and I are grown up and this is a business affair. We want to handle it the way we feel is right, and in a proper manner for all concerned."

Dodger general manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, meanwhile, confirmed parts of the report.

"Yes, they are asking for a lot of money," he admitted. "But this $600,000 is news to me."

Bavasi also said he was not aware the pitchers were asking for three-year contracts, but added:

"They may be as far as I know. . . . It is true that I have been thinking in terms of around $100,000 but nothing has been settled on a figure.

"They want a lot of money and I want to give them a lot, but their idea of the word 'lot' might be different from mine."

Koufax and Drysdale apparently aren't the only players in the majors thinking in terms of a lot of money—Dodger shortstop Maury Wills is another—as some 100 players remained unsigned with spring training opening in 10 days.

Among the name players still unhappy are Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins, Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals, Norm Cash and Don Demeter of Detroit Tigers, Brooks Robinson and Frank Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, San Francisco's Juan Marichal and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox.

Howe Youngsters Stir Fire in Minor Hockey

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Quebec City's annual carnival and the peewee hockey tournament they hold in connection with it give a great boost to the sport.

Sid Abel, the Red Wings' manager, gave me a day off so I could see my sons, Marty and Mark, play in it last week, before I rejoined the team for the game at Boston. The enthusiasm at Quebec is overwhelming.

My youngsters are members of the Roostertail Hockey Club. The name "Roostertail" throws a lot of French-speaking people. The club is sponsored by Joe Schoenith, who races those big hydro unlimited power boats.

When those boats tear down the Detroit River at more than 100 miles per hour, they throw a big spray 30 feet high, the shape of a rooster tail. That's where the name comes from.

My sons almost didn't get to the Quebec tournament. I had them drop off the team temporarily around the first of the year. The reasons were a combination of many things.

The one that hit my wife Colleen and I the hardest was the fact their teacher called us and said the boys literally were falling asleep in their seats in classes at school.

They were playing too many games and doing too much travelling, in my estimation. Almost every weekend they were going to Galt, Kitchener, even as far as Toronto. They played two, three, maybe four games on the weekend.

We tried to slow our coach down in the process of scheduling these games because there is a tremendous amount of work involved. And travelling takes a lot out of you. It took an awful lot out of my wife, who accompanied the youngsters each time.

So I pulled them off the team. I think I taught the boys a lesson and maybe the individuals running it a little lesson too.

They're not playing any more exhibition games, just the city league and playoffs.

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe is "100 per cent" in favor of organized pee wee hockey, but the Detroit Red Wing star thinks the schedule in the local league may be a bit too tough.

Criticism of organized children's hockey was stimulated by a fight at the Quebec international pee wee tournament in Quebec City last Thursday.

Howe's son, Mark, playing with Detroit Roostertails, fought with a Toronto youngster after a game in which the Roostertails lost 4-2 to Toronto Red Wings.

Howe said he didn't know anything about the fight.

SCHOOL WORK SUFFERS

The veteran hockey star said he pulled his two sons, Mark, 12, and Mary, 11, out of play for a couple of weeks earlier this year because their school work was suffering. (See also "Howe's Hockey.)

"We got a little alarmed when the teachers told us they were literally asleep in class," Howe said.

After some warnings, his sons' grades picked up from about 75 per cent to 95 per cent and they were allowed back on the ice, Howe said.

Howe said he does not think that in general there is too much pressure on youngsters playing organized hockey.

SOME COACHES FAULTED

There might be instances of an individual coach bearing down too hard on his young players, but he felt this was probably the exception rather than the rule.

Howe said it isn't so much the number of games but the travelling and other activity that goes with minor hockey that might be too much for youngsters.

Canadian criticism has come from psychologists and athletic and recreation officials.

"They put the children into emotional pressure cookers," said Prof. John Farina of the University of Toronto School of Social Work.

"I am sure the coaches, managers and parents get psychological satisfaction of questionable value out of this," he said.

MOST AWARE

Bill Glover of the Toronto Hockey League said the pressure tactics at the Quebec tournament applied only to the Detroit team.

"In my opinion, the majority of the men concerned with minor hockey are aware of their responsibilities to the players," he said.

Dr. Robert Imrie, a pediatrician associated with the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, said he is appalled by the mental strain and physical danger of competitive body sports for young boys.

The great majority of boys in minor hockey are "pushed into it by go-go fathers," he said. "They play only to please the old man."

ERNIE'S LUCK CHANGED WITH SWITCH IN SPORT

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) — Ernie Nerlich's luck was bound to change.

All it took was a change in sports.

Nerlich, the golf professional from nearby Richmond Hill, set a record in the Canadian Open last August when he took 14 strokes to play the par-four 18th hole at Mississaugua Golf Club in Port Credit, Ont.

Tuesday night he went curling and had a perfect eight-end scored against him. It came on the second end.

What's so lucky about that?

Nothing, except Nerlich defeated Bill Mathews 16-9.

NORTH ONTARIO LEADS

Humboldt Rink Upset by B.C.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Back-to-back victories Tuesday gave Northern Ontario an unblemished record in the Canadian schoolboy curling championships and an upset by British Columbia gave Wayne Steski's North Bay crew sole possession of first place.

The Northern Ontario representatives took advantage of a key miss in the third round to register an 8-7 victory over Ontario and stretched their unbeaten record to 3-0 with a 15-4 victory over New Brunswick in the fourth round.

British Columbia's Douglas Engstrom skipped his Prince George rink to the upset of the day, defeating Saskatchewan's Bill Ross of Humboldt 8-6 in the fourth round.

Ross, who held a 3-0 record going into the fourth - round match, started to falter in the third round. Leading 9-5 after nine of the regulation 10-end match, the Saskatchewan foursome dropped three stones to Leslie Hollands of Arvida, Que. to gain a 9-8 victory.

The ninth end proved the turning point for Saskatchewan against B.C. Trailing 6-4 after eight ends, Engstrom piled in three stones and stole another on the final end.

Newfoundland, skipped by Danny Herder of St. John's, also earned the title of giant killer in the fourth round. Herder, who lost in his first two games, counted two stones on the first end against Ontario and was never headed as he picked up an 8-6 victory.

Ontario's Mike Boyd of Kingston had lost a heart-breaker in the third round against Steski. Boyd, with his last stone, attempted an intricate double takeout in order to count two and tie the match.

The stone missed and, instead of the necessary two stones, the Kingston crew wound up with a single.

Saskatchewan finished the day's action tied with Brian Howes of Calgary for second place in the 11-rink, round-robin bonspiel with a 3-1 record.

N.S. HAS TWO WINS

Lineup Complete For Ladies' Finals

VANCOUVER—Ten provincial champions, including two veteran rinks, will meet here Feb. 28-March 4 to decide the Canadian ladies' curling championship.

The rinks are scheduled to play a single round-robin tournament at the Capilano Winter Club. The arena, specially prepared for the competition, can accommodate an expected 1,500 spectators each draw.

No former winners will be on hand. However, there will be two rinks vying for the title which gained the finals in previous years.

Mrs. Irene Snow led a Nova Scotia rink to the Dominion finals two years ago in Edmonton and she is back with Mrs. Jean Nickerson, third, Mrs. Pat Watt, second, and Mrs. Mary LeMessurier, lead, are newcomers.

The other veteran rink is the one skipped by Mrs. Barbara MacNevin of Saskatchewan, and it is intact from last year's playdowns in Halifax. Mrs. Fay Coben, third; Mrs. Florence Hill, second, and Mrs. Avis Carr, lead, are the members.

Mrs. MacNevin has participated twice before in the National finals. She played second on the Joyce McKee rink in 1960 at Ottawa and in 1961 at Regina.

Alberta—Gale Lee (skip), Hazel Jamison, Sharon Harbington and June Coyle.

Saskatchewan — Barbara MacNevin (skip), Fay Coben, Florence Hill and Avis Carr.

Newfoundland—Vi Pike (skip), Gladys Clarke, Caroline Ball and Joanne Goodyear.

Bruins Give Up Doggo Role for 'Spoilers'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tonight's Boston - Montreal game will be televised on Channel 8, starting at 5:30.

Boston Bruins, once seemingly content to lie doggo at the bottom of the National Hockey League heap, have come to life lately and seem to be enjoying their role as "spoilers" in the pennant race.

Coach Milt Schmidt credits his team's improvement to teamwork, consistency and accuracy.

The Bruins get another chance to play their spoiler role tonight as they square off in Montreal against the Canadiens, who are two points behind first-place Chicago Black Hawks and two ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs play Chicago and last-place New York Rangers' take on the Red Wings.

The Bruins went on a four-game victory streak a month ago. Since then they have won eight games and tied two in 15 starts. Their eight victories include two over Chicago and Detroit and one each against Montreal and Toronto.

In their last start against Montreal, Bruins' goalie Eddie Johnston recorded a 2-0 shutout.

The man given the major share of the credit for Boston's improvement is Pit Martin.

Martin, 22, a centre from Noranda, Que., came to the Bruins at Christmas time in a trade that saw Parker MacDonald go to Detroit.

In 23 games with Boston, Pit has scored 15 goals and assisted on six others. Also, he has had a four-goal night against Chicago and one of three goals against Detroit.

Chinooks Meet Saints

Victoria Chinooks, defending national junior basketball champions, have drawn Halifax All Saints in the first game of the 1966 championship tournament here next Monday.

They will play in the third game on the opening night of the week-long tournament.

Alberta and Ontario will meet in the opening game at Central Junior High School gym starting at 5 p.m. The UBC Jayvees, B.C. kings, meet New Brunswick at 7, followed by Victoria-Nova Scotia at 9.

Quebec drew an opening bye.

If Chinooks get past Halifax, Quebec will be their next foe. Jayvees, if victorious, meet the winner of the Alberta-Ontario game.

Two losses for any team means elimination.

The teams: B.C.—UBC Jayvees and Victoria Chinooks; Alberta—Mount Royal Cougars, Calgary; Ontario—Quigleys, Hamilton; Quebec—Montreal Orchids; Nova Scotia — Halifax All Saints; and, New Brunswick—Fredericton Elms.

TALENTED FORWARD with UBC Jayvees, Dave Rice is expectde to be one of mainstays of Jayvees in their bid for Canadian junior men's basketball title at Central Junior High School next week. Jayvees, winners of B.C. crown, face New Brunswick champs in their first game Monday night.

Quigleys Have Extra Weapons For Fourth Shot at Hoop Title

HAMILTON (CP) — When Wes Hicks sets out to win a Canadian title, he believes in teaching his team members more than how to set up and execute plays.

"Dedication, hustle and desire" are the added incentives according to Hicks, who leads his Hamilton Quigleys into the Canadian junior men's basketball championships at Victoria next week.

"I have never had a team like it," Hicks says. "They are a unit of 10 guys."

That's a broad statement for the man who is making his fourth bid for the national title, including a loss to Vancouver Saints in the 1964 finals.

Hicks has four veterans and six rookies. Eight are products of local high school teams.

The only player from outside the area is Carl Glatt, a McMaster University student who came from Toronto.

The starting lineup is centre Peter Dalla Riva, six feet five inches; forwards Daryl Brown, six feet one inch, and Jim Hajas, six feet three inches, and guards Vic Vinerskis and Jim Connor, both six feet 10 inches.

Bowman, a high school all-star, is the team's top point-getter, averaging 27 points a game. Hajas is the top rebound shooter and second-highest scorer on the squad.

Vinerskis and Connor were members of the all-Ontario high school champions last season.

Peter Coulen, six feet five inches, alternates with Riva at centre. Both weigh 210 pounds and are strong rebound shooters. Glatt and John Kennedy, six feet, are secondary forwards, while Bob Wylie, five feet 10 inches and Bruce Mowat, five feet eight inches, are the secondary guards.

Quigleys have won 21 of their 24 games this season. They defeated Windsor 88-70 and 94-81 to sweep the Ontario finals.

The team boasts a shooting record of 47 per cent from the floor.

Hicks stresses a lot of running and claims his team will do a lot of things junior teams don't normally do.

"I don't think any team will beat us by more than six points," he says, adding that British Columbia Jayvees, Montreal Orchids and Victoria Chinooks probably will provide the strongest competition.

Two Share Top Spot In Uplands Contest

Mrs. W. Allan and Mrs. A. Sutton each used only 30 putts for 18 holes to share top honors in a women's "count putts" contest at Uplands Golf Club.

Next in line with 33 putts each were Mrs. H. Bryn-Jones and Mrs. C. Locatelli.

'SEE ALVIN JOHNSON'

Lot of Old Memories In Cottage by River

By BESSIE FORBES

When we were in the Cariboo last September we spent some time in a museum at Quesnel, maintained by the Cariboo Historical Society in conjunction with the Junior Chamber of Commerce tourist bureau.

Forbes

The exhibits, with identification cards that told briefly something of the history of the district, stirred the imagination and left us wondering where we might fill in the background to some of the stories.

"Go and see Alvin Johnston," advised the caretaker. "He knows our history inside out."

An obliging young woman at the tourist desk phoned Mr. Johnston ("we do this all the time," she assured us").

Result was that early in the evening we found our way to the flats where the Quesnel River joins the Fraser and to a friendly cottage home with windows looking out over the swift flowing waters.

It was on this land that Alvin Johnston's father settled almost a century ago. It was at the junction of the two rivers that he built his first home.

In that two-storey house with its vine-covered verandah Mr. Johnston was born in 1892. He grew up there. He spent his own married life close by and he is living out his years in the modern cottage his son built on a grassy slope close to the Fraser River.

The old family home is gone now. Only a grove of trees mark the spot where it stood.

Commercial developments cover much of the property. There's a mill not far from the cottage, We drove between piles of lumber to reach the river. The railway cuts across a corner of the place. While we sat and talked a freight train thundered by. All this is at the back of the house, "out of sight," as Mr. Johnston puts it.

In front the Fraser rushes on to its destiny far off at the Pacific Coast just as it did when he was a boy. Around the corner it still holds rendezvous with the Quesnel. "We used to swim in the eddies down there when we were lads," he told us.

Alvin Johnston is president of the Cariboo Historical Society. He had much to do with the planning of the fine little museum we visited.

One day he hopes to see it enlarged and many more items added. "We have the exhibits," he told us," all we lack is the space."

Around him were some of the things he wishes to see in the enlarged place he envisions.

There were old maps of the district, early records (his father once operated a ferry service in the district as well as the farm, had an interest in mining and was justice of the peace), a book of autographs of pioneer settlers and trainmen and, best of all, his own notebooks filled with personal recollections and also with reminiscences of old-timers that he has written down and kept.

When we visited him Mr. Johnston was busy piecing together the history of the Cariboo from these notebooks.

Unable to roam the country at will as he used to do (he is now confined to a wheelchair), he was getting the notes in order with the intention of writing several books.

The first one, he told us, was well on its way. It was about the famed mile houses of the Cariboo, those big log homesteads that marked stopping places of early-day stages from Ashcroft to Barkerville.

Alvin Johnston remembers many of these places. He knew the families that established them on the old Cariboo Highway.

Over the years he has travelled many miles to check his information and to establish the truth of little-known facts.

Facts that contain the fascinating stories of gold miners and homesteaders, faro dealers and hurdy-gurdy girls, Chinese and Europeans, gentlemen and thugs, all of whom, in their different ways, helped to create the history of the Cariboo.

When we visited him last September Mr. Johnston had most of the "spade work" done on the book and he was looking ahead to seeing it published in this British Columbia centennial year.

If it is published it will add another fine story to the history of the fabulous northland, And, there is no doubt, it will be rich in color and in authentic anecdotes.

Even Gov't MLAs Bored With Speech!

The hardships of the college lecturer must be endured by the cabinet minister too, Ralph Loffmark learned Tuesday in the legislature.

While the former UBC professor was in full flight discussing the budget as industrial development, trade and commerce minister, a growing buzz of private conversations by bored Social Credit backbenchers could be heard.

Finally, he could stand it no longer and interrupted his speech to appeal for help from Speaker William Murray.

"While I appreciate the interest of some of the honorable members, a word from you Mr. Speaker to the corner here would be much appreciated," he said, glaring at the government MLAs beside him.

The speaker rapped his gavel and the offending MLAs sat up straight, for all the world like reprimanded school boys.

ASKS FOR PUBLIC DEFENDER

Socred Borrows NDP Plank

Social Credit MLA Alex Matthew Tuesday borrowed a New Democratic Party plank in pleading for the office of public defender.

An NDP public defender bill last year was ruled out of order and was not pursued further at the 1965 session.

Mr. Matthew noted that "principles welding a democracy are few and simple."

"Equality before the law must not be dependent on finances," he said.

"Author, author," cried members of the opposition.

He was reminded of NDP efforts last year.

"I wrote it," Mr. Matthew declared, amid heckling.

Premier Bennett at one point told the opposition to leave Mr. Matthew alone because he had a dose of 'flu.

The member said he hoped his bid would be heeded, ensuring that "no one, however poor, be denied access to the courts. These matters are close to my heart," Mr. Matthew said.

Carrier Driver Hurt At Ogden Point Pier

Lumber carrier driver Gary Lockridge, 3441 Happy Valley Road, is reported in good condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital following an industrial accident Saturday.

He was taken to hospital with multiple lacerations when his carrier toppled over at Ogden Point's A Dock.

TEST OLDER DRIVERS

The state of Rhode Island is to institute compulsory eye tests for drivers reaching the age of 65.

End to Tax on Meals Means Eat-Out Boom

An eat-out boom as a result of 5 per cent tax abatement on restaurant meals was foreseen Tuesday in the legislature.

Alex Matthew (SC—Vancouver Centre) said he canvassed his neighborhood in Vancouver's West End and found a "new buoyancy and confidence among managers" of cafes.

He said the knowledge that the tax is to be lifted has increased their prospects.

But it also is a relief to persons of "lower income brackets, particularly that large army of white collar workers and shop workers that eat their noon meal downtown."

Mr. Matthew said the tax is a cause of "minor discontent" and an insidious "nuisance tax."

Snow Hits Peking

PEKING (Reuters) — The heaviest snowfall in four years slowed traffic in Peking Monday. About six inches fell in two days. The Peking Daily said this will help the next wheat crop but was not heavy enough to alleviate the drought in northern China.

ATTRACT TORONTONIANS TO COAST!

British Columbia should be seeking tourist traffic in Ontario, where people think Canada ends at Muskoka, an MLA suggested Tuesday.

Setting up a B.C. government travel bureau office in Toronto—as in San Francisco—"would be an effective instrument to increase our tourist business," said Alex Matthew (SC—Vancouver Centre).

"Torontonians think Canada ends south of Muskoka," he said. The bureau would do well to promote tourism throughout eastern Canada, he felt.

CHANGES IN GAME ACT

Hunters Can Get 'Ticket' in Bush

A provincial game officer soon will be able to hand out "hunting tickets" to negligent sportsmen as a policeman issues traffic tickets.

The provision is one of many changes in a redraft of the Game Act introduced to the legislature Tuesday as the Wildlife Act by Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

A hunter could be accused of an offence if he hunted under poor conditions, such as within the periods of an hour after sunset or an hour before sunrise, or at any time of the day when visibility is poor.

Infractions can be specified on tickets which the attending game officer will punch to designate the offence and summary appearance in court. Appearances now are ordered by summons.

CAN APPEAL

Decisions of the branch director may be appealed in County Court.

Terms of the new bill demand greater responsibility of the individual in being granted licences and permits.

It empowers the director of the game branch to deny a licence to hunt for any reason, such as a belief the applicant is incompetent, whereas the old game act based denial of previous conviction, or a breach of regulations.

For the first time, the department may buy or expropriate land or water areas for the conservation and protection of wildlife, or take over improvements, timber or timber rights.

ADDED TO INVENTORY

Mr. Kiernan said property taken would be added to the general provincial parkland inventory.

The bill does away with a former requirement that all persons carrying firearms must have a hunting licence. A licence would be needed only by persons carrying arms for hunting.

Hunters 18 or under in future would have to be accompanied by a person 21 years or older and have parental consent to apply for licence.

The minister may require a hunting knowledge and firearms proficiency test of any person applying for a licence.

In 1967, Mr. Kiernan said, it is intended to require of all persons applying for a firearms licence for the first time a certificate of competence. The test is being offered on a volunteer basis this year.

Steel-tipped arrows, long bows and cross bows are being classed as firearms this year because of their lethal capacity.

Penalties for pitlamping convictions are stringent—a minimum $500 and maximum $1,000, or from 60-90 days imprisonment, or both fine and jail term.

Politics Plays Major Role In New Crisis by Doctors

By PHILIPPE NEURAY

BRUSSELS (AP) — The conflict between doctors and the national health insurance program which toppled the Belgian government recently is an old and deep one.

Compulsory health insurance in Belgium dates from the end of the Second World War. At first doctors had no great role to play, but later they resisted attempts to associate them with the scheme. Two years ago they went on strike but ultimately a majority of physicians became associated with the system.

Why then the new crisis?

The problem is political. It is also a financial one concerning all Belgians since the huge sums swallowed by health insurance have to come from the taxpayers' pocket.

The political picture is made up of Socialists on the left, Liberals on the right and Social Christians (Catholics) in the middle. The Socialists and Catholics were the ruling coalition. When they disagreed on the health program, the government fell.

Three years ago they adopted a far - reaching compulsory health insurance law which said doctors' fees would be set by decree, patients' medical records would be open to health insurance officials and doctors would become responsible for the management of the health insurance system.

Belgium's 12,000 - doctors waged war against the 1963 laws, deserting their consulting rooms, overcrowding hospitals with patients and leaving their homes for the country.

The strike lasted 18 days and the government called thousands of reserve military doctors back into uniform. Eventually a compromise was reached.

The doctors agreed to be represented on a joint committee with health insurance officials, to have their fees set by law and to stick to them under penalty of fines.

The government agreed that only six of every 10 doctors would have limited fees, and backed down on its claim for access to medical records.

NOT SELF-SUPPORTING

One point of the law was that health insurance companies should be financially self-supporting. They haven't been.

The program now covers more than 7,000,000 of the 9,200,000 Belgians. Participants have health fees deducted from wages but the deficit this year is estimated at $240,000,000 to $260,000,000.

When Social Christian Premier Pierre Harmel took power last spring he began an austerity program by raising taxes $340,000,000 and cutting health subsidies to $200,000,000.

The Socialists accepted this but balked at another step proposed by the Catholics and the doctors: Stopping free treatment at the seven Socialist clinics. This, contended Harmel's party and the doctors, caused a strain on the health budget because the government subsidizes the Socialist clinics, too.

The law also said doctors' fees could be raised Jan. 1 if there was no agreement on the Socialist clinics. Doctors raised their fees 25 per cent and threatened another strike unless the government accepted. A Socialist outcry followed, party members quit the coalition and the government fell.

BIGGEST 'SLUMLORD' TAG PLACED ON CPR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver alderman Monday described the Canadian Pacific Railway as the biggest "slumlord" in Canada and called for expropriation of its waterfront property holdings in Vancouver.

The charge was made by Alderman Bob Williams in a four-page statement read to council, criticizing the railway for keeping the False Creek area a "backwater wasteland"; for maintaining huge freight yards near the heart of the city where they would not be tolerated and for maintaining 19th-century "blights" which prevent growth of the downtown area.

HOME GARDEN

Keep Your Distance

By HILDA BEASTALL

The dagger-sharp leaves of desert yuccas add a semi-tropical touch to our normally dry summers.

Sooner or later the owner of a single lot garden finds his activities curtailed by these exotics, the huge rosettes of foliage reaching out with sharp fingers to catch him unawares.

Hilda

I have seen a few of these fascinating plants pruned every year to the central growth in early spring. This curtails their spreading, but there is no interference with normal new growth or flowering.

Most of us however, tend to keep our distance. We admire and perhaps even cut the charming waxy blooms with their lemon scent, but otherwise we just let the plants go their own way with abandon.

CUT LEAVES

During late winter we should at least cut off all the old brown leaves and the thick wooden stems which bore last year's blooms.

This improves the appearance of the yuccas, helping them to fulfill their architectural purpose in our landscape.

In a flat, sea coast garden of stony soil, their presence lends a touch of primitive grace.

If we wish to dispense with yuccas already growing, the major undertaking should be accomplished while the weather is cool enough to wear plenty of protective clothing. Wrapping the whole of the plant's top growth in a tarpaulin is probably an effective insurance against gouges by the sharp leaves.

The roots of old yuccas are ather like enormous iris rhizomes. New growth comes up from the blunt, rounded tips which we find in the top inch or so of soil.

All of these should be removed for burning unless we wish to encourage a plantation of young desert dwellers in a few years time.

Nervous Wreck By Actions?

If a neighbor's behavior makes a man a nervous wreck, is he being threatened?

That will be argued March 3 when the trial of Charles Kenyon, 2054 Carnarvon, resumes. Kenyon has pleaded not guilty to a threatening charge.

Herbert J. Bool, 2048 Carnarvon heard a loud explosion Jan. 31 and saw Mr. Kenyon on his back porch with a rifle, court was told.

He added his neighbor shakes his fists at airplanes and pulls up and down on his clothesline.

He said his neighbor's conduct will "make me a nervous wreck if it continues."

Police who attended a the home Jan. 31 said Mr. Kenyon fired into the ground and told them there was a prowler in his yard.

Denis Trial Recessed

OTTAWA (CP)—The jury in the Raymond Denis trial was dismissed today until March 1 to permit Judge Frank Costello to wade through what he called a "mass of legal rulings."

TIGHT MONEY

Interest Ceiling On Loans Urged

CHANT
... up to 30 per cent

A time is approaching when there must be a ceiling on interest rates, Works Minister W. N. Chant told members of the legislature Tuesday.

He said today's market rates on borrowed money of 15, 20 and up to 30 per cent are "outrageous."

"Even the scriptures had a word for it — usury without conscience," the minister said.

He also had a word about tight money.

"Money's always tight," remarked Gordon Gibson (Lib. — North Vancouver).

Mr. Chant said he knew a man without debts and a good credit rating who tried to get a bank loan.

The bank manager told him he couldn't grant him a loan, even if he walked into the bank with a gold bar.

"Nonsense," Mr. Gibson cried, "if he had security he could get a loan anytime.

"Give me the gold brick; I'll give you the money," he thundered.

Piggy Bank Robbed

MILL BAY—A thief who broke into the empty home of John R. Lee, Deloume Road, at the weekend rifled the children's piggy banks.

The thief used an unlocked window to get in.

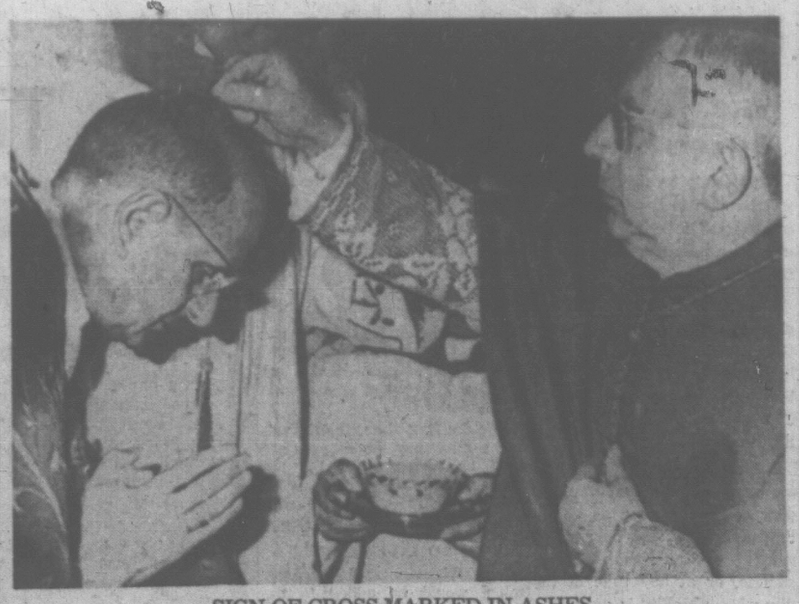

The money, about $20, was the combined savings of the Lee's young children David, Diane, Gail and Sharon.

SWEDES LIKE SPEED

Europe's largest wind tunnel, capable of speeds seven times that of sound, has been built near Stockholm.

Marina Opposed

TSAWWASSEN (CP) — Commercial fishermen in this area have decided to fight through their union any move to construct a $4,000,000, 1,800-boat pleasure boat marina here. They say it would be a magnet for thousands of sports fishermen who would invade the fishing grounds.

SIGN OF CROSS MARKED IN ASHES
... Pope Paul bows his head before Paolo Cardinal Marella

POPE LEADS RCS INTO LENTEN SEASON

Time of Penitence, Prayer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With the sign of the cross marked in ashes on his forehead, Pope Paul today led the world's Roman Catholics into the Lenten season of penitence and prayer.

For the first time in his pontificate, Pope Paul blessed the ashes publicly in St. Peter's Basilica. Then Paolo Cardinal Marella, archpriest of the basilica, marked the sign of the cross on Pope Paul's forehead.

After being marked with ashes —a gesture signifying human frailty and humility—the Pope marked the foreheads of several persons in the congregation.

For Lent, Catholics will observe the new rules for fasting and abstinence.

Only today and Good Friday are days of strict fast and abstinence for Catholics, meaning that no meat and only one full meal may be eaten. Other Lenten days now are no different than the rest of the year.

Unchanged is the rule against meat on Fridays, but the starting age for abstinence has been raised to 14 years from seven.

The Lenten period lasts 40 days, exclusive of Sundays, and ends on Easter Sunday, which falls on April 10 this year.

Controversy Over Viet Nam Does Fadeout

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House stepped squarely into the middle of a Vietnamese peace policy controversy with Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.) Tuesday and said that perhaps there is no controversy after all.

The United States, the White House said, favors free elections in South Viet Nam "with all of us abiding by the consequences of these elections, whatever they may be."

Moreover, press secretary Bill D. Moyers said "there is no disagreement" between the Johnson administration and Kennedy "if Senator Kennedy did not propose a coalition government with Communist participation before elections are held."

MEETING HELD

Moyers stated the White House view following meetings by President Johnson with his top policy advisers on Viet Nam.

Kennedy said Tuesday the issue of including Communists in an interim coalition government of South Viet Nam prior to elections should be decided at the peace negotiation table.

The senator said he is not advocating the admission of the Viet-Cong guerrillas and its political arm, the National Liberation Front, to any government that might be set up before elections are held.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

From Edmonton this week came a scrap of news that must surely have cast a shadow upon every Victoria family owned by a black Labrador retriever. Tige, one of the noble breed, has been sentenced to nine months of exile from his people for biting a three-year-old child who wandered into his yard.

That's a rough go for any dog, and I'm by no means sure the well-intentioned Alberta beak who commuted Tige's earlier death sentence was doing him a favor. It may well be, in fact, that the culprit has merely been condemned to a slow death rather than a quick one.

Why did he bite? Of all dogs I know, none are better with children or less inclined to meanness than the Lab. Our own big black frequnetly entertains small, welcome guests. Tige wasn't vicious; that fact was emphasized in the appeal judges' decision.

What was being done to the dog in his own yard, by a child of irresponsible age? The story doesn't tell us, nor does it answer an even more fundamental question:

How did a child so young come to be there in the first place?

Tige the Labrador's melancholy case apart, this syndrome of the wandering child has become one of life's minor vexations in most communities.

In fairness, the victim of the Edmonton episode may simply have strayed as small pre-schoolers will, to become within minutes the object of anxious search. Also, in many young family blocks, it's an understood thing that the kids are going to be in and out of each other's houses all day long.

But there are wanderers of a different sort, and each settled street and new subdivision inherits its share of these blameless waifs.

They are the children of non-functioning parents. Presumably, they have beds to sleep in. But they are unencumbered by regular meal times, and they seem free to wander in a world that swarms with dangers for the unattended child.

Once I helped a sweating cab driver untangle one of these quarter-pint Huck Finns from under his taxi. By some miracle the toddler escaped with a scare and scraped knees.

Again, we went out one summer dusk to investigate a crash in our garage, and found a sturdy stranger of about five doing his best to break into a padlocked box of weed-killer, rose spray and the like. He lived "over there," an address which proved to be a long quarter-mile away.

Then there was the little girl who invited herself to dinner. She made one at quite a few tables, in fact, before she faded from our ken. She had a mother, she had a father, but she might almost as well have been an orphan.

The fact that some of these wanderers are the children of working mothers doesn't signal a general attack on a trend of our times. Most women who work to supplement a husband's income, or because they must, make provision for their children during the hours they're away.

Those who don't—and like it or not, we do have these—constitute a nuisance in whatever district they inhabit. They count on the kindness of neighbors and even persons unknown to make good their own derliection.

I don't know what can be done about the working or non-working shirker of parental duty. They can't be hauled up for contributing to juvenile delinquency, although as heaven and every policeman knows, their casual attitudes do contribute. Their communities endure them, clinging grimly to the good doctrine that every child is every adult's responsibility.

Nor do I enjoy offering so harsh a view, but as one who likes children even better than Labradors, I hate to see them short-changed by those who should be their prime protectors.

$225 Fines Levied For Driving Sins

Ronald Cooper, 20, of 2517 Graham, was fined today in central court a total of $225 on separate charges of driving while his licence was under suspension and being a minor with no insurance.

$37,000 Asked For District Parks, Beaches

Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee will ask municipal councils to approve a budget pushing the $37,000 mark this year.

Bulk of the money is scheduled to be spent in the controversial Elk-Beaver Lake area.

Victoria city treasurer James Bramley pointed out that the record budget may not win the approval of the two municipal councils involved.

He said that in previous years Victoria council had been prepared to pay $13,000 (Saanich also pays $13,000) towards the parks program.

"Council has been agreeable in the past to meeting other costs as they come along," he said. "I just point out that while approving the budget here I don't know whether it will meet with council favor."

TWO PARK PLAN

More than $21,000 of the total budget is earmarked for the development and maintenance of Hamsterly and Eagle Parks on Elk Lake and for Beaver Lake park.

The main project at Eagle Park will be the dumping of $1,500 worth of fine sand on the beach. The sand will be placed when the lake hits its year low-water mark this fall.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said Eagle Park still provided park maintnance crews.

"Each year we hire skin divers to check in-shore lake bottoms for broken glass," he said. "At Eagle Park this year they pulled eight smashed gallon crocks from the water.

"It's enough to make you sick to see that clear glass hauled out of the lake," he said.

Other major expenditures will see a new swimming raft and diving board installed at Beaver Lake park.

Mr. Warren said the old raft and diving board was removed last summer when it became a danger to swimmers.

Other business discussed at this morning's meeting saw the committee approve an application from Saanich for the use of Elk and Beaver Lakes and the Gorge parks during their Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

While approving the application the committee noted that their were no public conveniences in the Gorge Park area.

Fishermen Fined $15

Two fishermen were fined today in central court on charges of angling without a licence.

Russel Ko, 2875 Phyllis, pleaded guilty to fishing in Harris Creek Jan. 23 when he did not have a licence.

He was fined $15.

Murray Baillargeen, 2438 Esplanade, was fined the same amount when he pleaded guilty to fishing without a licence in Durrance Lake Jan. 29.

10-ACRE PARK SITE UNDER NEGOTIATION

Saanich may buy land adjoining Prospect Lake Elementary School off West Saanich Road, for a park.

Land commissioner Jack Lindsay has been authorized to begin negotiations for the land.

Subject to satisfactory price and council approval, the land will be "something" under 10 acres, said planner Tom Loney.

Locating a park beside a school has many advantages, he said, including joint use of facilities. A six-acre park beside a school would serve the same purposes as a nine-acre park away from a school.

'HOW CAN THEY?'

Aged Take Dim View Of Bus Strike Plan

Victoria Socred MLA Donald Smith's threatened strike by old age pensioners for bus passes is getting short shrift from local senior citizens groups.

A survey of local groups showed no plans for a strike or any other form of protest has been made by the pensioners.

Mainland headquarters of the B.C. Old Age Pensioners Organization also reported no protest plans.

Mr. Smith stated Tuesday night in the legislature that pensioners will "go on strike" unless B.C. Hydro sells them $1 a week bus passes wiht no restrictive hours.

But pensioners interviewed on the question seemed to take a dim view of the "strike."

"I'm not interested at all in the plan," said Peter H. Davey, president of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association.

MORE PENSION

Pensioners should aim for a $100 a month pension from the government, instead of cheaper bus rates, he said.

Secretary of the Oak Bay Senior Citizens' Group, Mrs. R. Ward, said there was "no movement afoot" for a strike among pensioners in that district.

"How can they go on strike?" asked Mrs. D. L. Faichen, secretary of the No. 5 group, Old Age Pensioners' Association.

"They don't work. They could only picket somewhere."

Plans for a strike were also denied by provincial headquarters of the Old Age Pensioners Organization.

SURPRISE

"It came as much a surprise to me as to many other people," said Mrs. Lilian Brown, of White Rock, secretary of the BCOAP.

Other members of local groups said they hadn't heard if strike plans were afoot.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, director of Senior Citizens Activity Centre, had also had no previous hint of the strike plans.

Pensioners could boycott B.C. Hydro buses, she said, which "could have some impact, as there are a tremendous number of pensioners," but a strike sounded unlikely.

"But from the pensioners' point of view would a boycott be practical?" asked Mrs. Horne.

"They've got to do their shopping and other errands."

But prices now, she said, are "awfully hard on the marginal income group."

Car Dives Head First Into Store

Drivers of downtown-bound cars witnessed a spectacular accident involving a two-ton stake truck, two cars and the side of a building shortly before 8 a.m. today.

The truck, owned by Gainer's Meat, and driven by Martin Antonson, 1653 Earle, pulled out of North Park into Quadra, was in collision with a car driven by Margaret Botteril, 3356 Oak, careened into a parked car owned by Adolphe Rochon, 866 North Park, pushing the Rochon car through a fence into a schoolyard and through the wall of property of King Auto Radio, 1816 Quadra.

Approximately $500 damage was done to the first car hit, $450 to the parked car, and $75 damage to the truck itself.

Child Suffers Broken Bone, Head Cuts

Five-year-old Katherine Harrison, 537 Ackland, suffered a broken collar bone and head cuts, when she was in collision with a car early today.

She is in "satisfactory" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said she was struck about 8 a.m. when she ran in front of a car being driven east on Gorge near Garbally. Driver of the car was identified as Ray Phillips, 856 Cowper.

Saanich Plowmen Steaming

Saanich plowmen will literally have to get up some steam if they want to compete in the Cowichan Plowing Matches April 2.

Federal plant protection officers have ordered the plowmen to steam-clean their plows before taking them out of the area affected by the Golden Nematode.

The Saanich Plowing Association has voluntarily cancelled its own annual plowing matches this year because of the infectious nematode.

Although the date for the Cowichan matches is set the Duncan area association still hasn't got a field for the event.

ENTRIES DELAYED

Cowichan association president George Braithwaite said today he will not accept entries until a field has been definitely lined up.

He said the committee is considering several prospective sites.

Mr. Braithwaite is also a member of the seven-man committee which is organizing the Dominion plowing championships to be held at the Buckerfield farm, Sumas, April 13 and 14.

He said: "We have high hopes the national title might come to B.C. in the first year the matches have been held in the province.

"Tom Hickman, Chilliwack, placed second last year and the contestants will have the best piece of ground ever for the event. It is 100 acres of the best soil perfectly level," he said.

Aldermen Blast Civil Servants Parking In Park

Civil servants snitching free parking in Beacon Hill Park came in for a blast from two city aldermen this morning.

Parks administrator Herb Warren told the city parks and beautification committee that each day 18 to 20 cars were parked in Beacon Hill Park, some of them in the parking lot in the centre of the park.

Ald. Cecil Parrott said the city should take a firm stand and protest to the provincial government.

Ald. Robert Baird agreed.

As a result a meeting will be held with the deputy minister of public works from whose department the offenders come, asking him to take disciplinary action.

There are no existing city by-laws enabling the city to take direct action against the free-parkers.

'Canada Should Oppose' Japanese Fishing Inroads

Canada should fight strenuously to prevent the Japanese from negotiating an end to the abstention principle in the North Pacific Fisheries Convention and try to bring Russia into the agreement, a provincial legislative committee was told today.

Donovan Miller, chairman of the B.C. Fisheries Association committee on international agreements, said the abstention principle is vital to safeguarding the B.C. salmon industry and all other fisheries resources as well.

He suggested disaster might ensue for Canadian fishermen if the Japanese are successful in efforts to abolish the treaty's requirement their fishermen stay west of the 174-degree longitude line (well beyond the Aleutian Islands).

(The abstention principle was at the heart of last fall's bitter controversy in which Alaska demanded the United States embargo all Japanese imports in retaliation for alleged violation by Japanese fishing boats catching salmon on the high seas while they were headed back for Alaskan spawning grounds.)

ONLY PREVENTATIVE

"That (abstention principle) is the only thing that prevents the Japanese fishing fleets from coming over on our side and fishing for salmon," said Mr. Miller.

"The abstention principle is essential to maintaining our stocks of salmon, halibut and other fish."

Mr. Miller said the Russian fleet now reported operating in the Queen Charlottes and Dixon Entrance area can't be properly controlled because the federal government has not yet surveyed a base line for establishing a 12-mile limit there. He said this should be done quickly.

"At the moment, the Russians are not fishing for salmon on our side of the ocean," he said. "They are very conservation minded and they have a treaty with the Japanese for splitting the Asiatic salmon fishery.

"They are very aware of the dangers of high seas fishing for salmon but there is no satisfactory answer yet to this question of why they are not in the North Pacific Fisheries Convention, Mr. Miller told the committee.

WHY NOT RUSSIA?

He said the question is frequently asked why Russia is not invited to join the treaty which now includes only Canada, the United States and Japan.

"At the moment, we have to bow to the experts in international negotiations who say that any one invited into an international agreement can set his own terms of entry.

"But I would hope that eventually not only Russia but all nations would be in a sound fish conservation convention covering the northern Pacific," Mr. Miller said.

The committee was told by several witnesses that the B.C. government should revive the provincial fishery department as a portfolio of a cabinet minister with a deputy minister and full staff so that it could be an authorative spokesman for all segments of the B.C. fishing industry when dealing with international or national policies.

(The provincial fishery department was dissolved and re-established as a commission after the new department of recreation and conservation was established in 1956.)

DEPARTMENT NEEDED

R. S. Stanton, manager of Pacific Trollers Association, said a provincial department should be established to "pick up where the federal fishery department leaves off and this does not mean there would have to be any overlapping."

Mr. Stanton said many factors affecting the B.C. fishing industry, such as potential pollution of water courses, cannot be adequately handled by the federal agency because they involve provincial jurisdiction.

William Harrison, chairman of the Fisheries Association, agreed and said the fishing industry is a $100 million business in B.C. and should be "recognized in a minister's title and a competent staff at the deputy minister level and lower," so it could act as a rallying point for west coast fishermen and companies.

Trans-Canada Search Seeks Bank Suspects

Police Had Them Once; Had to Set Them Free

The search spread across Canada today for two men wanted in connection with Friday night's hold-up of the Bank of Montreal branch at Fort and Richmond.

The two men were among the four persons questioned by city police Saturday but later released.

Police said today that at the time when the men were questioned laboratory reports on evidence had not been completed.

Without the lab reports police were unable to substantiate a charge and had to let the men go. Police Chief J. F. Gregory said experts at the Vancouver Crime Laboratory worked all day Sunday on the evidence.

TWO PICKED UP

He said that after receiving the lab reports Monday, city police laid charges and issued warrants for the arrest of the four men. Two of them were picked up Monday in Vancouver and appeared in central court Tuesday.

The other two still being sought are Gordon Francis Duck, 23, and Harold Robinson Coullrer, 47. Both are described as being from Eastern Canada.

Police have taken two cars into their possession. It is believed that one of them was the getaway car used by the bandits who robbed the bank.

DESCRIPTIONS

Police today said an exact audit has shown the robbers got away with $18,157 and not $19,342 as was first reported.

Police today also issued more elaborate descriptions of the wanted men.

Duck is five feet, nine inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has brown hair cut short on top, hazel eyes, a pale complexion and tattoos on both arms.

Coullrer is five feet, five inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, has a stocky build, dark brown hair, fresh complexion and brown eyes.

Gun Threat Brings Jail

A Victoria youth was sentenced today to a year in the young offenders' unit for threatening a Victoria policeman with his own gun.

Freddie Marsben Smith, 1120 McClure, was one of a trio of youths found behind the Fox Theatre the night of Feb. 6. He appeared in Central Court today.

Police were investigating reports of youths prowling in the Hillside-Quadra area.

Smith threatened to kill three officers with a gun he jarred loose from one of the officers' holsters but was subdued by Const. Ron Ferguson.

Sentencing Smith, Magistrate Ostler said he was "just a finger's twitch away from a possible murder charge."

The magistrate added that "society has tried to do something for you."

"All the agencies have been brought into play to assist you."

Radio, Brooch Taken From Apartment

The apartment of Iris Pernisie, 1046 View, was broken into late Tuesday afternoon and a transistor radio valued at $120 was taken.

Also missing was a silver brooch.

'HEAT WAVE' RECORD FALLS

Victoria Tuesday hit an all-time temperature high for Feb. 22.

The mercury at Gonzales weather station crept to 56 degrees, beating the previous high for the date of 53.5 set in 1903.

It wasn't the warmest day ever recorded in February however. That distinction goes to Feb. 8, 1963, when the thermometer recorded 60.1 degrees.

It's been a mild month all along the line, with more sunshine, less rain and no snow.

The sun has been out for 89.3 hours as against the 30-year average of 71.7.

Only 1.12 inches of rain has fallen, 1.3 inches less than normal.

Temperatures were down to 48 at noon today.

Victoria weather office predicted rain showers tonight with a sunny spell Thursday morning.

Afternoon temperatures will remain around the 50 mark.

Parks Boss Asks Motorcycle Ban At Mt. Douglas

Parks administrator Herb Warren wants the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee to ban motorcycles from the south trails in Mount Douglas Park.

The committee will make a decision on the issue following a tour of the area Saturday.

"For years we have tolerated motorcycles on the south side of the hill though we knew they were detrimental to the park," he told the committee this morning.

"I think we should ban motorbikes and block access to all vehicles on the south side," he added.

The committee, scheduled to make its annual trip of all park areas Saturday, decided to take a look at the situation first-hand before making its decision.

Mr. Warren said the motorcycles were damaging the trails.

"The trails are getting badly cut up and we should stop the use of motorcycles," he said.

Pets Denied Woman Who Failed Them

A Richmond, B.C. woman, Mrs. Josephine Webber, formerly of 919 Stafford Street, Victoria, was fined $75 today in central court for charges of failing to care for animals in her possession.

Police said at an earlier hearing that she had allowed a dog and a cat to suffer malnutrition and a bird to starve to death.

They said the animals' food dishes were covered with dust.

Giving his sentence Magistrate Ostler said "it is difficult to understand how a woman could be so devoid of compassion."

In addition to her fine Mrs. Webber will be obliged to sign an 18-month $250 peace bond. She is not to own, have the care or custody of animals for that period.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Woman and Her Purse Are Inseparable Pair

By Penny Saver

A woman would be lost without her handbag. So many odds and ends, as well as those necessary items, such as combs, lipsticks and make-up of every variety, ad infinitum, collect in these not-to-be-without accessories every day. The most perfect way to describe the items in one of these cloth or leather units is to think back a few years to one of the swinging pop tunes of that time. It was about a fellow who took his girl friend home from a date, and she tried to find her keys by unloading the contents of her bag on the poor suitor. Perhaps the satire of the song was a little harsh, but I know that I am always amazed at the things I find in my bag when it gets too heavy to carry. One day, I found a half-filled, five-pound bag of sugar in it.

Most women, fortunately, aren't that disorganized. In one shop, I found peppy shoulder bags made of leather and corduroy. These are ideal to suit the average woman's needs, as they are deep enough to hold even odds and ends resulting from a spontaneous shopping spree.

A large zipper is the highlight at the top of these bags, which sell for $8.95. This zipper has a fairly large ring attached, so that all your necessities are easily accessible to you. Colors are olive green, navy blue and black.

A smaller corduroy bag is a wonder for $5.95. This is carried by means of a loop of leather at one end. These feature the same wide zipper and are available in the same shades. The only difference between these and the shoulder bags above are the size and the method of carrying.

Clocks are items that have always fascinated me. There are so many ways to dress up a clock, it is simply amazing. I found one that is really different.

This timepiece is enclosed in a totem pole. The top carving is a pair of wings, with an owl underneath. The eyes of the owl move back and forth, in the opposite direction to the pendulum's swing. Under the bird is the face of the clock itself.

These are in brilliant shades of blue, red and yellow, with a touch of black for emphasis. They sell for $4.95.

These items are "in the bag" if you call Penny at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"My, you gave me quite a start! . . . For a moment I thought you were Cary Grant."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Are you beginning to experience that strange feeling which wells up in us at about this time every year? It's a sort of frenzied restlessness which nothing but dry cleaning, window washing, painting, floor polishing and curtain laundering will cure — Spring Cleaning!

Lowman

Women really enjoy spring cleaning. There is something rejuvenating about seeing the house take on a fresh new air to match the flowers and leaves which will be appearing soon. It's a wonderful feeling of off with the dull and on with the bright, away with the dust and on with the patina.

Regardless of how much satisfaction you get from this activity, it is a big job. It has been estimated that you will be chalking up around 10 miles a day. For a hike of that distance you need more than carpet slippers. The care you give your feet will make a big difference in the extent of your fatigue.

You can't take your house cleaning problems sitting down and so if you are going to have a leg, or two, to stand on, look to your feet before starting spring cleaning. If you follow the line of least resistance and slip into flimsy scuffs, you're finished before you start. In a few hours your weary feet will convince you that it's time to curl up in front of the TV set.

When you are working at household tasks your feet need firm support. Only a well-fitted leather shoe with sturdy low heels and pliant leather soles will provide the proper foundation for a busy day about the house. Broken-down flats will not do.

Foot specialists advise that all-leather shoes are best. The leather has pores which allow the feet to breathe and leather's unmatched suppleness adjusts to the contour of your feet, but gives you the support you need.

Then there is the safety factor. I read not long ago that there is an increase in accidents in the home during the spring cleaning season because women are on ladders, standing on chairs and slipping on steps and rugs. Low heels are safer.

At the end of a house cleaning day treat your feet to a pep-up foot bath. Mix a handful of bicarbonate of soda in warm water and soak your tootsies. Then rinse with cool water, dry and apply powder or massage with lotion. If you have a shampoo spray, douse your feet for two or three minutes with hot water, and alternate with very cold water.

If you would like to have my exercises for the arches send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

The latest in styles for the forthcoming season will be previewed Tuesday when the Junior Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital sponsors a fashion show. The McPherson Playhouse will be the setting for the event which features two shows at 2 and 8 p.m. and fashions will be from Woodward's Ltd. Discussing some of the final arrangements for the affair are, left to right, Mrs. D. Longridge, Mrs. A. H. Bamford and Mrs. W. S. Irwin.

Knitting Needles Create Styles To Challenge Wizardry of a Dior

Haute couture took an unusual trend, Monday afternoon and evening, in two shows at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. If every woman in Victoria is rushing to buy wool and knitting needles today, nobody could blame them. Both the shows featured high-style clothes, knitted by local women.

Such was the flair and finish of each dress, suit and coat that many of the audience were predicting that "greats" like Christian Dior and Chanel would soon be forced to move over and make room for our Victoria artists!

Commentator for the unusual presentations was Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor. General convener was Mrs. R. P. Stapells, of the Women's Auxiliary to the Victorian Order of Nurses, the group which sponsored the showings.

All who saw the shows were agreed that knitting has moved out of the sock and mitt class. There were many outfits that would demand notice at the most formal affairs. Often they were made of wools that owed their magic to French and Swiss craftmanship.

PETITE STAR

Often the clothes were modelled by the women who had made them. Star of the other models was a tiny tot named Katherine Stewart, who almost up-staged everyone when she made her appearance with a perky white poodle named Cherie.

The two of them trotted around the runway. Their last and most spectacular appearance was to show Katherine's blue mohair shrug-cape that was flattered to perfection with Cherie's pink coat, dazzled with silver sequins. The audience had to speed up their admiration for Cherie departed with his young mistress in an unscheduled rush that no amount of coaxing by Katherine could halt!

Mrs. F. C. Pollard modelled her own suit of Burgundy red tweed-like wool that featured a slim skirt and smart jacket that relied on a side opening and wedding ring neckline for excitement. Another point of interest was the Chinese knot buttons, made by the knitter's husband.

Mrs. F. S. McKinnon wore a masterpiece of an outfit which she had made herself. The coat was knitted and featured crocheted buttons. Opened, it revealed a matching silk lining and attractive sheath dress which Mrs. McKinnon had sewn to complete her ensemble.

One dress that would tempt any fashion writer to start scribbling copious notes was in a restrained charcoal grey shade. What zipped it to the haute couture bracket in a hurry was a wide white band that sang from the bottom of the skirt, flaunting rows of white popcorn stitches.

Formals were not forgotten in the parade of home industry. One thought of mermaids as red-haired Mrs. George Fayad drew gasps of admiration in a sliver slim sheath, long-sleeved and sporting a provocative bottom hem slit. The entire gown was knitted of sequins in sea green shade!

Another evening charmer was a two-piece white ensemble that featured a long slim knitted skirt. The bottom hem and side slit were outlined in pearls, matching the many tiny pearls knitted into the accompanying shell.

Is it fur or isn't it? This was the question that rippled around the gallery when a stole, made of mohair, was modelled. Carefully knitted, then brushed with a nylon brush, it was hard to distinguish from a mink farm's wares.

In tune with the Total Look, many of the knitters had fashioned chapeaux to complete their outfits. One outstanding creation was a side-dipping turban, subtle with draping.

MANY MODELS

Other models who helped present the off-beat shows were Mrs. R. J. Girard, Mrs. Alan Hoey, Mrs. Norman L. Kowalyk, Mrs. Jack Freer, Mrs. R. B. Young, Mrs. John Caddell, Mrs. Larry Wood, Mrs. A. E. Leonard, Mrs. Hugh A. Lyttleton, Mrs. J. O. Boyd, Mrs. A. R. Hales, Mrs. W. I. Boorman, Miss Julie Forrest, Miss Carolyn Speakman, Mrs. Colin P. Rutherford and Mrs. Gordon Soutar.

Unable to be present to show their garments but loaning their creations for the occasion were Miss Helen Ellis, Mrs. P. W. Brockie, Mrs. R. L. Horne, Mrs G. N. Straith, Mrs. Vearle Morrill, Mrs. E. G. Maddock, Mrs. Leslie C. Fritsch and Mrs. Robert Russell.

DEAR ABBY...

Boys Will Be Boys

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the members of the Retail Clerks Association, who have difficulty knowing whether some customers should be addressed as "Sir," or "Madam." I have six children and 17 grandchildren, and at my age it is hard to keep track of all their names.

Yesterday one of my granddaughters and her husband called on me. When they walked into the house they looked like twins! They both wore jeans, boots, sweaters and jackets. Their hair was exactly the same color, and their haircuts were identical. I really did not know which one was my granddaughter until they removed their jackets. What is this world coming to? It doesn't make sense when one can't tell the boys from the girls.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Be patient. As long as the boys and the girls can tell, things will work out all right.

DEAR ABBY: Thirty years ago my husband divorced his first wife who left him with a son. We were married when the boy was five years old. For the past 25 years there has been no contact between my stepson and his real mother. In two weeks my son is getting married. Only the immediate family will attent the ceremony. My husband's mother called and told me that if my son's real mother was not invited, my mother-in-law and her daughter would not attend the wedding. My husband and I feel that something that has been literally dead for 30 years should not be revived at a time like this. It would be worse than a slap in the face to us both after raising that boy along with four other children as one family. What is your advice?

OFFENDED MOTHER

DEAR OFFENDED: It is curious that your husband's mother would place you in the awkward position of either inviting your son's "real" mother (in fact a stranger) or excluding her and her daughter, too. Why? Leave the decision up to your son and his bride. It's THEIR wedding.

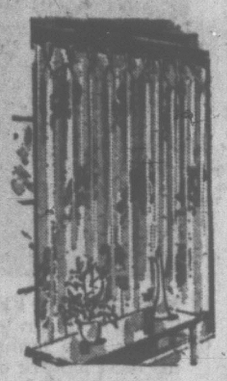

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow of 53, but I have been told that I look much younger. I am keeping company with a man of 26. My children are grown and have families of their own, and friends object to my relationship with Hugo. They think I should find someone older. Abby, I have gone with older men, but they all seem to go out with a widow for just one thing; and I spend the whole evening fighting them off. With Hugo, I don't have to worry. Do you think the age differepce is too great between us? Please be honest.

ACCUSTOMED TO HIS FACE

DEAR ACCUSTOMED: To "go with," no. But to marry, well, think ahead 20 years.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago I was taking a bath when the telephone rang. Fearful that it was news about my mother, who had been very ill, I hurriedly got out of the bathtub, and in my haste, I slipped and fell. I managed to hobble to the phone, although I was in terrible pain, and when I answered it, a woman barked in an angry tone, "WRONG NUMBER," as though it was MY fault that she got a wrong number. Then she slammed down the receiver. As a result of that fall, I injured my back and was unable to attend my mother's funeral six days later.

Every Woman May Now Quickly

LIFT HER FACE OUT OF WINTER LINES, WRINKLES and Aging DRYNESS

...thanks to the "Wiesbaden Discovery" CEF-600

Helps Every Complexion Regain and Retain The Younger Look by Immediately Counteracting Effects of Winter's Icy Grip

No matter if your skin is typed dry, normal or even oily . . . no matter whether you enjoy being outdoors or prefer indoor protection . . . both frigid arctic air and overheated dry rooms dehydrate, drain skin of water and deprive it of the necessary moisture that pushes skin up and out to keep it as smooth, firm and wrinkle-free as the day you were married. And now, during the social season, when you particularly want to look your youngest best, "old man winter" works overtime to dry out and make your skin on face and neck flabby, sagging, rough, chapped and weatherbeaten. You look and feel years older than your age. And your husband . . . it makes him feel older too!

Your Chance for a Quicker Winter Youth

Medical journals have acclaimed the "Wiesbaden Discovery" known scientifically as CEF-600 and now embodied as the active ingredient in the cosmetic-like lotion named "2ND DEBUT." Apply "2ND DEBUT" nightly before retiring and daily before make-up. Day and night, it is constantly carrying water into the skin . . . counteracting all the skin drying effects of outside cold and inside overheating that chaps, dries, wrinkles your skin and makes it sag.

How 2ND DEBUT Works Quickly

Once again skin is moisturized, fresh, dewey radiant. Once again those aging lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin on face and throat is smoother and years younger in appearance. No matter how weather beaten your complexion may be, a youth-like color glows from within. Your complexion seems to have been born beautiful. Only 2ND DEBUT can bring about this fantastic skin youthifying miracle . . . in spite of winter's drying action!

For Extra Dry Skin— Or Mi-Lady In A Hurry— 2ND DEBUT With Double Strength CEF 1200

New DOUBLE STRENGTH 2ND DEBUT contains CEF 1200 instead of CEF 600. It acts much faster to smooth and flatten skin made scaly by winter's icy grip . . . and it works quicker to push up and out the more deeply seated lines and wrinkles.

Important To Regular Users of 2ND DEBUT

Particularly in these winter months, in time will your skin revert to the lined and wrinkled condition it was, unless you keep using 2ND DEBUT day and night. Your skin is constantly exfoliating . . . old skin flakes off and away and new skin is constantly being born. In winter weather it is more important than ever that you keep applying 2ND DEBUT before retiring and before make-up if you want to retain your soft, smooth youthful looking complexion. Users of 2ND DEBUT with CEF 600 are urged to switch to 2ND DEBUT with CEF 1200 . . . double strength and to use it all winter long.

TO BE USED FOR CARE OF THE ELDERLY

Anglican Church WA Receives Large Bequest

The sum of $122,619.78 has been willed to the Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church from the estate of the late Miss Georgina Checkley, former chairman of the Diocesan Board of Niagara. Treasurer, Miss Dora Brown, reported this at the auxiliary meeting Friday in St. Mark's parish hall and said that the money will be used for the care of the elderly, as was Miss Checkley's wish.

Miss Brown also reported receipts of $835.38 and disbursements amounting to $916.92. The bank balance totals $15,902.51, and the legacy fund, $18,550.56.

In her report, Miss Gillian Clark, youth worker, said that she had visited all Island centres, meeting individual group teachers, planning workshops on visual aids. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Tredwell. This is part of the Parish Education Scheme for adults and teachers. She also reported on the need for trained and untrained staff at Camp Columbia.

Mrs. A. G. F. Sutton spoke on "handicapped crafts." She said that due to the patient help of volunteer workers and the Polio Foundation at the Arbutus Craft Centre, several helpless young people have become proficient with handwork.

She also noted that the Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild has also helped — as this is a registered association under the Societies Act, there must be at least four disabled workers on the board.

Mrs. N. W. Life gave an education report on books now available. The need for thread, toques and linen showers for the new St. Chad's home was stressed by Dorcas secretary Mrs. J. A. Andrews.

Reports were also given by Miss Nona Butts, Girls' Auxiliary secretary; Miss Edith Lucas, Comox deanery, and Mrs. S. H. Dobell, Cowichan deanery.

Also mentioned were the pre-school department of family life; a report from the Sooke Links, the WA Link at Holy Trinity Church; and the Junior Auxiliary at Alert Bay which is in need of a leader.

Mrs. H. Burrows read the scripture and Mrs. G. S. Moore, a meditation by Miss Christine Heffner.

Welcomed as new life members were Mrs. J. Hyde, Mrs. Ula Thompson, Miss B. Douglas and Mrs. R. Weston. A visitor from Saskatoon was Mrs. R. Rothney.

Card game at 1:30 p.m. preceded by meeting at 11 a.m., Emerald Rebekah Lodge No. 17, Friday in K of P Hall, 723 Cormorant St. Open to guests.

MAN STUNG TO DEATH TRYING TO SAVE DOG

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — A 42-year-old man was stung fatally Tuesday when he tried to rescue his pet dog from a swarm of bees.

Authorities said the man and an African servant managed to drag the dog clear but had to flee when the bees turned on them.

The African hid and later found his employer dead in front of the house. The dog also died.

FIVE OTHERS ARRESTED IN POWER MOVE

Eight Ministers Quit Uganda Cabinet

KAMPALA (AP)—The seizure of supreme power by Premier Milton Obote was followed today by the wholesale resignation of members of the Uganda cabinet.

Unconfirmed reports said eight members already had resigned to forestall a move by Obote to dismiss them. Five other senior ministers were arrested Tuesday on Obote's orders when he announced his assumption of all powers.

Obote, 42, announced he intended to rule Uganda through an advisory council which would be named later and that he had seized power because he believed this was what Uganda's people wanted.

All arrested ministers were moderates in the ruling Uganda People's Congress.

Obote's action followed two weeks of political infighting. This was sparked by allegations by an opposition member of Parliament, Daudi Ocheng, that Obote, Planning Minister Adoko Nekyon, and Defence Minister Felix Onama shared around $750,000 looted in gold and ivory from The Congo last year by the Uganda army.

LABOR TO BOYCOTT SOUTH AFRICA MATCHES

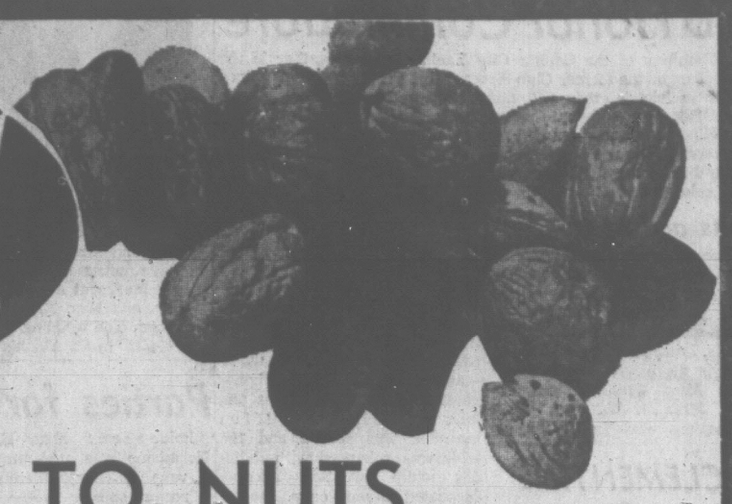

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — A National trade union organization has passed a resolution boycotting any sports team selected on the grounds of racial discrimination.

The Federation of Labor, representing 250,000 workers, took the stand today — two days before the New Zealand Rugby Union meets to decide this country's policy on future matches against South Africa, where apartheid is the national policy.

ISLAND DIGEST

School Budget Rejected

DUNCAN—City council rejected the Cowichan School Board $2.6 million budget Tuesday.

The council decided to send it back to the school board for "downward revision."

The move came on the heels of a statement by the vice-chairman of the board, Dr. Neil Dorning, who charged the budget was "grossly padded".

But board chairman, Will Dobson, said he will recommend that the trustees ignore the city protest.

Monday was the deadline for protests, he said.

"It is outside the deadline date and the council has no other form of redress.

"The city was informed of the deadline at our joint meeting."

If council had been within the deadline the budget issue would have gone to arbitration.

Trustee Dobson said if it was true, as he understood, council realized the deadline was past, its Tuesday protest was nothing but "a grandstand play for the ratepayers."

He said: "They can't be too worried if one alderman can admit he still hasn't taken the time to study what the budget is all about."

Mayor Jack Dobson after Tuesday's meeting said the reason council had not met earlier was the difficulty in getting a quorum.

Two of the four aldermen were on the sick list and one is on leave of absence.

Present at the Tuesday meeting were Mayor Dobson and Aldermen Saunders and Hamish Mutter.

Inquest Announced

NANAIMO—An inquest was to begin at 4 p.m. today into the death of Lavina Henry, 19, of Alert Bay, who was found dead in a house on Nanaimo Indian Reserve Saturday night.

WINNAH AND STILL CHAMPEEN of Ganges annual race of pancake flippers Tuesday was High School principal Jack Evans, third from left, who also won in 1965. Closest to camera is former mayor of New Westminster, Mrs. Beth Woods, now a Salt Springer, and chamber of commerce president. She came third. Susan Harcus, third from camera was second. Annual contest marks Shrove Tuesday. Those shown are in the "Business and Organizations" class — classiest of all. Mrs. Doreen Jeffrey won ladies' open. Photo is by Flett Studios, Nanaimo.

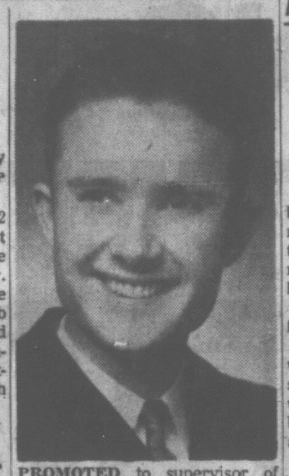

REST HAVEN ENDS YEAR IN BLACK

Rest Haven Hospital Society will meet Thursday to consider the administration's annual report and the financial statements and to elect a new board of trustees for 1966.

Some 25 officials are expected to be present. Others attending the meeting will include A. R. Spooner, of Sidney, representing the Citizens' Advisory Committee; Mrs. M. Turner, president, and Mrs. A. A. Cormack, past president, of the Women's Auxiliary to the hospital.

Administrator Thomas J. Bradley will report that the hospital finished its 1965 financial operation with a credit balance of $246, after an annual budget expenditure of $368,900 and year-end adjustments by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

During 1965 there were 1,832 patients hospitalized at Rest Haven, approximately the same as the previous year, Mr. Bradley said, but the use of the diagnostic services of the lab and X-ray departments showed substantial increases. The number of emergency and outpatient visits was also much higher.

PROMOTED to supervisor of the provincial fish and game branch's new Okanagan region is David R. Hurn, regional fisheries biologist at Nanaimo, formerly of Victoria. Mr. Hurn, a 14-year veteran, will be responsible for protection and management of wildlife resources in the Okanagan.

Drama Group Rehearsals Starting

SIDNEY — Peninsula Players have commenced rehearsals for their spring production, Hocus Pocus by Jack Popplewell.

The comedy will be presented at the Kinsmen Hall, Victoria International Airport, on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 29 and 30.

Director is Ken Smith, 10940 West Saanich Road, who is stepping out of the spotlights for the first time since he joined the drama group 10 years ago.

In the Hocus Pocus cast are Joe Fenton, who is president of Peninsula Players this year, Florence Newcomb, Margaret Dixon, Jill Cowan, Tom Boyd, Chuck Swannell, Bea Hadfield and Jo and Donna Steinicke. Rehearsals will be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings until opening night.

Museum To Get Old Chinatown Architecture?

DUNCAN—Mayor Jack Dobson suggested Tuesday some of the brightly colored Chinatown buildings might make an attractive addition to the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum.

He was commenting on the news the rest of Duncan's Chinatown is due for demolition in late spring when work resumes on the city's new provincial buildings.

Council learned Tuesday the provincial works department will open tenders in April for the second phase of building the new courthouse.

Mayor Dobson said he assumed the contracts would also include completion of the new administrative building.

DEMOLITIONS

A Chinatown hotel, several stores and older homes will be demolished and the site cleared for parking space.

Part of Chinatown was pulled down last year when the frames of the new buildings were erected.

Mayor Dobson said at the meeting: "None of the old Chinese people now living in Chinatown should be afraid they will be thrown out on the street.

"Council will give them ample time to find other accommodation."

Five Cent Levy Under Study

NANAIMO — The Centennial Committee here will invesigate the possibility of a levy of five cents per capita on residents in unorganized areas. The money would go toward financing Empire Day celebrations.

Joint Talks Planned On Recreation Bylaw

DUNCAN—The recently appointed city recreation commission wants council to back the North Cowichan Composite Recreation Bylaw March 19.

The city commission wants the municipal bylaw to commit North Cowichan to a starting date for a joint recreation complex near Duncan.

City council Tuesday agreed to ask for a joint open meeting with North Cowichan to discuss the point.

The municipal bylaw proposes spending $300,000 on an ice arena at Fullers Lake, Chemainus; setting aside $300,000 as a share of a complex near Duncan, and $100,000 as a share of a swimming pool near Duncan.

At a city council meeting Tuesday, Mayor Jack Dobson complained the municipality had never officially told them anything about the composite bylaw.

He said: "Reeve Morton isn't governing the city yet."

$6 Million Development To Tender

NANAIMO—First tenders on what will ultimately be a $6,000,000 real estate development in Departure Bay will be called this week, Frank Ney of Nanaimo Realty said Tuesday.

The firm are agents for Canadian Industries Ltd., development just outside the city's northern boundary on the waterfront.

Clearing of the 90-acre site which will eventually be a plush subdivision is almost completed and tenders will be called for ground services such as wiring, water and sewer.

A seven-acre site has been set aside for a school and land has already been sold to a church.

The reeve in his January inaugural speech said a new municipal hall would be a council project this year.

Reeve Morton said there was a municipal hall building fund which, when construction time came, should meet the cost without the need to borrow money.

He said: "We're unofficially looking for a site and expect it will be in the municipality."

The present municipal hall is situated within the city of Duncan limits.

$10 Million Grant Asked

Dowding Wants Provincial Action for Mentally Ill

An opposition member in the B.C. legislature wants a $10 million grant to aid the mentally retarded.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby) said in the house that there is a $15 million drive now underway for these unfortunates and the federal and provincial governments have been asked for $10 million.

After outlining the deficiencies of the aid program in B.C., he proposed B.C. itself contribute $10 million to the cause. He said later, part of this sum should go to the national crusade and part of it should be spent by the province here in B.C.

He said it is time for a new declaration of policy on behalf of the provincial government on the subject of mental health.

Budget Surplus Available

The member said accumulated budget surpluses of $60 million should provide ample money for mental health programs in B.C.

"People are now wondering why they can't get essential services for human beings when money is being applied to matters of only passing importance," he said.

Early detection of mental cases is a possibility elsewhere, but not in B.C., he said.

"We read of cases all the time where some sweet, innocent little girl is murdered and find out later the one who did it had a history of mental illness."

Not to have facilities where such persons can be helped before tragedy occurs is "criminal neglect," he said.

He cited a recent statement by a Vancouver coroner investigating murders by persons who should have been patients. The reason for such crimes of violence was inadequate treatment facilities, the coroner said.

No One Ever Turned Away?

"No one is ever turned away," Health Minister Eric Martin said.

But there are no facilities available for treatment of such persons, Mr. Dowding pointed out.

It is a tragedy that there are no treatment facilities for handicapped children, schizoids and dissociated youngers, Mr. here," Mr. Dowding said.

Even though 5-10 per cent of school-age children are emotionally disturbed, the government had not yet brought in a program to reach them.

"Always in the cards, never here," Mr. Dowding said.

"We are classifying as delinquent many who are in fact mentally ill. Brannen Lake has quite a few of this variety," the MLA said.

"Only one such child out of 60 is estimated to be receiving therapy. Treatment of such children should be a major priority of government," Mr. Dowding said.

A bold mental health program must be set up in every region of the province and "integrated into a universal hospital and health insurance plan." Psychiatric services must be included in community hospitals, he said.

Ambulance service also should come into the health scheme, thereby overcoming the main federal objection to it, the house was told.

"She won't let it," Mr. Martin called out.

"It's not a she, it's a he," Mr. Dowding replied, suggesting that the minister find out who the national health minister is and what the regulations are.

"It's MacEachen," someone called out.

Mr. Martin apparently was thinking of the period when Judy LaMarsh was federal health minister, before she was named minister of culture last December.

Mr. Dowding pointed out the main federal objection was that most ambulance services in the country are privately owned. If there were a publicly owned ambulance service, presumably it could be covered by medicare.

"In every one of five basic fields this government is lacking," Mr. Dowding said, referring to detection, prevention, treatment, rehabilitation "and most of all research".

"Utterly wrong," Mr. Martin replied.

Grim Reminder Of Viet War

British Columbia's record budget forecast of $569 millions in revenue was put in grim perspective Tuesday night by Randolph Harding (NDP—Kalso-Slocan).

"It would only last about two weeks for the Viet Nam war," he told the legislature.

"Just think what the United States could have done for the social and benefit of that country if they spent that kind of money on its betterment instead of bombs.

"We could have given these people a life second to none," he cried, as applause rang out from both sides of the House.

Mr. Harding said the Viet Nam war must be stopped before it touches off a nuclear holocaust that would destroy civilization.

"I don't think most people yet realize what nuclear war will mean," he said. "The damage that could be done in half an hour would take centuries to repair."

TAKING PART in weightlessness training is astronaut David Scott, pilot of Gemini 8 which is due to be launched March 15. He is scheduled to make a two-hour space walk during the second day of the flight. The weightless condition is created inside an airborne Air Force tanker. A technician stands upright while Scott appears to walk up the side of the aircraft. (AP Wirephoto.)

Fatal Fire Cause Remains Mystery

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial fire commission and provincial police, who are holding an inquiry into the fire which took the life of Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois and destroyed his official residence Monday, said today it was not caused by the heating system.

The inquiry team reported it has found the mansion's furnace intact.

They said that according to some witnesses the fire started in a cloakroom where Mr. and Mrs. Comtois, their daughter Mireille, and their two house guests had left their coats and hats on their return to the house, Bois de Coulonge, about 20 minutes before the fire was discovered.

A guard at the house told the team he smelled smoke and after a minute heard a noise which turned out to be the crackle of flames on the first floor.

The inquirers said they believe the flames began in the cloakroom, which was located near the house's main entrance.

They said, however, that the cause of the fire has not yet been established, though they believe it was accidental.

VICTORIA MLA PROPOSES:

New Children's Hospital To Solve Bed Shortages

A 200-bed children's hospital should be built alongside Queen Alexandra Solarium to solve the present bed shortage in Victoria, J. Donald Smith (SC—Victoria) told the legislature Tuesday.

He said all child patients up to the age of 15, should be treated at the new hospital near facilities for continuing their schooling during their illnesses.

"This would be an excellent centennial project for 1967," he said.

"And it would eliminate the overcrowding in Victoria for some time. Relieving 200 beds for adult cases would be a tremendous asset to Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals."

Mr. Smith also urged that the next general hospital in this area should be built at Cordova Bay, near the Mattick Farm property.

REPLACE REST HAVEN

He said it would replace Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney and could serve the entire peninsula while being in a more central location.

Mr. Smith said the government should give consideration to his hospital proposals and he criticized its refusal for the past 10 years to heed his appeals that it extend free or cut-rate bus passes to senior citizens.

He predicted that senior citizens in Victoria "will go on strike for their rights" soon for $1-a-week passes without any time restrictions.

"I advocate and advise the government that the pensioners of this province will be out on strike before too long," he said.

"I'm not prepared at this time to divulge all the plans or any of their plans."

"The grandmothers will go out on strike because they haven't had any good reason from the powers that be why they should be denied.

"This would make money for B.C. Hydro not lose it. And if it did, there isn't any more deserving group in our society than the pioneers of this country."

Mr. Smith said the budget was "the most nearly perfect in Canada" but added that he would "be more proud if our government were charged with over-care of these segments of our society.

"It would be better than being charged with under-care."

Throughout these portions of his speech, the government members remained silent and Premier Bennett turned his back to Mr. Smith while opposition members frequently applauded and urged him to cross the floor.

But the Socreds applauded his attacks on opposition "obstruction" and his claims that it was a Liberal-NDP combination that killed a government motion to convene the municipal matters committee to study air pollution.

"If they were anxious to go to work and really sincere in wanting the committee to work, they would have been unanimous for the motion.

"But they're opposed to the welfare of the people. They're really not interested in pollution control; they're just trying to pollute this legislature," he charged.

Car Raiders Fined $100 Each

Two men who stole candy, fishing gear and tools from three parked cars Feb. 10 were fined $100 each and placed on $250 good behavior bonds for a year when sentenced in central court Monday.

Douglas Ross, 3811 Cedar Hill, and Weiber Baanstra, 1745 Davie, pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing.

TRAIN RIDES ON AIR

PARIS (AP)—French engineers have successfully tested a small, propeller-driven train that rides on a thin air cushion.

The vehicle known as an "aerotrain" was driven on a short track outside Paris Monday. It carried four passengers at speeds up to about 84 miles an hour.

The aerotrain, a joint project of private industry and government, is intended to carry commuters between major cities.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

If the '20s were anything closely suggesting the sounds which bled from the set Monday, they must have been fun years.

Stephen

"The Strollin' 20s" was a recollection of Harlem as it was during the decade before the great depression.

Oscar-winner Sidney Poitier led crew and viewer alike down Harlem's Lennox Avenue, absorbing the sights and sounds of that fabulous era.

It was my kind of music and I relished every moment of what has to be regarded as one of the best musicals to grace the home screen and the video scene this season.

If there was any hint of discrimination in any viewer's mind, it was melted away by the great Duke Ellington playing Sophisticated Lady or the scintillating Rockin' in Rhythm.

It further dissolved when Diahann Carroll sang Ain't Misbehavin' with help from Sammy Davis Jr. and ensemble.

Man, there was more music and talent on display than can be found in a month of Sundays.

The beauty of viewing the show in our area was that we had the chance to catch it twice.

Channels 2 and 6 carried the hour from 9-10, with the second feature on Channels 7 and 12 at 10 p.m.

The show was created by Harry Belafonte, who also doubled as host and executive producer and who himself has been responsible for some memorable television hours.

It is at times like this that television shows a hint of the promise that it can become a great medium if given the opportunity.

Worlds in Contrast, a new Monday-to-Friday set of film series depicting wildlife, adventure and exploration around the world, makes its debut on CBC-TV March 7 at 4 p.m.

Each program consists of one or more sequences filmed by wildlife observers in all parts of the world.

One of the things the CBC does best is show films of this nature. It therefore goes without saying the 4 p.m. date each day will not be wasted.

50-CENT BID FOR CLEARING

Clearing of a site for a 240-bed mental hospital on Lee Avenue, east of Royal Jubilee Hospital, will begin soon.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant Tuesday announced award of a contract for 50 cents to Apex Demolition to remove 11 houses from the site.

"This is the lowest bid I have ever seen," said Mr. Chant. He added that the company wants to move and sell some of the houses rather than demolish them.

PAY 50 CENTS FOR $3.50 GAS

Zambian Airlift Snowballs

LUSAKA (AP)—Cars, trucks and taxis bustle along Zambian roads—all of them on gasoline costing Zambians 50 cents a gallon.

Getting the gasoline into Zambia by massive international airlift is costing the British, Canadian and United States governments perhaps $3.50 a gallon.

The airlift started two months ago when this landlocked nation's copper economy was threatened by a Rhodesian refusal to let oil pass its border. That was a retaliation by Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith against worldwide embargoes put on his rebel government.

Since then the oil lift has snowballed. Road, rail and river routes supplement the nonstop "pipeline in the sky." Eight nations—Zambia, Britain, Canada, the U.S., The Congo, Tanzania, Malawi and Kenya — are involved.

Zambia's monthly needs of 3,900,000 gallons are being met and there is enough left for it to stockpile 1,600,000 gallons a month.

INVOLVES 20 PLANES

The airlift now involves 20 planes.

Six RAF Britannias fly here from Nairobi, Kenya. Eight British civilian planes bring oil from Tanzania's capital of Dar es Salaam.

From Leopoldville, The Congo, four RCAF Hercules aircraft fly here with drums of high-octane gasoline — "a major risk to carry, paticularly in this area which is heavily subject to electrical storms," a Canadian officer commented. "But nobody seems to mind."

Using 45-gallon drums, each Hercules can carry about 3,285 gallons a tip. The four planes also can carry oil in rubber "blubber" bags holding 4,000 gallons each.

Two of the planes come from the RCAF's 435 Squadron at Namao, Alta., and two from 436 Squadron at Ottawa.

Canadian sources in the Congolese capital estimate their government pays $2,300 a day for Hercules fuel alone. Other costs are not known, except that each Canadian is required to spend $18 a day for meals, plus room rent and "other reasonable expenses."

RUNWAYS TOO SHORT

Two Boeing 707s chartered by the U.S. Agency for International Development also fly from Leopoldville, but carry oil only as far as Elisabethville near the Zambia-Congo border. Zambian runways are too short for the Boeings.

From Elisabethville the oil brought by the 707s—each carrying 144 barrels of 55 gallons each—reaches Lusaka by land route.

A British high commission spokesman has put Britain's costs at $3,000,000 a month.

Chartering the Boeings costs A.I.D. $7,500 a plane trip. The two jets total six trips a day. Each of the two U.S. airlines involved estimated to have received more than $500,000.

The price of the oil—it comes from a pool set up by Mobil Oil, Texaco, Shell and the Congolese Petrocongo and Soccetrol companies—is paid for by Zambia.

How long the airlift will have to continue is undecided. Canada recently pledged to extend its effort up to April 30, and it seems likely the U.S.-chartered flights will keep going as long.

USE 300 VOLUNTEERS

About 300 truck-owning volunteers bring gasoline from Isoka on the Tanzanian border.

Drivers hurl their five-tonners into the 1,000-mile round trip along pot-holed, muddy roads every two days for $334 a trip.

The 500-mile outward trip from the copperbelt town of Ndola takes 13 hours. Coming back, with 1,125 gallons of gasoline in drums lashed on takes 15 hours.

The gasoline reaches Isoka from Dar es Salaam and the railhead of Mikumi, which is another 500-mile trip beyond Isoka into Tanzania.

Both Dar es Salaam and Mombasa, Kenya, also send oil to an emergency railhead at Dodoma, Tanzania, and the Lake Tanganyika port of Kogoma.

From Kogoma the gasoline is shipped down the lake to Zambian berths at the port of Mpulungu, then carried by truck—including tankers normally used for carrying beer—into Zambia.

STARTS AT MATADI

From The Congo, the ground lift starts at Matadi. The oil then goes by rail to Leopoldville. While the chartered Boeings carry some to Elisabethville, the rest gets there up the Congo and Kasai rivers by barge to Port Freng, then by a winding railroad to Elisabethville.

Next stop is the Zambian copper belt, by road. Road, barge and rail routes across The Congo, currently undergoing improvement, are reported carrying about 4,000 tons of fuel for Zambia a month.

Another road route for the oil lift is from Malawi, 600 miles east of Lusaka. This is not yet fully operational but is likely to increase in use with improvements in gasoline supplies to Malawi from the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique.

It is believed in Lusaka the Zambian government plans to build up the ground routes in order to cut down the expense of the airlift.

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda has asked the British-based Lonrho Group of companies to draw up plans for a 1,000-mile pipeline from Dar es Salaam to Zambia.

Farmer Lambrick surveys open fields.

Dairy Farmer Moves From Land To Make Way for Saanich Park

For the first time in more than 50 years, A. G. Lambrick has an empty farm.

But in the years to come, thousands of Gordon Head residents will be able to rest and play in the open fields where his cattle roamed.

The former Saanich reeve and dairy farmer sold the 44-acre family farm off Torquay Drive to the municipality last September for $263,000.

A major step towards the land becoming a municipal park has taken place with the auction of his herd and dairy equipment.

Mr. Lambrick has farmed the land, from small beginnings, since 1915.

HERD DISPERSED

Now, the 50 cows, one heifer and a bull have been sold, along with all the dairy equipment — refrigerators milking machines, coolers, bottle fillers, motors and so on.

"Two garbage cans went too, but accidentally," said the 74-year-old Mr. Lambrick, a Saanich reeve of 25 years ago.

He frankly admitted to shedding a few tears when he looked across the empty fields after the herd was sold.

His affection for animals was obvious in talking of different characteristics in breeds.

And the twinkle in his eyes made it difficult to believe he is 74.

What was his prescription for sparkling longevity?

DAILY ROUTINE

"A pint of milk and three shredded wheat biscuits every day," he neither smokes nor drinks.

A sometimes-stormy Saanich reeve, he reminisced at length about his jousts with the police force and others.

But he said all this now is history and he didn't want to drag old skeletons out again.

The end of the farm won't be the end of his connection with the land. He will continue to live with his wife in their green and cream house on Torquay Drive adjoining the future park.

"I am, shall I say, free now," he said, admitting his life now will be in retirement

CORNISHMAN

Born in the Cornish coastal village of Helston, Mr. Lambrick came from a farming family.

He left home when he was 16 and went to Illinois, but returned to England. On the way he met a man from Victoria, and soon re-crossed the Atlantic arriving here in 1911.

He worked as a teamster, in the old Foundation Shipyard in the Inner Harbor as a borer, and helped make munitions in the First World War at Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street factory.

Just before he sold his herd and equipment, he was producing and selling about 160 gallons of milk a day.

Saanich hasn't had any formal discussions of the use of the land but it will become a major district park in an area where housing growth has been rapid in the last 10 years.

Everyone Talks About Election

Eight speakers took seven hours to say their piece about the provincial budget in the legislature Tuesday and most of them made at least some allusion to the possibility of an election this year.

Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark spent the most time on the subject — giving the opposition advice on how to avoid an election.

"This nervousness about an election on their part is not assumed at all but is very real," he said, singling out the Liberals.

"If they want to avoid an election, they should examine the federal government's policy about refusing construction subsidies for the Pacific Great Eastern.

"Until they do, the possibility of an election is always with us."

FREIGHT RATES

He also listed federal shipbuilding subsidies, hydro transmission line assistance, harbor development, freight rates and tariff policies as burdens to B.C.

"If they don't worry about these things, they shall have occasion to consider them in quite a different context," Mr. Loffmark said.

J. Donald Smith (SC — Victoria) accused the Liberals of voting against the bill setting up the homeowner grant and its subsequent amendments to increase the amount.

"And we'll take that to the hustings as well and tell the people about this obstruction," he said.

Randolph Harding (NDP — Kaslo-Slocan) said he and no other opposition member was afraid to face the government in an election but he warned the Socreds that an election this year would be "as unnecessary as the last federal election.

"If you pull an election this year, I'm telling you you'll find a resistance from the electors because the people all over the province are sick and tired year after year of going to the polls in federal and provincial elections."

He said the government still has half of its term to go and its election scare tactics are only hurting the province by putting people and business "on edge."

New Coalition Gov't In Italy Completed

ROME (Reuters)—Aldo Moro today announced his new centre-left coalition government and thus ended Italy's longest post-war political crisis.

Premier Moro, is a Christian Democrat. His previous coalition fell Jan. 21 over a bill to set up state-run kindergartens.

The new coalition of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans will go before the Senate to ask a vote of confidence next Wednesday.

The composition of the new cabinet showed few changes from the previous one.

Roberto Tremelloni, a Social Democrat, took over the defence ministry from Christian Democrat Giulio Andreotti, who became industry minister.

Giusto Tolloy, a Socialist, became minister for foreign trade.

The coalition includes for the first time all factions of the Christian Democrat party — including its right wing.

SELL TO WATER BOARD?

City Changes Mind On Elk Park Plan

A Victoria proposal that the Elk-Beaver Lake park area be purchased by the Greater Victoria Water District ran into heavy going Tuesday.

The proposal, carefully disguised as a call for an investigation to check the possibilities of such a move, came from Mayor A. W. Toone at a regular meeting of the Greater Victoria Water Board.

He won the right to ask chief commissioner R. A. Upward to conduct an investigation, but over the protests of Reeve Allan Cox, Oak Bay, and the obviously disenchanted Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

Even the commissioner appeared reluctant to endorse the Victoria proposal.

"I'm not so much against buying land which is watershed," he said. "But I am against having to maintain a park."

Mayor Toone said all the city was asking was that matter be investigated with Mr. Upward reporting his findings and opinions to a special water district meeting.

REJECTED BEFORE

"We did all this eight years ago," snapped Reeve Cox." It has been gone into at great length, almost to ad nauseum, and rejected. I don't think the circumstances have changed much since then."

Later in the meeting the Oak Bay reeve clashed with chairman Mayor Toone when he was interrupted while outlining his protest.

"You can say I can't speak or you can let me speak," he crackled. "You're in the chair."

Mayor Toone let Reeve Cox continue.

"It is ridiculous that the people of Greater Victoria be asked to buy this park with their water bills," he said. "Some years ago I suggested that the area be placed under the regional parks program and I see no reason to change my opinion now particularly in view of the new capital region board set up to acquire parkland. If it goes anywhere, it should go there."

But Reeve Curtis, chairman of the new board, balked at that.

"I don't think the capital region board should be spending money on land already in use as a park," he said. "That isn't the idea at all."

BUY OR REDUCE RATES

Mr. Upward said one of the basic decisions the water board had to face was "whether you want to buy parkland or reduce your water rates."

Several times during the discussion board members steered clear of mentioning the price the city might ask for the Elk-Beaver area.

"I shall need to know the price before I can conduct any investigation or make any recommendations," Mr. Upward said. "The price will be all important to me."

Ald. Michael Griffin attempted to be the peace maker.

"All we are tying to do is find the correct vehicle by which we all achieve the ends we desire," he said.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said other municipalities in the area could not expect Victoria to "carte blanche give the park and watershed away. We have a responsibility to our taxpayers who have invested a lot of money in the area."

Reeve Curtis answered that there was no suggestion that the area should be given away.

Ald. Edgelow claimed that if the water board bought the land the entire problem would be solved.

NEED WATERSHED

"If the water board had it then it could be developed as a watershed and a park for ever," he said. "I can't see anything wrong with the commissioner having a look at it. We need it as a watershed because Central Saanich needs water and we need it as a park."

Though never mentioned during Tuesday's meeting the ever present threat of Central Saanich finding a way to wrest control of the lake water from Victoria hung over the meeting.

The Central Saanich bid has already been rejected by the provincial government but the city would like to see an agreement signed and sealed before a possible loophole can be found.

Mayor Toone constantly stressed the urgency of arriving at a decision.

Reeve Curtis summed up the discussion in one crisp comment.

"The city obviously wants money for this land. This is the nub of the matter, is it not?" he asked.

Ald. Edgelow repeated his earlier statement that the citizens of Victoria deserved some compensation, but again city officials remained silent as to price.

Mr. Upward is expected to have his report and recommendations ready for the board within the next three weeks.

TUTOR IN STYLE AFTER UBC SALE

LONDON (CP) — The University of British Columbia has purchased for $270,000 a Rembrandt painting and a library of 7,000 rare books from an Oxford tutor with a taste for expensive cars, it was reported today.

Dr. Hugh Macdonald Sinclair, 56, fellow of Magdalen College, said the painting and medical books dating from the 15th century now are on the way to Vancouver. Much of the proceeds would be spent on research in nutrition.

And Sinclair, a bachelor, has purchased a $15,000 Aston Martin to park alongside the new Austin Healey 3,000 "runabout" which he uses for travelling from his home to work.

"I do not see why one should not have things again after one has worked hard for a long period and under certain financial difficulties," said Sinclair, whose salary is $1,200 a year.

Some university librarians complained they did not know the collection was for sale but Sinclair countered that he knows the books will be put to use in Vancouver, rather than sitting on shelves.

REPAYS DEBTS

An expert on nutrition, Sinclair has lectured widely and incurred heavy research debts which he now has been able to repay.

A spokesman said the books had not been offered for sale to Oxford's Bodleian library but "I would think we have most of these books in our collection." At Birmingham Medical School, a librarian said it is a pity the collection was sent out of the country.

"Many of the books would be of the utmost value, particularly to the new universities which are building up libraries."

"I did not offer the collection to the Bodleian, for Oxford, like most British universities, do not have books readily available for use," said Sinclair.

Many were stored away and that was why Oxford had missed several valuable collections—"In Vancouver, I know the books will be used.

"I would like them to have stayed here because they were like personal friends, but I am glad they will be fully used," said Sinclair, who has spent years amassing a vast collection.

WHEREFORE ART THOU?

Romeo and Juliet Surely Leaving Town Too Soon

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

One of the good things about a good Shakespearean production, whether one is a student, an experienced Shakespeare buff or a newcomer to the Bard, is the thoughts it sets in motion and the controversy that can carry on for weeks afterward.

The Playhouse Theatre Company production of Romeo and Juliet is a good production.

It is so good—as revealed Tuesday night at the McPherson Playhouse—that is a great shame it will only be repeated here tonight, after which it leaves for home, Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Playhouse, for a 2½-week run.

There is no wonder that it has been delighting audiences in the interior B.C. towns where it has been touring.

A single, rich-looking well-devised set (constructed incidentally of tubular aluminum) does what a good setting should do—complements and aids the action but never distracts or impedes it.

PLAYS UP COMEDY

It is a production that discovers more comedy than most of us who are familiar with the play, would have deemed possible.

In fact, for two-thirds of the first part, one could imagine oneself attendant at one of Shakespeare's romantic comedies.

This is one of the elements that could become subject for ensuing controversy. Was the comedy over-stressed? In particular, was the interpretation of the nurse (Candy Kane) too broad?

On the whole I think not. The unity of the play may have suffered a little but style was clear and consistent throughout and the company had no difficulty in controlling the reactions of the predominantly youthful audience.

Directors Malcolm Black and Ron Pollock have probably succeeded to a considerable extent in finding out—as they declare their intentions in a program note—what the author had in mind.

Shakespeare, more than most playwrights, was conscious of his audiences when he wrote and knew that they liked to mix tears and laughter—and lusty laughter at that.

GAINS DEPTH

Susan Ringwood develped the character of Juliet well, gaining in depth and beauty as the shadow of tragedy deepend. In the beginning she was like a crystal without facet, clear, bright and shallow.

Her movement and appearance are charming and she speaks her lines musically and with sincere feeling.

As Romeo, Neil Dainard provides us with a poetic, convincing image of youth in love with love, soaring to heights of ecstasy as swiftly as he is plunged to unutterable depths of despair.

A brilliantly effective performance by J. C. Juliani as Mercutio dominated every scene in which he was involved and his most moving and realistic death left his audience, and the stage, bereft.

Notable also, in this good company, were Alland Dobby as Capulet, Edward Greenhalgh as Friar Laurence, Gregory Reid as Benvolie and, of course, Candy Kane.

Other virtures of an absorbing production were the lavish costumes, real excitement of the sword fights and the fact that the entire performance was blessedly audible.

$20 Bills of 1937 May Be Worth $25

A bumper bundle of old $20 bills, which turned up on the doorstep of Victoria Salvation Army hostel Monday, may be worth more than originally thought.

Said Brigadier Ronald Frewing today: "We are having the bills examined to see what they are worth. There's a chance they may be worth $5 more than face value."

That would make the Army better off to the tune of $1,400 instead of $1,120.

For inside the jelly box left by the postman were 56 King George VI $20 bills of 1937 vintage.

The Army won't be able to spend its windfall just yet though. Police are still checking to make sure the money, bearing a Langford postmark, isn't a relic of some past crime.

Only clue to the sender was provided by Langford postal assistant, Mrs. Irma Hill, 481 Thetis Crescent.

She remembers a man in his 50s depositing a parcel with her last Friday. A return address on the outer wrapping had been scratched out.

"But I don't remember anything else about him," she said. "I'd never seen him before."

Brig. Frewing said the money, which is still legal currency, will go towards the annual money-raising Red Shield campaign.

Biography Cleared

NEW YORK (AP) — The widow of author Ernest Hemingway has lost in an effort to bar publication of a forthcoming biography of her husband. Supreme Court Judge Harry Frank Monday denied Mary Hemingway an application for a temporary injunction against publication of a book entitled Papa Hemingway by author A. E. Hotchner.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Danny Gray, age 10, of Huntington Beach, Calif., for his question:

When was the first United States census taken?

The key factor in a democracy is that its government represents all the people on a fair basis. This noble idea was the cornerstone of the U.S. Constitution when our young Founding Fathers were setting up sensible rules and regulations for our democracy. The number of representatives had to be based on the number of people and to make this possible it was necessary to know exactly how many Americans there were.

A national census or people counting was ordered right there in Article 1 of the Constitution. It was to be completed three years after the first meeting of Congress and every 10th year thereafter. The first U.S. census took place in 1790, and our government has taken a census of population once every 10 years since that time. The last was in 1960 and the next will be in 1970.

The first census was a far cry from the up-to-date one of 1960. The job was done by 17 marshals and their assistants. They merely counted the number of people and added no names or extra data. After nine months, they had counted 3,929,214 human heads and their job was done—at least for the next 10 years.

Task Grows More Complex

The counting job became more interesting and more complicated through the years. In 1850, Americans were required to give their names, ages and birth places to the census takers, who wrote this down along with whether they were male or female. The first government census report was published in a 56-page booklet, but year by year the reports grew longer.

Between the population census, other years were set aside to gather other data, and today almost every year requires some kind of census-taking. In 1964, interviewers from the Bureau of Census went out to get data on farming and a farm census will be taken again in 1969. Every fifth year there is a census of trade and industry. Every 10th year ending in nine there is a census of our drainage and irrigation.

The modern census taker is called an enumerator, and 160,000 of these government workers were needed to do the population census of 1960. The Bureau of Census is not idle, even during years when no nation-wide counting is done. Interviewers are constantly making spot checks to keep the data up to date, and 600 people are always on hand to give this information to the public.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Lorna Lennox, age 10, of Thornhill, Ont., Can., for her question:

How can they tell the age of a river?

No river winds a straight course to the sea. The edges of its taffeta skirts swish this way and that as the stream bends and loops around low hills to find the downward-dipping slopes. Sometimes it pauses to fill a hollow and creates a little lake. Through the years, the running water shifts the dirt and weakens the rocks along its banks. As it goes, it changes the ground through which it flows.

Sometimes it builds up piles of dirt in its own path. It must change its path to flow around them. Sometimes the earth changes and the river must take a different course. Experts can trace where a river used to flow and when it changed its path. They can figure how long it took the stream to dig its bed and its banks in the earth. These are some of the facts that help a geologist to figure out the age of a river.

PAIN PIPES PAIN AWAY? Dr. Rodney Pain is a San Francisco dentist from Scotland who plays the bagpipes for his patients while waiting for the filling to set. He even pipes waiting for the anesthetic to take effect. So far there have been no complaints from the patients, some who attend his bagpipe classes Friday afternoon. (AP Wirephoto.)

Fracture of Hip Can Prove Problem

By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ

When a woman of 50 or so falls heavily and breaks the top of her femur (long bone in the thigh), she can have a mild trouble, easily repaired by a good orthopedic surgeon, or she can have a very serious trouble that is hard to cure.

Alvarez

If the fracture is several inches below the top of the femur, the two fragments of bone can be nailed together and soon the woman will be up and about. But if the fracture is just below the globular top of the long bone — the globular part that fits into the acetabulum (the cavity of socket in the hipbone in which the globe rotates) — the globular part, deprived of its blood supply, may die. Then the woman's only hope will be that after taking out the globular part, the surgeon can fit onto the upper end of the thighbone a prosthesis — a replica of the injured piece of the bone, made out of metal.

If this replica fits well into the upper end of the thighbone and gets well stuck to it, then the woman may be able quickly to walk again. Unfortunately, in some cases the prosthesis does not stick on well, or perhaps a few bad germs get in, and then the result is not good.

People ask me what happened to DSMO. What caused that very interesting drug to be withdrawn from the market? As people may remember, this drug is derived from wood, and has many remarkable properties. What happened was that it was found to be causing changes in the lenses in the eyes of the dogs, rabbits and swine to which it was given. Now, anyone who experiments with the drug on man knows that he must keep watching out for possible changes in the eyes of his patients. There still is no assurance that these unwanted side effects will not occur in man.

Many people ask me if the drug has been shown to have value, and the answer is that it apparently is promising. It has been used in the treatment of acute strains or sprains, and for severe rheumatoid arthritis. It is a good solvent for other drugs; it penetrates the skin, and it has been used in the treatment of a number of skin diseases; also arteriosclerosis. The drug cuts down on perspiration; it is a tranquilizer, a kidney stimulant, and a local anesthetic.

Men will go on giving the drug to people, but only men who will watch carefully for eye damage.

Meeting Banned

BERLIN (Reuters) — The Western Allies Monday banned a Communist party congress due to be held Friday in the British sector of West Berlin, an Allied military spokesman said. He gave no reason for the ban, but informed Western sources in Bonn said the decision was to prevent student demonstrations against the Communists.

Famed Alpinist Dies

ALAGNA VALESIA, Italy (AP) — Guglielmo Guglielminetti, 94, the oldest guide of the Monte Rosa and one of Italy's great alpinists, died here Saturday. Guglielminetti made many treacherous climbs up the Monte Rosa, Mont Blanc, the Matterhorn and the Jungfrau during a career that lasted almost half a century. He retired 20 years ago.

Marijuana Warning

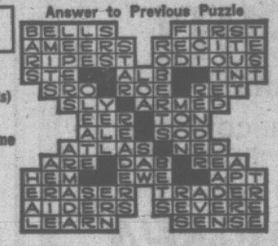

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pamphlet informing students of the dangers of marijuana will be distributed in Vancouver schools. School trustees have approved a request by H. F. UBC STUDENTS HOPE TO GET WEATHER DATA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three University of British Columbia science students and a federal government biologist hope to convert sound signals from a U.S. satellite into pictures that will help forecast B.C.'s weather.

They have built an antenna and a receiving set in a former Royal Canadian Air Force building at Vancouver airport, and they hope to receive signals from the U.S. weather satellite Essa II, to be launched Friday.

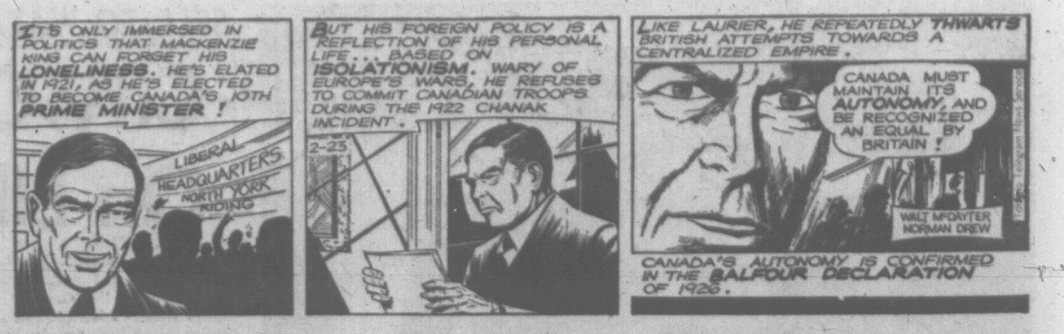

The sounds will be fed into a facsimile machine which will produce a weather picture every three minutes.

Working on the project are students David Sloan, Donald Intihar and Peter Kuitj, and biologist Bryan Frazer.

"We hope to get pictures from an altitude of 200 miles," Mr. Frazer said.

The pictures will show cloud formation and other data over an area 2,000 miles long and nearly 1,000 miles wide.

Water Problem Easily Solved In Metchosin

East Latoria Road, Metchosin, can solve it fresh water problem this spring if residents form their own water district.

The area, hard hit last summer by an outbreak of hepatitis which was traced to well water being used for domestic purposes, has asked the Greater Victoria Water District Board to extend existing mains to relieve the problem.

Chief commissioner R. A. Upward said such a move, costing in the region of $18,000, would be too costly. He pointed out that provincial public utilities regulations require the board to recover the cost of such installations over a set period of time.

"The residents of the area just can't afford to pay the price we would have to charge them," he said.

The approximate cost to householders should the water district do the work would be $36 a month over a six-year period.

ALTERNATIVE

Mr. Upward said an alternative would be for East Latoria Road residents to form their own water district and purchase water from the Greater Victoria system for redistribution.

Residents would install their own pipelines and fixtures.

Private water districts can be formed under the Water Rights Branch.

Trustees are elected in the area to decide what is needed in the way of pipelines, issue debentures guaranteed by the province then build the system. The province collects debenture charges through the tax rolls while operating costs are raised by selling water for more than the purchase cost.

If the 14 families on East Latoria Road decide to go along with Mr. Upward's suggestion they will pay the Greater Victoria Water District 24 cents a 1,000 gallons for water used.

"I hope Central Saanich takes note of the rates," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "We have heard so many screams from out there regarding the city's proposal to charge them 11 cents per 1,000 gallons. I hope they hear this loud and clear."

LYNCH
. . . must teach answers

CHINA SAYS:

'Hatred Best Weapon To Govern'

CHICAGO (AP)—A Canadian journalist said Tuesday China freely admits that "hatred of dirty, capitalist American aggressors" is the best instrument it has to govern its 700,000,000 people.

Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services, spent three months in China last year.

Addressing a session of the Inland Daily Press Association, he said Chinese Communist officials told him:

"In the Western world you can afford the luxury of allowing every one to make up his own mind about the world.

"We cannot afford to let people make up their own minds about things. The party apparatus must teach the answer to such problems. 'Hate imperialism' is one such answer."

Lynch predicted that through the offices of the Canadian government, communications between the United States government and Peking very soon "will be opened for the first time in 18 years."

Spain Fights Poverty

ALGECIRAS, Spain (AP) — Spanish officials unveiled a six-year development plan Tuesday for the poverty-stricken area around British Gibraltar. The government will extend broad benefits to private concerns that develop housing, industries, schools, tourist attractions and water systems in the region, where average individual income is $183 annually.

REMOTE DESERT CANYON HOME TO 300

Little Hope for Future

MECCA, Calif. (AP)—Broken-down autos, dilapidated house trailers and tattered shacks mark the homesites of squatters who have occupied a remote southern California desert canyon for the winter.

The squatters — about 300 strong—live on Indian and government land, have no nearby water, no sanitation facilities and little hope for the future, the Los Angeles Times reported.

The men, women and children have chosen to winter by the steep sandstone cliffs on an old Indian reservation in Box Canyon, about six miles from this small community.

Water is hauled in by the bucket and jugful, picked up 20 miles north at drinking fountains in Coachella City Park.

Meals are cooked over open fires of mesquite wood, and candles are used for light.

The families include farm laborers, pensioners and drifters.

The pensioners said they went to Box Canyon because their "social security is too little."

The one sign of civilization is the school bus that passes through the canyon daily to pick up the children.

Ralph Catron, 22, his wife, Joan, 21, and their two children have been living in a 1956 station wagon for weeks.

Catron explained: "We came down from Stockton (Calif.). The car is our home, everything we own, except for the old mattress, a couple of blankets, the rags on our backs, the crate of potatoes and a quarter of milk for the baby.

"I make $25 a week in the fields. I've looked all over for a job. I never went to high school. But I am a good mechanic's helper. I can't find work."

U OF A EDITOR TO BE PAID

EDMONTON (CP) — Both the president of the University of Alberta Students' Council here and the editor of the campus newspaper will receive salaries next year, the council has decided.

Salaries will range from $2,100 to $3,300, Eric Hayne, council secretary-treasurer, said Tuesday.

The amount paid will be decided each year by a committee, according to the annual published cost incurred by the first-year arts students, he added.

Army Coup Succeeds In Syria

BITAR

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Left-wing army officers in Damascus overthrew the Socialist government of Syria before dawn today, arrested government leaders and closed the country's borders and communications.

It is not clear whether the coup was bloodless or not.

News of the coup d'etate—the 15th since 1949—was broadcast by Damascus radio in a series of communiques that indicated the rebels plan to speed up the country's march toward socialism.

Army units seized power at 3 a.m. by arresting Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian head of state and chairman of the presidency council, Prime Minister Salah Bitar and Defence Minister Gen Mohammed Omran.

(Reuters news agency said Aleppo radio announced that negotiations aimed at ending the crisis were taking place between the coup leaders and the international leadership of the Baath party.)

OPPOSITION MOUNTS

As military communiques announced the coup, opposition was mounting in northern Syria. A radio broadcast from Aleppo in the north, Syria's largest city and its business capital, declared the army garrison there was against the rebellion.

The military garrison in the central Syrian city of Hama also was reported against the Damascus coup.

The Aleppo broadcast demanded that power be handed back to the old regime, with Hafez as head of state and the international command of the Baath party as the government.

Damascus radio said the coup was a shuffle of power inside the ruling Arab Baath (reawakening) Socialist party that came to power itself in a rebellion in 1963, but the list of those arrested indicated the Baath regime had actually been obliterated.

The rebel command, calling itself the "temporary command of the Baath party," said party founder Michel Aflak also was under arrest along with party Chief Mouniff Razzaz.

THEY'LL BE 'CRUSHED'

Broadcast communiques said Hafez and the others would be brought to trial and "crushed." They were denounced as "rightists" who had betrayed Syria's Socialist revolution.

The communiques did not identify the rebel commanders.

SPECIAL EMISSARY TALKS VIET PEACE

MOSCOW (UPI) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent a special emissary today to confer with a North Vietnamese official at their embassy here on peace for Viet Nam.

British Disarmament Minister Lord Chalfont, who accompanied Wilson here for talks with Soviet leaders, spent several hours with North Vietnamese charge d'affaires Do Phat Quang. Hanoi's ambassador to Russia was away from Moscow.

Details of the unscheduled talks were not immediately available, but sources said the conference was requested by the British to discuss Viet Nam.

Wilson, who met again today with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, has made numerous appeals both to Kosygin and other Soviet leaders for co-operation in reconvening the 1954 Geneva convention on southeast Asia to take up the Viet Nam conflict.

All his efforts so far have been rebuffed by the Soviets who told him it is for the United States to talk to the North Vietnamese directly.

FIREWORKS FIRM

Plant Ripped By Explosion

DUNBAR, Pa. (UPI) — An explosion ripped a fireworks plant where workers were filling sky rockets and Roman candles with powder today, killing five women and injuring seven other women and a man.

Three of the injured women were hospitalized. Four women and the man were treated and released. The condition of those detained at the hospital was not know immediately.

The owner of the plant, Bedy Liza, 74, collapsed after hearing news of the blast and also was hospitalized.

The blast occurred in a one-storey frame assembly building of the Keystone Manufacturing Co. The walls of the specially constructed building were designed to cave outward in event of a blast.

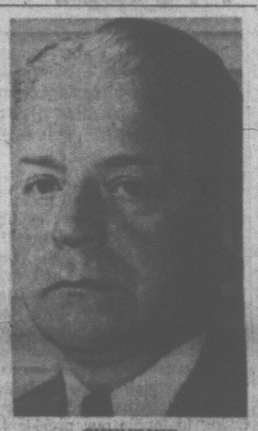

"We just don't know what happened," a plant employee said. "The women were filling rocket tubes with powder, and then—wham—the building went up."

BUILDINGS DAMAGED

The dead had been working in the same structure. Five other frame buildings nearby were damaged, and the blast could be heard three miles away. The injured had been working in the other buildings.

Police at first said all six women in the assembly building were killed, but one of the blast victims was found still to be alive when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The plant, which produces only fireworks, was in the midst of its busy season, preparing an inventory for the Memorial Day and Fourth of July holidays. About 50 persons, most of them women, were employed at the plant.

Canadian Selected As Chairman . . .

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth sanctions committee on Rhodesia met today and named Canada's high commissioner, Lionel Chevrier, as chairman of this and future sessions.

The 20 delegates—representing all Commonwealth countries except Ghana and Tanzania—gathered at Marlborough House amid persistent reports that an oil embargo on Rhodesia is being foiled to some extent by shipments from South Africa.

Chevrier's selection as chairman was significant in that a debate over who should preside arose at the first meeting Jan. 25 of the committee, established by an emergency conference on Commonwealth prime ministers at Lagos.

A communique at the end of today's 2½-hour meeting said merely that the committee "examined the progress of sanctions and agreed to keep the matter under continuous review both in further meetings of the full committee."

Body Found In Trunk Of Auto

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sought to establish today whether there is any connection between the revolver-slaying of a lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases and government efforts to stamp out a bankruptcy racket.

Investigation of the shooting of Francois Payette, 36, was being carried out amid reports that he was slain before he could turn over to police evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

The slaying recalled statements made last fall by Justice Minister Wagner when police were smashing a widespread arson racket in the province. At that time, Mr. Wagner said at least seven persons and perhaps as many as 12 had been killed in an underworld attempt to stop disclosures about the arson racket.

Four lime-covered bodies were recovered last fall in an area south of Quebec City. Later a fifth body was recovered in the Lake St. John district.

Five men have been found criminally responsible by coroner's juries, but none has yet come to trial.

SHOT FOUR TIMES

Detective-Captain Roland Jodoin of Montreal police said Mr. Payette, found in the trunk of his car Tuesday in the city's northend, had been shot four times.

Capt. Jodoin said he could not comment on a possible connection between the killing and a bankruptcy racket.

He also declined comment on published reports that the dead lawyer had been on his way to keep an appointment Tuesday with city police officials to turn over evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

But he said:

"We have taken Mr. Payette's files from his downtown St. James St. office and are examining them at headquarters."

LAST SEEN SATURDAY

Mr. Payette, a civil lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases, was last seen by his family about 9:30 a.m. Saturday. He left home following a phone call to meet someone in a restaurant.

His wife reported him missing early Sunday and a search began for his car. It was found on Laverdure Street by a motorcycle policeman Tuesday.

Payette's body was in the trunk, frozen by the weekend sub-zero temperatures. There were no identification papers on the body.

Neighborhood residents said the car had been parked there for three days.

INCREASES PRESSURE

The Quebec government started its drive on phoney bankruptcies in 1962 and the pressure has been increasing since.

Special investigators were appointed to study and report on ways to stop the racket. One of the investigators was Gerard Laganiere, now a judge but formerly deputy chief crown prosecutor for Montreal.

Less than a year ago Mr. Laganiere said that phoney bank-

SILENT HOUSE LISTENS

'Mind, Brain of Premier Only Real Danger to B.C.'

By JOHN MIKA

Premier Bennett was the target Tuesday of one of the most caustic attacks ever heard in the legislature. He didn't hear it but he'll read it.

Vancouver) poured vitriol at his empty seat, then told the silent house he would send the premier a copy of his remarks.

Mr. Gibson said the premier was so power mad that he used "exactly the tactics of Huey Long, of Al Capone, of Hitler and of Castro" to buy and bully voters."

He said the premier thought he was a god but "he isn't some one we must pray to."

Mr. Gibson accused the premier of "stinking, rotten, low" whispering campaigns, threatening voters, intimidating university and hospital administrators and municipalities.

He also squashed a heckle by recalling that he had touched off the Forests Minister Robert Sommers case and warned that it was still not finished.

There were only two interruptions.

After he said the only "real danger (to the province) is the mind and brain of the premier," Deputy Speaker William Speare stopped Mr. Gibson and told him there were to be no further personal attacks.

"I thought it was the government I was talking about, because Premier Bennett is the

Dynamite Found

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Sheriff Mel Bailey said today a cache of dynamite found in the woods may lead authorities to the dreaded "Birmingham Bombers" who blew up a church full of Negro children in 1963 and scattered time bombs around the city last year.

Vancouver Deaths Attributed to Flu

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors today blamed the flu virus sweeping the Lower Mainland for the deaths of two young people in hospital.

One of the victims was Susan Browne, 12, a Grade 7 student, who became ill Monday and was taken to hospital. Heart failure was given by her doctor as the direct cause of her death, but it resulted from being "overwhelmed" by the flu bug. An autopsy is being performed.

The other was a 17-year-old Grade 12 high school pupil whose parents asked not to be identified because of another illness in the family.

His father said the boy had "never had a cold in his life" but became ill Tuesday and died in hospital a few hours later. The family doctor attributed death to viral pneumonia.

Meanwhile Dr. G. A. Mott, city assistant medical health officer, said there is no thought of closing schools in the area, despite absenteeism from some classes of up to 32 per cent because of the flu.

Teachers as well as pupils are being affected. The Vancouver school board Tuesday could not find enough regular substitute teachers to replace those felled by flu. Some of the substitutes themselves were stricken.

Health authorities in Victoria said today the flu virus has apparently not reached this area.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for Greater Victoria said there may be one or two cases of flu "but not from Vancouver."

"There has been no increased absenteeism in schools, which would indicate the virus has not hit here," said Dr. Whitbread.

Thailand Next Victim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara said today a Communist victory in Viet Nam would set loose Chinese attempts to foment violent revolutions throughout "all of the underdeveloped world."

Peking already has named Thailand "as its next victim," he said, and is creating the apparatus for a so-called "war of national liberation" in that country.

TESTING SOVIET MANNED MOON SHOT

Flying Pups Higher Than Anyone

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two dogs are spinning around the earth in a Soviet satellite today in a move expected to help space scientists decide whether they need to send dogs to the moon before men.

The dogs, Veterok (breeze) and Ugolyok (little lump of coal), apparently are flying higher than man or beast has ever been—some 550 miles. They soared into space Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110.

The highest-flying Soviet cosmonauts, Pavel Belyaev and Alexei Leonov, were about 310 miles above the earth at the high point of their orbit aboard Voskhod 2 in March last year.

Another cosmonaut, Gherman Titov, said recently scientists would have to send dogs to the moon before man could land there. But Russia's first spaceman, Yuri Gagarin, disagreed with him.

Though Russia orbited a number of dogs between 1958 and 1961, this apparently is the first time a Cosmos satellite has been used.

There never has been any information whether the Cosmos satellites are brought back to earth, but Western space experts say they usually orbit for about eight days and then return.

Soviet space scientists can almost certainly study the dogs' reaction to their flight by means of data radioed back to earth. But they are thought likely to want to see whether the flight has any permanent effects, including that of cosmic radiation.

'MAKE FRIENDLY APPROACH'

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomp son, Canadian-born publisher, today pleaded with the West to show greater friendship and accommodation towards the Soviet Union, maintaining that the gap between communism and capitalism has narrowed sharply and that the Kremlin has no intention of initiating a war against the West.

"I am firmly of the opinion that almost no development short of an actual attack on them could cause the Soviet Union to go to war with us," Thomson said in a European Club speech.

"Let us make some genuine friendly approaches to them with the determination that they shall succeed and that the difficulties between us shall be minimized."

THOMSON
. . . Reds envy us

Thomson, who conferred with Soviet Premier Kosygin last year, maintained that remaining Soviet hostility towards the West results partly from envy over capitalist achievements and partly from the need to maintain Communist world leadership. If the Kremlin lost this leadership to the Chinese, "this would be a great disaster for the world."

From his own talks with Soviet officials, he said, it appeared possible Soviet disputes with the Chinese over their long border might result in bloodshed. He was convinced top Soviet officials were deeply concerned with the Chinese problem.

As for the Soviet Union's own system, he believed it was moving gradually towards private ownership.

VANCOUVER — Boiled as a Boot wants to stay that way.

Boot, hero of a skid road hotel fire Friday in which he rescued six elderly men, had this message Tuesday for his admirers:

"Tell them to quit buggin' me. I just want to be left alone."

His real name is Jaydee Dymons, but he told police after the fire his name was Boiled as a Boot. He has been swamped since his rescue effort with offers of money, clothes and jobs. But he doesn't want them.

"I'm a happy lush who wants to stay that way. I just want to be left alone. When I want to get a job, I'll get one. Not until. So tell people to quit buggin' me."

Boot made his plea in a city newspaper office and was later driven back to the skid road area.

"I'm going to drink all night and I'll be happy," he said as he got out of the car. "As long as I'm left alone."

LONDON—A man in perfect health has been admitted to between 300 and 500 hospitals and had 15 abdominal operations during the last 15 years, a psychiatrist reported today.

The man, a 29-year-old truck driver, is one of six surgery addicts who have cost Britain $300,000 in unnecessary treatment, Dr. John Barker wrote in the British Journal of Clinical Practice.

The doctor, a hospital consultant, studied the six addicts—people who tell lies about their condition to keep going to hospitals—since 1957.

Barker said hospitals should be given more up-to-date information on these addicts, whose condition is not mentioned in surgical reference books.

MELBOURNE—A street car operator admitted in court he was reading a book on road safety when his trolley smashed into the back of a stationary car. Earland Robert Gillow, 32, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of having driven a street car in a dangerous manner, was fined $20.

LOS ANGELES—Rev. William H. DuBay, the rebel priest who once asked the Pope to remove Los Angeles' archbishop, has come up with a new idea: A collective bargaining union for the 58,000 Roman Catholic priests in the U.S.

"We need an American federation of priests just as teachers need their American Federation of Teachers — because priests, like teachers, are employees," says the chaplain of St. John's Hospital.

Through collective bargaining, he says, "priests can arrive at a formal contract with their chancery on the issues of professional standards and rights, personnel practices and wages."

He favors AFL-CIO affiliation, but: "We can hardly ask the AFL-CIO to charter us until we get our union off the ground. Only priests can organize priests."

2 Students Wounded In Jakarta Protest

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Two students were wounded today when government troops opened fire and the United States flag was pulled down at the American Embassy as rival pro- and anti - government demonstrations broke out in the Indonesian capital.

The flag was ripped down by students affiliated to the National party, which backs President Sukarno, amidst disturbances which followed a cabinet reshuffle by Sukarno Monday.

The two students were wounded when troops opened fire on anti-government demonstrators of the powerful Students Action Command (Kami) as they tried to reach President Sukarno's palace.

Armored cars were brought up against the students who climbed over them shouting "hang Subandrio" (the foreign minister), "dissolve the Communist party," and other slogans. Some were armed with knives and daggers.

CLIMB OVER FENCE

Meanwhile, a rival group of students climbed over the high iron fence in front of the U.S. Embassy shouting "go home Yankees" and "to hell with Green"—U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green. They then tore down the flag.

Some of the 300 demonstrators stayed outside the fence bearing placards which read "long live President Sukarno" and "Green trying to topple our president."

Police fired warning shots into the air dispersing the demonstrators.

ruptcies in Quebec have developed over the last 30 years into a $100,000,000 racket. He estimated 85 per cent of the racket was concentrated in Montreal.

There has been a quiet, but steady procession of cases through the Montreal courts.

The Quebec government may act at the current session on recommendations made by Lucient Mercier, internal auditor of the revenue department who reported last August on a 10-month investigation into bankruptcies. He recommended changes in various laws to make it tougher for the fly-by-night bankruptcy operators.

Mr. Mercier found the method of the rings was to form a company, buy goods on credit, sell them and then dissolve the firm.

"These adventures usually proceed by incorporating a series of many companies," Mr. Mercier said. "We traced as many as 60 companies in one ring, the operations of each company usually lasting only a few months."

"By astute means the first company buys on credit all that it can possibly acquire. These goods are sold at minimum prices to other companies in the ring and these specialists in fraud appropriate the receipts in different ways as soon as they are paid in."

Once the merchandise was sold the company went into bankruptcy. The remaining goods were sufficient only to pay costs of the federally-licensed trustee charged with supervising the bankruptcy. There was never enough left to allow the creditors to open an inquiry.

MAC-POWELL APPEALS SALES TAX DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced Tuesday it will appeal a supreme court decision regarding a company appeal against a provincial sales tax assessment.

The company protested an assessment of $8,541,000 tax on 39,000 acres of some 139,000 acres that were purchased from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway in 1964.

Macmillan Bloedel contended the government should have assessed the entire property at one time, not just a portion of it.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer dismissed the company's appeal Monday.

In a statement issued Tuesday, the company said it does not dispute its liability to pay the tax, but objects to the method of assessment.

government," shot back Mr. Gibson.

Later, Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan protested the language used by Mr. Gibson would not be tolerated in any legislature in the country.

"There are two sides to this coin," replied Mr. Gibson. "I didn't hear you say that last year when I flattered him — and you knew it wasn't right. Take the bitter with the sweet."

The Liberal member said in last year's budget debate he had suggested a monument should be raised to the premier atop the Peace River Dam.

"But, for his actions Friday night I will rescind that. I am going to build him a cage to wander around in, up there."

(He was referring to an incident in the speaker's office where the premier was reported to have threatened a snap election when the speaker disagreed with him over a procedural matter.)

"Last Friday night in this house I witnessed the most arrogant, childish display I have seen in my life," he said. "The premier seemed like a man who had lost control of himself and was in no position to hold the honored position of premier.

"It was just another display of either his or the government's lust for power — if he couldn't have his way about house rules, he acted like a little baby, like a kid."

Mr. Gibson opened his speech with sarcastic references to the fact the premier frequently leaves his seat during a session.

"It seems that whenever a backbencher speaks, the premier is here. He seems to love flattery.

"But when a little opposition comes in from this side of the house, he doesn't want it.

"That's what he's paid to listen to but he doesn't want it.

"I'm very sorry he's out of his seat now for a cup of tea. If he doesn't come in I'll send him a copy of my speech."

Mr. Gibson said when the Social Credit government was formed, "they would have done much better if the minister of highways (P. A. Gaglardi) had been premier instead of the one we have had. That's my honest thought and it's not very flattering to the minister of highways either."

When Waldo Skillings (SC — Victoria) tried to heckle, Mr. Gibson recalled the Sommers case in which the Socred minister went to jail for accepting bribes.

He pointed out that several other charges involving others in the case resulted in hung jury findings but were never resolved by being tried again.

"Even the judge said the case wasn't over — that there should be more evidence brought in and charges by the attorney-general. But that wasn't done.

"Well, I'm just as happy because a great many more people would have been involved."

Mr. Gibson said the premier talked as though the budget was his money and not the people's.

"There is enough money (in the budget) to do all the things that are needed in B.C., but instead of this, the money is being spent with only one idea — how will it get more votes?

"Apparently the only thought for the old aged and the sick is — why bother? they may be dead before the next election."

"This government has bought all the votes it can in the north of the province and on Vancouver Island," he said.

Mr. Gibson claimed that Premier Bennett would not build a bridge across Burrard Inlet because he was holding the motorists "for ransom, like a kidnapper."

He said the daily frustrations of drivers caught in traffic jams was counter-pointed by "dirty, ugly rumors going around every cocktail lounge and beer parlor and in so-called society groups in West Vancouver — 'If you want a bridge, learn how to vote. Get rid of Gibson.' "

"Get two more political puppets, get two more Bennett-branded sheep. How low can politics sink when people can no longer pick the party of their choice."

Mr. Gibson offered to resign if it meant that Premier Bennett would build a second crossing.

He said that the premier acted only "for the benefit of his party or from political greed" and claimed that from the start of his political career he had worked to bring everyone to his heel.

but they appeared to be a group of extremist officers and politicians known as "the Young Turks" who have advocated a speedup of socialism.

Their leader is Maj. - Gen. Salah Jedid, former chief of staff of the army who was ousted from power last year.

Bitar, 53, took the premiership Jan. 1 after assurances from the military that the Syrian army would stay out of politics. Today's communiques, however, declared the armed forces must be "the vanguard of the people" and must be made an integral part of the party.

The Baath regime rose to power March 8, 1963. Hafez, 43, became the strongman of Syria four months later when he put down an uprising by supporters of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

REJECT NASSER

The Baath party supports the principle of Arab unity but is bitterly opposed to the concept of an Arab union dominated by Nasser. Egypt and Syria were linked in the United Arab Republic in 1958, but Syria broke away three years later.

. . . THOMSON

based on the profit motive and on the conclusion that men are selfish and must be rewarded.

Thomson, who has amassed huge newspaper holdings, said there are some advantages in using massive central planning to carry out new developments. But his observation suggested that much of the Soviet central planning is not efficient, perhaps because national planning on the Soviet scale "requires a group of supermen and these just do not exist." Many of their directors had university training but no practical experience.

Communist countries now were bending their principles, prepared to compromise with capitalism.

"Surely it is our responsibility to meet them halfway."

In Bulgaria, Thomson said he was surprised to find the government offering to participate 50-50 in a profit-making company which would sell goods to the West as well as to Communist countries, and the Bulgarian government would guarantee the investment. Premier Todor Zhivkov had supported Thomson's plans to build a holiday villa on the Black Sea.

"I am going ahead with this and I look forward to having many happy holidays in my villa in Communist Bulgaria," Thomson said in his prepared speech.

U.K. Cartoonist Dies

LONDON (UPI)—Victor Weisz, who won fame as the political cartoonist Vicky, died suddenly at his London home today. He was 53.

'U.S. AGAINST SPREAD OF ATOM ARMS'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk said today the United States opposes the spread of nuclear weapons. He denied that U.S. proposals for a joint nuclear force in the Atlantic alliance would violate that policy.

The policy of non-proliferation, to prevent the spread of such weapons to countries not now possessing them, is "a major objective of our foreign policy," Rusk told the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures were again on the mild side overnight in B.C. They ranged from 13 at Kimberley to 47 at Spring Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island. A Pacific storm off the west coast this morning is moving northward and weakening. A minor disturbance which had moved out of the storm giving showers to southwestern B.C. is now producing snowflurries to the eastern sectors. This disturbance will be out of the province today. Behind it some clearing will take place in the interior but the Pacific storm will continue to feed fairly moist air to the coastal areas, becoming gradually dryer by Thursday. Another disturbance approaching the north coast will bring rain to that area Thursday.

House Opens Historic Probe Of Divorce Law

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The first federal inquiry into divorce laws since Confederation has been launched by the Commons with hardly a ripple.

Various proposals to widen the grounds for divorce and relax provincial residence requirements—long regarded as taboo subjects by Canadian politicians—have been referred to the House committee on justice and legal affairs for study.

The 24-member committee is expected to hold public hearings, invite submissions from all interested parties and make recommendations to the government.

The inquiry will revolve around proposals for additional grounds for divorce and other changes contained in seven private members' bills sponsored by Liberal and New Democratic MPs.

The Commons passed the necessary motion in less than five minutes Monday.

At the same time, the health and welfare committee was instructed to conduct an equally unprecedented inquiry into the Criminal Code sections on birth control and abortion.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

The subject matter of private members' bills sponsored by three Liberals and Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) was referred to the 24-member health committee.

Dr. Harry Harley (L—Halton), health committee chairman, said Tuesday he is confident his group will hear any interested party on the issues of birth control and abortion laws. He could not recall any previous separate inquiry in this field.

The justice committee is headed by lawyer A. J. P. Cameron (L — Toronto High Park).

Mr. Prittie said "the Parliament of Canada has the exclusive power to legislate divorce reform," but no action had been taken since Confederation. There had been no inquiries, no free votes and all private members' bills on divorce had been killed.

A government spokesman agreed the divorce inquiry is unprecedented.

CLUB WANTS PROBE

A few hours before the parliamentary inquiry was set up Monday, a delegation from the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was asking Prime Minister Pearson to set up a royal commission on the subject. He told the Commons Tuesday this suggestion will be considered.

The proposed grounds for divorce placed before the parliamentary committee comprise separation, desertion, cruelty, incurable mental illness, non-support, alcoholism, drug addiction and criminal behavior, in addition to adultery and non-consummation.

The recommended periods required to prove desertion range from two to five years.

The private members' bills were introduced Jan. 24 by James Byrne (L — Kootenay East), who has two, Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard), Ian G. Wahn (L—Toronto St. Paul's), Robert Stanbury (L—York - Scarborough), Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) and Mr. Prittie.

The bills seeking to relax laws relating to birth control and abortion were submitted by Mr. Wahn, Mr. Stanbury, Mr. Basford and Mr. Prittie.

Two-Year Wait for Museum Tower to House Dutch Gift

An 80-foot tower and carillon for the provincial museum-archives complex may not appear for two years, Works Minister W. N. Chant said Tuesday.

He was commenting on plans to include the carillon in the 1967 complex marking the Canadian Confederation centennial.

The Dutch people of British Columbia are making the 37-bell carillon their gift to the people of B.C. and the government is building the tower to house it and its control mechanism.

Mr. Chant made the announcement in the legislature, following an earlier statement by the B.C. centennial commission.

He said the tower would rise over the two-storey archives building, which will be separated from the curatorial tower at Government and the former Elliott Street by a sunken garden.

OCTOBER, 1967

The museum and archives are expected to be open in September or October of 1967, but the minister said it may be another year or two before the tower, carillon and sunken garden will be ready.

The complex will make a big improvement in the appearance of Victoria, just as the city's Centennial Square has done, Mr. Chant noted.

It took great courage for the city to attempt its civic centre restoration, he said.

"Being quite candid about it, they've made a few mistakes in what they've done. But they've done a creditable job of improving the heart of Victoria and I'm sure much good will come of it," Mr. Chant said.

As an example he referred to McPherson Playhouse, the idea of which is good, he said.

"But the stage laeves a great deal to be desired in space and equipment. So often we are anxious to get things done we overlook some details," Mr. Chant said.

Chinooks Meet Saints

Victoria Chinooks, defending national junior basketball champions, have drawn Halifax All Saints in the first game of the 1966 championship tournament here next Monday.

They will play in the third game on the opening night of the week-long tournament.

Alberta and Ontario will meet in the opening game at Central Junior High School gym starting at 5 p.m. The UBC Jayvees, B.C. kings, meet New Brunswick at 7, followed by Victoria-Nova Scotia at 9.

Quebec drew an opening bye.

If Chinooks get past Halifax, Quebec will be their next foe. Jayvees, if victorious, meet the winner of the Alberta-Ontario game.

Two losses for any team means elimination.

The teams: B.C.—UBC Jayvees and Victoria Chinooks; Alberta—Mount Royal Cougars, Calgary; Ontario—Quigleys, Hamilton; Quebec—Montreal Orchids; Nova Scotia — Halifax All Saints; and, New Brunswick—Fredericton Elms.

TALENTED FORWARD with UBC Jayvees, Dave Rice is expectde to be one of mainstays of Jayvees in their bid for Canadian junior men's basketball title at Central Junior High School next week. Jayvees, winners of B.C. crown, face New Brunswick champs in their first game Monday night.

Quigleys Have Extra Weapons For Fourth Shot at Hoop Title

HAMILTON (CP) — When Wes Hicks sets out to win a Canadian title, he believes in teaching his team members more than how to set up and execute plays.

"Dedication, hustle and desire" are the added incentives according to Hicks, who leads his Hamilton Quigleys into the Canadian junior men's basketball championships at Victoria next week.

"I have never had a team like it," Hicks says. "They are a unit of 10 guys."

That's a broad statement for the man who is making his fourth bid for the national title, including a loss to Vancouver Saints in the 1964 finals.

Hicks has four veterans and six rookies. Eight are products of local high school teams.

The only player from outside the area is Carl Glatt, a McMaster University student who came from Toronto.

The starting lineup is centre Peter Dalla Riva, six feet five inches; forwards Daryl Brown, six feet one inch, and Jim Hajas, six feet three inches, and guards Vic Vinerskis and Jim Connor, both six feet 10 inches.

Bowman, a high school all-star, is the team's top point-getter, averaging 27 points a game. Hajas is the top rebound shooter and second-highest scorer on the squad.

Vinerskis and Connor were members of the all-Ontario high school champions last season.

Peter Coulen, six feet five inches, alternates with Riva at centre. Both weigh 210 pounds and are strong rebound shooters. Glatt and John Kennedy, six feet, are secondary forwards, while Bob Wylie, five feet 10 inches and Bruce Mowat, five feet eight inches, are the secondary guards.

Quigleys have won 21 of their 24 games this season. They defeated Windsor 88-70 and 94-81 to sweep the Ontario finals.

The team boasts a shooting record of 47 per cent from the floor.

Hicks stresses a lot of running and claims his team will do a lot of things junior teams don't normally do.

"I don't think any team will beat us by more than six points," he says, adding that British Columbia Jayvees, Montreal Orchids and Victoria Chinooks probably will provide the strongest competition.

Howe Youngsters Stir Fire in Minor Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Quebec City's annual carnival and the peewee hockey tournament they hold in connection with it gave a great boost to the sport.

Sid Abel, the Red Wings' manager, gave me a day off so I could see my sons, Marty and Mark, play in it last week, before I rejoined the team for the game at Boston. The enthusiasm at Quebec is overwhelming.

My youngsters are members of the Roostertail Hockey Club. The name "Roostertail" throws a lot of French-speaking people. The club is sponsored by Joe Schoenith, who races those big hydro unlimited power boats.

When those boats tear down the Detroit River at more than 100 miles per hour, they throw a big spray 30 feet high, the shape of a rooster tail. That's where the name comes from.

My sons almost didn't get to the Quebec tournament. I had them drop off the team temporarily around the first of the year. The reasons were a combination of many things.

The one that hit my wife Colleen and I the hardest was the fact their teacher called us and said the boys literally were falling asleep in their seats in classes at school.

They were playing too many games and doing too much travelling, in my estimation. Almost every weekend they were going to Galt, Kitchener, even as far as Toronto. They played two, three, maybe four games on the weekend.

We tried to slow our coach down in the process of scheduling these games because there is a tremendous amount of work involved. And travelling takes a lot out of you. It took an awful lot out of my wife, who accompanied the youngsters each time.

So I pulled them off the team. I think I taught the boys a lesson and maybe the individuals running it a little lesson too.

They're not playing any more exhibition games, just the city league and playoffs.

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe is "100 per cent" in favor of organized pee wee hockey, but the Detroit Red Wing star thinks the schedule in the local league may be a bit too tough.

Criticism of organized children's hockey was stimulated by a fight at the Quebec international pee wee tournament in Quebec City last Thursday.

Howe's son, Mark, playing with Detroit Roostertails, fought with a Toronto youngster after a game in which the Roostertails lost 4-2 to Toronto Red Wings.

Howe said he didn't know anything about the fight.

SCHOOL WORK SUFFERS

The veteran hockey star said he pulled his two sons, Mark, 12, and Mary, 11, out of play for a couple of weeks earlier this year because their school work was suffering. (See also "Howe's Hockey.)

"We got a little alarmed when the teachers told us they were literally asleep in class," Howe said.

After some warnings, his sons' grades picked up from about 75 per cent to 95 per cent and they were allowed back on the ice, Howe said.

Howe said he does not think that in general there is too much pressure on youngsters playing organized hockey.

SOME COACHES FAULTED

There might be instances of an individual coach bearing down too hard on his young players, but he felt this was probably the exception rather than the rule.

Howe said it isn't so much the number of games but the travelling and other activity that goes with minor hockey that might be too much for youngsters.

Canadian criticism has come from psychologists and athletic and recreation officials.

"They put the children into emotional pressure cookers," said Prof. John Farina of the University of Toronto School of Social Work.

"I am sure the coaches, managers and parents get psychological satisfaction of questionable value out of this," he said.

MOST AWARE

Bill Glover of the Toronto Hockey League said the pressure tactics at the Quebec tournament applied only to the Detroit team.

"In my opinion, the majority of the men concerned with minor hockey are aware of their responsibilities to the players," he said.

Dr. Robert Imrie, a pediatrician associated with the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, said he is appalled by the mental strain and physical danger of competitive body sports for young boys.

The great majority of boys in minor hockey are "pushed into it by go-go fathers," he said. "They play only to please the old man."

ERNIE'S LUCK CHANGED WITH SWITCH IN SPORT

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) — Ernie Nerlich's luck was bound to change.

All it took was a change in sports.

Nerlich, the golf professional from nearby Richmond Hill, set a record in the Canadian Open last August when he took 14 strokes to play the par-four 18th hole at Mississaugua Golf Club in Port Credit, Ont.

Tuesday night he went curling and had a perfect eight-end scored against him. It came on the second end.

What's so lucky about that?

Nothing, except Nerlich defeated Bill Mathews 16-9.

Humboldt Rink Upset by B.C.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Back-to-back victories Tuesday gave Northern Ontario an unblemished record in the Canadian schoolboy curling championships and an upset by British Columbia gave Wayne Steski's North Bay crew sole possession of first place.

The Northern Ontario representatives took advantage of a key miss in the third round to register an 8-7 victory over Ontario and stretched their unbeaten record to 3-0 with a 15-4 victory over New Brunswick in the fourth round.

British Columbia's Douglas Engstrom skipped his Prince George rink to the upset of the day, defeating Saskatchewan's Bill Ross of Humboldt 8-6 in the fourth round.

Ross, who held a 3-0 record going into the fourth - round match, started to falter in the third round. Leading 9-5 after nine of the regulation 10-end match, the Saskatchewan foursome dropped three stones to Leslie Hollands of Arvida, Que. to gain a 9-8 victory.

The ninth end proved the turning point for Saskatchewan against B.C. Trailing 6-4 after eight ends, Engstrom piled in three stones and stole another on the final end.

Newfoundland, skipped by Danny Herder of St. John's, also earned the title of giant killer in the fourth round. Herder, who lost in his first two games, counted two stones on the first end against Ontario and was never headed as he picked up an 8-6 victory.

Ontario's Mike Boyd of Kingston had lost a heart-breaker in the third round against Steski. Boyd, with his last stone, attempted an intricate double takeout in order to count two and tie the match.

The stone missed and, instead of the necessary two stones, the Kingston crew wound up with a single.

Saskatchewan finished the day's action tied with Brian Howes of Calgary for second place in the 11-rink, round-robin bonspiel with a 3-1 record.

N.S. HAS TWO WINS

Nova Scotia's Don Glinz of Truro followed with two wins and a loss, while British Columbia and Ontario were tied for fifth place with 2-2 records.

Bruins Give Up Doggo Role for 'Spoilers'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, once seemingly content to lie doggo at the bottom of the National Hockey League heap, have come to life lately and seem to be enjoying their role as "spoilers" in the pennant race.

Coach Milt Schmidt credits his team's improvement to teamwork, consistency and accuracy.

The Bruins get another chance to play their spoiler role tonight as they square off in Montreal against the Canadiens, who are two points behind first-place Chicago Black Hawks and two ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs play Chicago and last-place New York Rangers take on the Red Wings.

The Bruins went on a four-game victory streak a month ago. Since then they have won eight games and tied two in 15 starts. Their eight victories include two over Chicago and Detroit and one each against Montreal and Toronto.

Tonight's Boston - Montreal game will be televised on Channel 8, starting at 5:30.

In their last start against Montreal, Bruins' goalie Eddie Johnston recorded a 2-0 shutout.

The man given the major share of the credit for Boston's improvement is Pit Martin.

Martin, 22, a centre from Noranda, Que., came to the Bruins at Christmas time in a trade that saw Parker MacDonald go to Detroit.

In 23 games with Boston, Pit has scored 15 goals and assisted on six others. Also, he has had a four-goal night against Chicago and one of three goals against Detroit.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

From Edmonton this week came a scrap of news that must surely have cast a shadow upon every Victoria family owned by a black Labrador retriever. Tige, one of the noble breed, has been sentenced to nine months of exile from his people for biting a three-year-old child who wandered into his yard.

That's a rough go for any dog, and I'm by no means sure the well-intentioned Alberta beak who commuted Tige's earlier death sentence was doing him a favor. It may well be, in fact, that the culprit has merely been condemned to a slow death rather than a quick one.

Why did he bite? Of all dogs I know, none are better with children or less inclined to meanness than the Lab. Our own big black frequnetly entertains small, welcome guests. Tige wasn vicious; that fact was emphasized in the appeal judges' decision.

What was being done to the dog in his own yard, by a child of irresponsible age? The story doesn't tell us, nor does it answer an even more fundamental question:

How did a child so young come to be there in the first place?

Tige the Labrador's melancholy case apart, this syndrome of the wandering child has become one of life's minor vexations in most communities.

In fairness, the victim of the Edmonton episode may simply have strayed as small pre-schoolers will, to become within minutes the object of anxious search. Also, in many young family blocks, it's an understood thing that the kids are going to be in and out of each other's houses all day long.

But there are wanderers of a different sort, and each settled street and new subdivision inherits its share of these blameless waifs.

They are the children of non-functioning parents. Presumably, they have beds to sleep in. But they are unencumbered by regular meal times, and they seem free to wander in a world that swarms with dangers for the unattended pre-schooler.

Once I helped a sweating cab driver untangle one of these quarter-pint Huck Finns from under his taxi. By some miracle the toddler escaped with a scare and scraped knees.

Again, we went out one summer dusk to investigate a crash in our garage, and found a sturdy stranger of about five doing his best to break into a padlocked box of weed-killer, rose spray and the like. He lived "over there," an address which proved to be a long quarter-mile away.

Then there was the little girl who invited herself to dinner. She made one at quite a few tables, in fact, before she faded from our ken. She had a mother, she had a father, but she might almost as well have been an orphan.

The fact that some of these wanderers are the children of working mothers doesn't signal a general attack on a trend of our times. Most women who work to supplement a husband's income, or because they must, make provision for their children during the hours they're away.

Those who don't—and like it or not, we do have these—constitute a nuisance in whatever district they inhabit. They count on the kindness of neighbors and even persons unknown to make good their own derilection.

I don't know what can be done about the working or non-working shirker of parental duty. They can't be hauled up for contributing to juvenile delinquency, although as heaven and every policeman knows, their casual attitudes do contribute. Their communities endure them, clinging grimly to the good doctrine that every child is every adult's responsibility.

Nor do I enjoy offering so harsh a view, but as one who likes children even better than Labradors, I hate to see them short-changed by those who should be their prime protectors.

$225 Fines Levied For Driving Sins

Ronald Cooper, 20, of 2517 Graham, was fined today in central court a total of $225 on separate charges of driving while his licence was under suspension and being a minor with no insurance.

$37,000 Asked For District Parks, Beaches

Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee will ask municipal councils to approve a budget pushing the $37,000 mark this year.

Bulk of the money is scheduled to be spent in the controversial Elk-Beaver Lake area.

Victoria city treasurer James Bramley pointed out that the record budget may not win the approval of the two municipal councils involved.

He said that in previous years Victoria council had been prepared to pay $13,000 (Saanich also pays $13,000) towards the parks program.

"Council has been agreeable in the past to meeting other costs as they come along," he said. "I just point out that while approving the budget here I don't know whether it will meet with council favor."

TWO PARK PLAN

More than $21,000 of the total budget is earmarked for the development and maintenance of Hamsterly and Eagle Parks on Elk Lake and for Beaver Lake park.

The main project at Eagle Park will be the dumping of $1,500 worth of fine sand on the beach. The sand will be placed when the lake hits its year low-water mark this fall.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said Eagle Park still provided park maintnance crews.

"Each year we hire skin divers to check in-shore lake bottoms for broken glass," he said. "At Eagle Park this year they pulled eight smashed gallon crocks from the water.

"It's enough to make you sick to see that clear glass hauled out of the lake," he said.

Other major expenditures will see a new swimming raft and diving board installed at Beaver Lake park.

Mr. Warren said the old raft and diving board was removed last summer when it became a danger to swimmers.

Other business discussed at this morning's meeting saw the committee approve an application from Saanich for the use of Elk and Beaver Lakes and the Gorge parks during their diamond Jubilee celebrations.

While approving the application the committee noted that their were no public conveniences in the Gorge Park area.

Fishermen Fined $15

Two fishermen were fined today in central court on charges of angling without a licence.

Russel Ko, 2875 Phyllis, pleaded guilty to fishing in Harris Creek Jan. 23 when he did not have a licence.

He was fined $15.

Murray Baillargeen, 2438 Esplanade, was fined the same amount when he pleaded guilty to fishing without a licence in Durrance Lake Jan. 29.

10-ACRE PARK SITE UNDER NEGOTIATION

Saanich may buy land adjoining Prospect Lake Elementary School off West Saanich Road, for a park.

Lands commissioner Jack Lindlsay has been authorized to begin negotiations for the land.

Subject to satisfactory price and council approval, the land will be "something" under 10 acres, said planner Tom Loney.

Locating a park beside a school has many advantages, he said, including joint use of facilities. A six-acre park beside a school would serve the same purposes as a nine-acre park away from a school.

'HOW CAN THEY?'

Aged Take Dim View Of Bus Strike Plan

Victoria Socred MLA Donald Smith's threatened strike by old age pensioners for bus passes is getting short shift from local senior citizens groups.

A survey of local groups showed no plans for a strike or any other form of protest has been made by the pensioners.

Mainland headquarters of the B.C. Old Age Pensioners Organization also reported no protest plans.

Mr. Smith stated Tuesday night in the legislature that pensioners will "go on strike" unless B.C. Hydro sells them a $1 a week bus passes with no restrictive hours.

But pensioners interviewed on the question seemed to take a dim view of the "strike."

"I'm not interested at all in the plan," said Peter H. Davey, president of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association.

MORE PENSION

Pensioners should aim for a $100 a month pension from the government, instead of cheaper bus rates, he said.

Secretary of the Oak Bay Senior Citizens' Group, Mrs. R. Ward, said there was "no movement afoot" for a strike among pensioners in that district.

"How can they go on strike?" asked Mrs. D. L. Faichen, secretary of the No. 5 group, Old Age Pensioners' Association.

"They don't work. They could only picket somewhere."

Plans for a strike were also denied by provincial headquarters of the Old Age Pensioners Organization.

SURPRISE

"It came as much a surprise to me as to many other people," said Mrs. Lilian Brown, of White Rock, secretary of the BCOAP.

Other members of local groups said they hadn't heard if strike plans were afoot.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, director of Senior Citizens Activity Centre, had also had no previous hint of the strike plans.

Pensioners could boycott B.C. Hydro buses, she said, which "could have some impact, as there are a tremendous number of pensioners," but a strike sounded unlikely.

But from the pensioners' point of view would a boycott be practical?" asked Mrs. Horne.

"They've got to do their shopping and other errands."

But prices now, she said, are "awfully hard on the marginal income group."

Child Suffers Broken Bone, Head Cuts

Five-year-old Katherine Harrison, 537 Ackland, suffered a broken collar bone and head cuts, when she was in collision with a car early today.

She is in "satisfactory" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today.

Police said she was struck about 8 a.m. when she ran in front of a car being driven east on Gorge near Garbally. Driver of the car was identified as Ray Phillips, 856 Cowper.

Car Dives Head First Into Store

Drivers of downtown-bound cars witnessed a spectacular accident involving a two-ton stake truck, two cars and the side of a building shortly before 8 a.m. today.

The truck, owned by Gainer's Meat, and driven by Martin Antonson, 1653 Earle, pulled out of North Park into Quadra, was in collision with a car driven by Margaret Botteril, 3356 Oak, careened into a parked car owned by Adolphe Rochon, 866 North Park, pushing the Rochon car through a fence into a schoolyard and through the wall of property of King Auto Radio, 1816 Quadra.

Approximately $500 damage was done to the first car hit, $450 to the parked car, and $75 damage to the truck itself.

Saanich Plowmen Steaming

Saanich plowmen will literally have to get up some steam if they want to compete in the Cowichan Plowing Matches April 2.

Federal plant protection officers have ordered the plowmen to steam-clean their plows before taking them out of the area affected by the Golden Nematode.

The Saanich Plowing Association has voluntarily cancelled its own annual plowing matches this year because of the infectious nematode.

Although the date for the Cowichan matches is set the Duncan area association still hasn't got a field for the event.

ENTRIES DELAYED

Cowichan association president George Braithwaite said today he will not accept entries until a field has been definitely lined up.

He said the committee is considering several prospective sites.

Mr. Braithwaite is also a member of the seven-man committee which is organizing the Dominion plowing championships to be held at the Buckerfield farm, Sumas, April 13 and 14.

He said: "We have high hopes the national title might come to B.C. in the first year the matches have been held in the province.

"Tom Hickman, Chilliwack, placed second last year and the contestants will have the best piece of ground ever for the event. It is 100 acres of the best soil perfectly level," he said.

Aldermen Blast Civil Servants Parking In Park

Civil servants snitching free parking in Beacon Hill Park came in for a blast from two city aldermen this morning.

Parks administrator Herb Warren told the city parks and beautification committee that each day 18 to 20 cars were parked in Beacon Hill Park, some of them in the parking lot in the centre of the park.

Ald. Cecil Parrott said the city should take a firm stand and protest to the provincial government.

Ald. Robert Baird agreed.

As a result a meeting will be held with the deputy minister of public works from whose department the offenders come, asking him to take disciplinary action.

There are no existing city by-laws enabling the city to take direct action against the free-parkers.

'Canada Should Oppose' Japanese Fishing Inroads

Canada should fight strenuously to prevent the Japanese from negotiating an end to the abstention principle in the North Pacific Fisheries Convention and try to bring Russia into the agreement, a provincial legislative committee was told today.

Donovan Miller, chairman of the B.C. Fisheries Association committee on international agreements, said the abstention principle is vital to safeguarding the B.C. salmon industry and all other fisheries resources as well.

He suggested disaster might ensue for Canadian fishermen if the Japanese are successful in efforts to abolish the treaty's requirement their fishermen stay west of the 174-degree longitude line (well beyond the Aleutian Islands).

(The abstention principle was at the heart of last fall's bitter controversy in which Alaska demanded the United States embargo all Japanese imports in retaliation for alleged violation by Japanese fishing boats catching salmon on the high seas while they were headed back for Alaskan spawning grounds.)

ONLY PREVENTATIVE

"That (abstention principle) is the only thing that prevents the Japanese fishing fleets from coming over on our side and fishing for salmon," said Mr. Miller.

"The abstention principle is essential to maintaining our stocks of salmon, halibut and other fish."

Mr. Miler said the Russian fleet now reported operating in the Queen Charlottes and Dixon Entrance area can't be properly controlled because the federal government has not yet surveyed a base line for establishing a 12-mile limit there. He said this should be done quickly.

"At the moment, the Russians are not fishing for salmon on our side of the ocean," he said. "They are very conservation minded and they have a treaty with the Japanese for splitting the Asiatic salmon fishery.

"They are very aware of the dangers of high seas fishing for salmon but there is no satisfactory answer yet to this question of why they are not in the North Pacific Fisheries Convention, Mr. Miller told the committee.

WHY NOT RUSSIA?

He said the question is frequently asked why Russia is not invited to join the treaty which now includes only Canada, the United States and Japan.

"At the moment, we have to bow to the experts in international negotiations who say that any one invited into an international agreement can set his own terms of entry.

"But I would hope that eventually not only Russia but all nations would be in a sound fish conservation convention covering the northern Pacific," Mr. Miller said.

The committee was told by several witnesses that the B.C. government should revive the provincial fishery department as a portfolio of a cabinet minister with a deputy minister and full staff so that it could be an authorative spokesman for all segments of the B.C. fishing industry when dealing with international or national policies.

(The provincial fishery department was dissolved and re-established as a commission after the new department of recreation and conservation was established in 1956.)

DEPARTMENT NEEDED

R. S. Stanton, manager of Pacific Trollers Association, said a provincial department should be established to "pick up where the federal fishery department leaves off and this does not mean there would have to be any overlapping."

Mr. Stanton said many factors affecting the B.C. fishing industry, such as potential pollution of water courses, cannot be adequately handled by the federal agency because they involve provincial jurisdiction.

William Harrison, chairman of the Fisheries Association, agreed and said the fishing industry is a $100 million business in B.C. and sohuld be "recognized in a minister's title and a competent staff at the deputy minister level and lower," so it could act as a rallying point for west coast fishermen and companies.

Trans-Canada Search Seeks Bank Suspects

Police Had Them Once; Had to Set Them Free

The search across Canada today for two men wanted in connection with Friday night's hold-up of the Bank of Montreal branch at Fort and Richmond.

The two men were among the four persons questioned by city police Saturday but later released.

Police said today that at the time when the men were questioned laboratory reports on evidence had not been completed.

Without the lab reports police were unable to substantiate a charge and had to let the men go. Police Chief J. F. Gregory said experts at the Vancouver Crime Laboratory worked all day Sunday on the evidence.

TWO PICKED UP

He said that after receiving the lab reports Monday, city police laid charges and issued warrants for the arrest of the four men. Two of them were picked up Monday in Vancouver and appeared in central court Tuesday.

The other two still being sought are Gordon Francis Duck, 23, and Harold Robinson Coullrer, 47. Both are described as being from Eastern Canada.

Police have taken two cars into their possession. It is believed that one of them was the getaway car used by the bandits who robbed the bank.

DESCRIPTIONS

Police today said an exact audit has shown the robbers got away with $18,157 and not $19,342 as was first reported.

Police today also issued more elaborate descriptions of the wanted men.

Duck is five feet, nine inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has brown hair cut short on top, hazel eyes, a pale complexion and tattoos on both arms.

Coullrer is five feet, five inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, has a stocky build, dark brown hair, fresh complexion and brown eyes.

Gun Threat Brings Jail

A Victoria youth was sentenced today to a year in the young offenders' unit for threatening a Victoria policeman with his own gun.

Freddie Marsben Smith, 1120 McClure, was one of a trio of youths found behind the Fox Theatre the night of Feb. 6. He appeared in Central Court today.

Police were investigating reports of youths prowling in the Hillside-Quadra area.

Smith threatened to kill three officers with a gun he jarred loose from one of the officers' holsters but was subdued by Const. Ron Ferguson.

Sentencing Smith, Magistrate Ostler said he was "just a finger's twitch away from a possible murder charge."

The magistrate added that "society has tried to do something for you."

"All the agencies have been brought into play to assist you."

Smith was on probation when the ofence occurred.

Radio, Brooch Taken From Apartment

The apartment of Iris Pernisie, 1046 View, was broken into late Tuesday afternoon and a transistor radio valued at $120 was taken.

Also missing was a silver brooch.

'HEAT WAVE' RECORD FALLS

Victoria Tuesday hit an all-time temperature high for Feb. 22.

The mercury at Gonzales weather station crept to 56 degrees, beating the previous high for the date of 53.5 set in 1903.

It wasn't the warmest day ever recorded in February however. That distinction goes to Feb. 8, 1963, when the thermometer recorded 60.1 degrees.

It's been a mild month all along the line, with more sunshine, less rain and no snow.

The sun has been out for 89.3 hours as against the 30-year average of 71.7.

Only 1.12 inches of rain has fallen, 1.3 inches less than normal.

Temperatures were down to 48 at noon today.

Parks Boss Asks Motorcycle Ban At Mt. Douglas

Parks administrator Herb Warren wants the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee to ban motorcycles from the south trails in Mount Douglas Park.

The committee will make a decision on the issue following a tour of the area Saturday.

"For years we have tolerated motorcycles on the south side of the hill though we knew they were detrimental to the park," he told the committee this morning.

"I think we should ban motorbikes and block access to all vehicles on the south side," he added.

The committee, scheduled to make its annual trip of all park areas Saturday, decided to take a look at the situation first-hand before making its decision.

Mr. Warren said the motorcycles were damaging the trails.

"The trails are getting badly cut up and we should stop the use of motorcycles," he said.

Victoria weather office predicted rain showers tonight with a sunny spell Thursday morning.

Afternoon temperatures will remain around the 50 mark.

Pets Denied Woman Who Failed Them

A Richmond, B.C. woman Mrs. Josephine Webber, formerly of 919 Stafford Street, Victoria, was fined $75 today in central court for charges of failing to care for animals in her possession.

Police said at an earlier hearing that she had allowed a dog and a cat to suffer malnutrition and a bird to starve to death.

They said the animals' food dishes were covered with dust.

Giving his sentence Magistrate Ostler said "it is difficult to understand how a woman could be so devoid of compassion."

In addition to her fine Mrs Webber will be obliged to sign an 18-month $250 peace bond. She is not to own, have the care or custody of animals for that period.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Woman and Her Purse Are Inseparable Pair

By Penny Saver

A woman would be lost without her handbag. So many odds and ends, as well as those necessary items, such as combs, lipsticks and make-up of every variety, ad infinitum, collect in these not-to-be-without accessories every day. The most perfect way to describe the items in one of these cloth or leather units is to think back a few years to one of the swinging pop tunes of that time. It was about a fellow who took his girl friend home from a date, and she tried to find her keys by unloading the contents of her bag on the poor suitor. Perhaps the satire of the song was a little harsh, but I know that I am always amazed at the things I find in my bag when it gets too heavy to carry. One day, I found a half-filled, five-pound bag of sugar in it.

Most women, fortunately, aren't that disorganized. In one shop, I found peppy shoulder bags made of leather and corduroy. These are ideal to suit the average woman's needs, as they are deep enough to hold even odds and ends resulting from a spontaneous shopping spree.

A large zipper is the highlight at the top of these bags, which sell for $8.95. This zipper has a fairly large ring attached, so that all your necessities are easily accessible to you. Colors are olive green, navy blue and black.

A smaller corduroy bag is a wonder for $5.95. This is carried by means of a loop of leather at one end. These feature the same wide zipper and are available in the same shades. The only difference between these and the shoulder bags above are the size and the method of carrying.

Clocks are items that have always fascinated me. There are so many ways to dress up a clock, it is simply amazing. I found one that is really different.

This timepiece is enclosed in a totem pole. The top carving is a pair of wings, with an owl underneath. The eyes of the owl move back and forth, in the opposite direction to the pendulum's swing. Under the bird is the face of the clock itself.

These are in brilliant shades of blue, red and yellow, with a touch of black for emphasis. They sell for $4.95.

These items are "in the bag" if you call Penny at 382-3131.

The latest in styles for the forthcoming season will be previewed Tuesday when the Junior Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital sponsors a fashion show. The McPherson Playhouse will be the setting for the event which features two shows at 2 and 8 p.m. and fashions will be from Woodward's Ltd. Discussing some of the final arrangements for the affair are, left to right, Mrs. D. Longridge, Mrs. A. H. Bamford and Mrs. W. S. Irwin.

Knitting Needles Create Styles To Challenge Wizardry of a Dior

Haute couture took an unusual trend, Monday afternoon and evening, in two shows at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. If every woman in Victoria is rushing to buy wool and knitting needles today, nobody could blame them. Both the shows featured high-style clothes, knitted by local women.

Such was the flair and finish of each dress, suit and coat that many of the audience were predicting that "greats" like Christian Dior and Chanel would soon be forced to move over and make room for our Victoria artists!

Commentator for the unusual presentations was Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor. General convener was Mrs. R. F. Stapells, of the Women's Auxiliary to the Victorian Order of Nurses, the group which sponsored the showings.

All who saw the shows were agreed that knitting has moved out of the sock and mitt class. There were many outfits that would demand notice at the most formal affairs. Often they were made of wools that owed their magic to French and Swiss craftmanship.

PETITE STAR

Often the clothes were modelled by the women who had made them. Star of the other models was a tiny tot named Katherine Stewart, who almost up-staged everyone when she made her appearance with a perky white poodle named Cherie.

The two of them trotted around the runway. Their last and most spectacular appearance was to show Katherine's blue mohair shrug-cape that was flattered to perfection with Cherie's pink coat, dazzled with silver sequins. The audience had to speed up their admiration for Cherie departed with his young mistress in an unscheduled rush that no amount of coaxing by Katherine could halt!

Mrs. F. C. Pollard modelled her own suit of Burgundy red tweed-like wool that featured a slim skirt and smart jacket that relied on a side opening and wedding ring neckline for excitement. Another point of interest was the Chinese knot buttons, made by the knitter's husband.

Mrs. F. S. McKinnon wore a masterpiece of an outfit which she had made herself. The coat was knitted and featured crocheted buttons. Opened, it revealed a matching silk lining and attractive sheath dress which Mrs. McKinnon had sewn to complete her ensemble.

One dress that would tempt any fashion writer to start scribbling copious notes was in a restrained charcoal grey shade. What zipped it to the haute couture bracket in a hurry was a wide white band that sang from the bottom of the skirt, flaunting rows of white popcorn stitches.

Formals were not forgotten in the parade of home industry. One thought of mermaids as red-haired Mrs. George Fayad drew gasps of admiration in a sliver slim sheath, long-sleeved and sporting a provocative bottom hem slit. The entire gown was knitted of sequins in sea green shade!

Another evening charmer was a two-piece white ensemble that featured a long slim knitted skirt. The bottom hem and side slit were outlined in pearls, matching the many tiny pearls knitted into the accompanying shell.

Is it fur or isn't it? This was the question that rippled around the gallery when a stole, made of mohair, was modelled. Carefully knitted, then brushed with a nylon brush, it was hard to distinguish from a mink farm's wares.

In tune with the Total Look, many of the knitters had fashioned chapeaux to complete their outfits. One outstanding creation was a side-dipping turban, subtle with draping.

MANY MODELS

Other models who helped present the off-beat shows were Mrs. R. J. Girard, Mrs. Alan Hoey, Mrs. Norman L. Kowalyk, Mrs. Jack Freer, Mrs. R. B. Young, Mrs. John Caddell, Mrs. Larry Wood, Mrs. A. E. Leonard, Mrs. Hugh A. Lyttleton, Mrs. J. O. Boyd, Mrs. A. R. Hales, Mrs. W. I. Boorman, Miss Julie Forrest, Miss Carolyn Speakman, Mrs. Colin P. Rutherford and Mrs. Gordon Soutar.

Unable to be present to show their garments but loaning their creations for the occasion were Miss Helen Ellis, Mrs. P. W. Brockie, Mrs. R. L. Horne, Mrs G. N. Straith, Mrs. Vearle Morrill, Mrs. E. G. Maddock, Mrs. Leslie C. Fritsch and Mrs. Robert Russell.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Are you beginning to experience that strange feeling which wells-up in us at about this time every year? It's a sort of frenzied restlessness which nothing but dry cleaning, window washing, painting, floor polishing and curtain laundering will cure — Spring Cleaning!

Lowman

Women really enjoy spring cleaning. There is something rejuvenating about seeing the house take on a fresh new air to match the flowers and leaves which will be appearing soon. It's a wonderful feeling of off with the dull and on with the bright, away with the dust and on with the patina.

Regardless of how much satisfaction you get from this activity, it is a big job. It has been estimated that you will be chalking up around 10 miles a day. For a hike of that distance you need more than carpet slippers. The care you give your feet will make a big difference in the extent of your fatigue.

You can't take your house cleaning problems sitting down and so if you are going to have a leg, or two, to stand on, look to your feet before starting spring cleaning. If you follow the line of least resistance and slip into flimsy scuffs, you're finished before you start. In a few hours your weary feet will convince you that it's time to curl up in front of the TV set.

When you are working at household tasks your feet need firm support. Only a well-fitted leather shoe with sturdy low heels and pliant leather soles will provide the proper foundation for a busy day about the house. Broken-down flats will not do.

Foot specialists advise that all-leather shoes are best. The leather has pores which allow the feet to breathe and leather's unmatched suppleness adjusts to the contour of your feet, but gives you the support you need.

Then there is the safety factor. I read not long ago that there is an increase in accidents in the home during the spring cleaning season because women are on ladders, standing on chairs and slipping on steps and rugs. Low heels are safer.

At the end of a house cleaning day treat your feet to a pep-up foot bath. Mix a handful of bicarbonate of soda in warm water and soak your tootsies. Then rinse with cool water, dry and apply powder or massage with lotion. If you have a shampoo spray, douse your feet for two or three minutes with hot water, and alternate with very cold water.

If you would like to have my exercises for the arches send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Boys Will Be Boys

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the members of the Retail Clerks Association, who have difficulty knowing whether some customers should be addressed as "Sir," or "Madam." I have six children and 17 grandchildren, and at my age it is hard to keep track of all their names.

Yesterday one of my granddaughters and her husband called on me. When they walked into the house they looked like twins! They both wore jeans, boots, sweaters and jackets. Their hair was exactly the same color, and their haircuts were identical. I really did not know which one was my granddaughter until they removed their jackets. What is this world coming to? It doesn't make sense when one can't tell the boys from the girls.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Be patient. As long as the boys and the girls can tell, things will work out all right.

DEAR ABBY: Thirty years ago my husband divorced his first wife who left him with a son. We were married when the boy was five years old. For the past 25 years there has been no contact between my stepson and his real mother. In two weeks my son is getting married. Only the immediate family will attent the ceremony. My husband's mother called and told me that if my son's real mother was not invited, my mother-in-law and her daughter would not attend the wedding. My husband and I feel that something that has been literally dead for 30 years should not be revived at a time like this. It would be worse than a slap in the face to us both after raising that boy along with four other children as one family. What is your advice?

OFFENDED MOTHER

DEAR OFFENDED: It is curious that your husband's mother would place you in the awkward position of either inviting your son's "real" mother (in fact a stranger) or excluding her and her daughter, too. Why? Leave the decision up to your son and his bride. It's THEIR wedding.

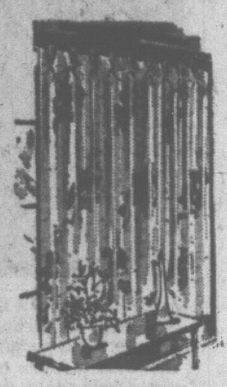

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow of 53, but I have been told that I look much younger. I am keeping company with a man of 26. My children are grown and have families of their own, and friends object to my relationship with Hugo. They think I should find someone older. Abby, I have gone with older men, but they all seem to go out with a widow for just one thing, and I spend the whole evening fighting them off. With Hugo, I don't have to worry. Do you think the age difference is too great between us? Please be honest.

ACCUSTOMED TO HIS FACE

DEAR ACCUSTOMED: To "go with," no. But to marry, well, think ahead 20 years.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago I was taking a bath when the telephone rang. Fearful that it was news about my mother, who had been very ill, I hurriedly got out of the bathtub, and in my haste, I slipped and fell. I managed to hobble to the phone, although I was in terrible pain, and when I answered it, a woman barked in an angry tone, "WRONG NUMBER," as though it was MY fault that she got a wrong number. Then she slammed down the receiver. As a result of that fall, I injured my back and was unable to attend my mother's funeral six days later.

Every Woman May Now Quickly

LIFT HER FACE OUT OF WINTER LINES, WRINKLES and Aging DRYNESS

. . . thanks to the "Wiesbaden Discovery" CEF-600

Helps Every Complexion Regain and Retain The Younger Look by Immediately Counteracting Effects of Winter's Icy Grip

No matter if your skin is typed dry, normal or even oily . . . no matter whether you enjoy being outdoors or prefer indoor protection . . . both frigid arctic air and overheated dry rooms dehydrate, drain skin of water and deprive it of the necessary moisture that pushes skin up and out to keep it as smooth, firm and wrinkle-free as the day you were married. And now, during the social season, when you particularly want to look your youngest best, "old man winter" works overtime to dry out and make your skin on face and neck flabby, sagging, rough, chapped and weatherbeaten. You look and feel years older than your age. And your husband . . . it makes him feel older too!

Your Chance for a Quicker Winter Youth

Medical journals have acclaimed the "Wiesbaden Discovery" known scientifically as CEF-600 and now embodied as the active ingredient in the cosmetic-like lotion named "2ND DEBUT." Apply "2ND DEBUT" nightly before retiring and daily before make-up. Day and night, it is constantly carrying water into the skin . . . counteracting all the skin drying effects of outside cold and inside overheating that chaps, dries, wrinkles your skin and makes it sag.

How 2ND DEBUT Works Quickly

Once again skin is moisturized, fresh, dewey radiant. Once again those aging lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin on face and throat is smoother and years younger in appearance. No matter how weather beaten your complexion may be, a youth-like color glows from within. Your complexion seems to have been born beautiful. Only 2ND DEBUT can bring about this fantastic skin youthifying miracle . . . in spite of winter's drying action!

For Extra Dry Skin— Or Mi-Lady In A Hurry— 2ND DEBUT With Double Strength CEF 1200

New DOUBLE STRENGTH 2ND DEBUT contains CEF 1200 instead of CEF 600. It acts much faster to smooth and flatten skin made scaly by winter's icy grip . . . and it works quicker to push up and out the more deeply seated lines and wrinkles.

Important To Regular Users of 2ND DEBUT

Particularly in these winter months, in time will your skin revert to the lined and wrinkled condition it was, unless you keep using 2ND DEBUT day and night. Your skin is constantly exfoliating . . . old skin flakes off and away and new skin is constantly being born. In winter weather it is more important than ever that you keep applying 2ND DEBUT before retiring and before make-up if you want to retain your soft, smooth youthful looking complexion. Users of 2ND DEBUT with CEF 600 are urged to switch to 2ND DEBUT with CEF 1200 . . . double strength and to use it all winter long.

Army Coup Succeeds In Syria

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Left-wing army officers in Damascus overthrew the Socialist government of Syria before dawn today, arrested government leaders and closed the country's borders and communications.

It is not clear whether the coup was bloodless or not.

News of the coup d'etat—the 15th since 1949—was broadcast by Damascus radio in a series of communiques that indicated the rebels plan to speed up the country's march toward socialism.

Army units seized power at 3 a.m. by arresting Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian head of state and chairman of the presidency council, Prime Minister Salah Bitar and Defence Minister Gen Mohammed Omran.

(Reuters news agency said Aleppo radio announced that negotiations aimed at ending the crisis were taking place between the coup leaders and the international leadership of the Baath party.)

OPPOSITION MOUNTS

As military communiques announced the coup, opposition was mounting in northern Syria. A radio broadcast from Aleppo in the north, Syria's largest city and its business capital, declared the army garrison there was against the rebellion.

The military garrison in the central Syrian city of Hama also was reported against the Damascus coup.

The Aleppo broadcast demanded that power be handed back to the old regime, with Hafez as head of state and the international command of the Baath party as the government.

Damascus radio said the coup was a shuffle of power inside the ruling Arab Baath (reawakening) Socialist party that came to power itself in a rebellion in 1963, but the list of those arrested indicated the Baath regime had actually been obliterated.

The rebel command, calling itself the "temporary command of the Baath party," said party founder Michel Aflak also was under arrest along with party Chief Mouniff Razzaz.

THEY'LL BE 'CRUSHED'

Broadcast communiques said Hafez and the others would be brought to trial and "crushed." They were denounced as "rightists" who had betrayed Syria's Socialist revolution.

The communiques did not identify the rebel commanders,

Dynamite Found

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Sheriff Mel Bailey said today a cache of dynamite found in the woods may lead authorities to the dreaded "Birmingham Bombers" who blew up a church full of Negro children in 1963 and scattered time bombs around the city last year.

SPECIAL EMISSARY TALKS VIET PEACE

MOSCOW (UPI) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent a special emissary today to confer with a North Vietnamese official at their embassy here on peace for Viet Nam.

British Disarmament Minister Lord Chalfont, who accompanied Wilson here for talks with Soviet leaders, spent several hours with North Vietnamese charge d'affaires Do Phat Quang. Hanoi's ambassador to Russia was away from Moscow.

Details of the unscheduled talks were not immediately available, but sources said the conference was requested by the British to discuss Viet Nam.

Wilson, who met again today with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, has made numerous appeals both to Kosygin and other Soviet leaders for co-operation in reconvening the 1954 Geneva convention on Southeast Asia to take up the Viet Nam conflict.

All his efforts so far have been rebuffed by the Soviets who told him it is for the United States to talk to the North Vietnamese directly.

Body Found In Trunk Of Auto

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sought to establish today whether there is any connection between the revolver-slaying of a lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases and government efforts to stamp out a bankruptcy racket.

Investigation of the shooting of Francois Payette, 36, was being carried out amid reports that he was slain before he could turn over to police evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

The slaying recalled statements made last fall by Justice Minister Wagner when police were smashing a widespread arson racket in the province. At that time, Mr. Wagner said at least seven persons and perhaps as many as 12 had been killed in an underworld attempt to stop disclosures about the arson racket.

Four lime - covered bodies were recovered last fall in an area south of Quebec City. Later a fifth body was recovered in the Lake St. John district.

Five men have been found criminally responsible by coroner's juries, but none has yet come to trial.

SHOT FOUR TIMES

Detective-Captain Roland Jodoin of Montreal police said Mr. Payette, found in the trunk of his car Tuesday in the city's north end, had been shot four times.

Capt. Jodoin said he could not comment on a possible connection between the killing and a bankruptcy racket.

He also declined comment on published reports that the dead lawyer had been on his way to keep an appointment Tuesday with city police officials to turn over evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

But he said:

"We have taken Mr. Payette's files from his downtown St. James St. office and are examining them at headquarters."

LAST SEEN SATURDAY

Mr. Payette, a civil lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases, was last seen by his family about 9:30 a.m. Saturday. He left home following a phone call to meet someone in a restaurant.

His wife reported him missing early Sunday and a search began for his car. It was found on Laverdure Street by a motorcycle policeman Tuesday.

Payette's body was in the trunk, frozen by the weekend sub-zero temperatures. There were no identification papers on the body.

Neighborhood residents said the car had been parked there for three days.

INCREASES PRESSURE

The Quebec government started its drive on phoney bankruptcies in 1962 and the pressure has been increasing since.

Special investigators were appointed to study and report on ways to stop the racket. One of the investigators was Gerard Laganiere, now a judge but formerly deputy chief crown prosecutor for Montreal.

Less than a year ago Mr. Laganiere said that phoney bank-

FIREWORKS FIRM

Plant Ripped By Explosion

DUNBAR, Pa. (UPI) — An explosion ripped a fireworks plant where workers were filling sky rockets and Roman candles with powder today, killing five women and injuring seven other women and a man.

Three of the injured women were hospitalized. Four women and the man were treated and released. The condition of those detained at the hospital was not know immediately.

The owner of the plant, Bedy Liza, 74, collapsed after hearing news of the blast and also was hospitalized.

The blast occurred in a one-storey frame assembly building of the Keystone Manufacturing Co. The walls of the specially constructed building were designed to cave outward in event of a blast.

"We just don't know what happened," a plant employee said. "The women were filling rocket tubes with powder, and then—wham—the building went up."

The dead had been working in the same structure. Five other frame buildings nearby were damaged, and the blast could be heard three miles away. The injured had been working in the other buildings.

Police at first said all six women in the assembly building were killed, but one of the blast victims was found still to be alive when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The plant, which produces only fireworks, was in the midst of its busy season, preparing an inventory for the Memorial Day and Fourth of July holidays. About 50 persons, most of them women, were employed at the plant.

Canadian Selected As Chairman

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth sanctions committee on Rhodesia met today and named Canada's high commissioner, Lionel Chevrier, as chairman of this and future sessions.

The 20 delegates—representing all Commonwealth countries except Ghana and Tanzania—gathered at Marlborough House amid persistent reports that an oil embargo on Rhodesia is being foiled to some extent by shipments from South Africa.

Chevrier's selection as chairman was significant in that a debate over who should preside arose at the first meeting Jan. 25 of the committee, established by an emergency conference of Commonwealth prime ministers at Lagos.

A communique at the end of today's 2½-hour meeting said merely that the committee "examined the progress of sanctions and agreed to keep the matter under continuous review in further meetings of the full committee."

SILENT HOUSE LISTENS

Gibson Makes Bitter Attack on Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett was the target Tuesday of one of the most caustic attacks ever heard in the legislature.

He didn't hear it but he'll read it.

Gordon Gibson (L — North Vancouver) poured vitriol at his empty seat, then told the silent house he would send the premier a copy of his remarks.

Mr. Gibson said the premier was so power mad that he used "exactly the tactics of Huey Long, of Al Capone, of Hitler and of Castro" to buy and bully voters."

He said the premier thought he was a god but "he isn't some one we must pray to."

Mr. Gibson accused the premier of "stinking, rotten, low" whispering campaigns, threatening voters, intimidating university and hospital administrators and municipalities.

He also squashed a heckle by recalling that he had touched off the Forests Minister Robert Sommers case and warned that it was still not finished.

There were only two interruptions.

After he said the only "real danger (to the province) is the mind and brain of the premier," Deputy Speaker William Speare stopped Mr. Gibson and told him there were to be no further personal attacks.

"I thought it was the government I was talking about, because Premier Bennett is the

TESTING SOVIET MANNED MOON SHOT

Flying Pups Higher Than Anyone

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two dogs are spinning around the earth in a Soviet satellite today in a move expected to help space scientists decide whether they need to send dogs to the moon before men.

The dogs, Veterok (breeze) and Ugolyok (little lump of coal), apparently are flying higher than man or beast has ever been—some 550 miles. They soared into space Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110.

The highest - flying Soviet cosmonauts, Pavel Belyaev and Alexei Leonov, were about 310 miles above the earth at the high point of their orbit aboard Voskhod 2 in March last year.

Another cosmonaut, Gherman Titov, said recently scientists would have to send dogs to the moon before man could land there. But Russia's first spaceman, Yuri Gagarin, disagreed with him.

Though Russia orbited a number of dogs between 1958 and 1961, this apparently is the first time a Cosmos satellite has been used.

There never has been any information whether the Cosmos satellites are brought back to earth, but Western space experts say they usually orbit for about eight days and then return.

Soviet space scientists can almost certainly study the dogs' reaction to their flight by means of data radioed back to earth. But they are thought likely to want to see whether the flight has any permanent effects, including that of cosmic radiation.

Vancouver Deaths Attributed to Flu

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors today blamed the flu virus sweeping the Lower Mainland for the deaths of two young people in hospital.

One of the victims was Susan Browne, 12, a Grade 7 student, who became ill Monday and was taken to hospital. Heart failure was given by her doctor as the direct cause of her death, but it resulted from being "overwhelmed" by the flu bug. An autopsy is being performed.

The other was a 17-year-old Grade 12 high school pupil whose parents asked not to be identified because of another illness in the family.

His father said the boy had "never had a cold in his life" but became ill Tuesday and died in hospital a few hours later. The family doctor attributed death to viral pneumonia.

Meanwhile Dr. G. A. Mott, city assistant medical health officer, said there is no thought of closing schools in the area, despite absenteeism from some classes of up to 32 per cent because of the flu.

Teachers as well as pupils are being affected. The Vancouver school board Tuesday could not find enough regular substitute teachers to replace those felled by flu. Some of the substitutes themselves were stricken.

Health authorities in Victoria said today the flu virus has apparently not reached this area.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for Greater Victoria said there may be one or two cases of flu "but not from Vancouver."

"There has been no increased absenteeism in schools, which would indicate the virus has not hit here," said Dr. Whitbread.

PM Rejects 'Spy' Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today rejected any judicial inquiry into the case of alleged spy George Victor Spencer of Vancouver.

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons that after a review of the case he wished to confirm the view expressed Jan. 31 by Justice Minister Cardin that a juricial inquiry is not necessary.

Mr. Cardin has said that Spencer will be kept under surveillance as long as he remains in Canada although he will not be prosecuted.

'MAKE FRIENDLY APPROACH'

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson, Canadian - born publisher, today pleaded with the West to show greater friendship and accommodation towards the Soviet Union, maintaining that the gap between communism and capitalism has narrowed sharply and that the Kremlin has no intention of initiating a war against the West.

"I am firmly of the opinion that almost no development short of an actual attack on them could cause the Soviet Union to go to war with us," Thomson said in a European Club speech.

"Let us make some genuine friendly approaches to them with the determination that they shall succeed and that the difficulties between us shall be minimized."

THOMSON
. . . Reds envy us

Thomson, who conferred with Soviet Premier Kosygin last year, maintained that remaining Soviet hostility towards the West results partly from envy over capitalist achievements and partly from the need to maintain Communist world leadership. If the Kremlin lost this leadership to the Chinese, "this would be a great disaster for the world."

From his own talks with Soviet officials, he said, it appeared possible Soviet disputes with the Chinese over their long border might result in bloodshed. He was convinced top Soviet officials were deeply concerned with the Chinese problem.

As for the Soviet Union's own system, he believed it was moving gradually towards private ownership.

VANCOUVER — Boiled as a Boot wants to stay that way.

Boot, hero of a skid road hotel fire Friday in which he rescued six elderly men, had this message Tuesday for his admirers:

"Tell them to quit buggin' me. I just want to be left alone."

His real name is Jaydee Dymons, but he told police after the fire his name was Boiled-as a Boot. He has been swamped since his rescue effort with offers of money, clothes and jobs. But he doesn't want them.

"I'm a happy lush who wants to stay that way. I just want to be left alone. When I want to get a job, I'll get one. Not until. So tell people to quit buggin' me."

Boot made his plea in a city newspaper office and was later driven back to the skid road area.

"I'm going to drink all night and I'll be happy," he said as he got out of the car. "As long as I'm left alone."

LONDON—A man in perfect health has been admitted to between 300 and 500 hospitals and had 15 abdominal operations during the last 15 years a psychiatrist reported today.

The man, a 29-year-old truck driver, is one of six surgery addicts who have cost Britain $300,000 in unnecessary treatment, Dr. John Barker wrote in the British Journal of Clinical Practice.

The doctor, a hospital consultant, studied the six addicts—people who tell lies about their condition to keep going to hospitals—since 1957.

Barker said hospitals should be given more up-to-date information on these addicts, whose condition is not mentioned in surgical reference books.

LOS ANGELES—Rev William H. DuBay, the rebel priest who once asked the Pope to remove Los Angeles' archbishop, has come up with a new idea: A collective bargaining union for the 58,000 Roman Catholic priests in the U.S.

"We need an American federation of priests just as teachers need their American Federation of Teachers — because priests, like teachers, are employees," says the chaplain of St. John's Hospital.

Through collective bargaining, he says, "priests can arrive at a formal contract with their chancery on the issues of professional standards and rights, personnel practices and wages."

He favors AFL-CIO affiliation, but: "We can hardly ask the AFL-CIO to charter us until we get our union off the ground. Only priests can organize priests."

2 Students Wounded In Jakarta Protest

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Two students were wounded today when government troops opened fire and the United States flag was pulled down at the American Embassy as rival pro- and anti - government demonstrations broke out in the Indonesian capital.

The flag was ripped down by students affiliated to the National party, which backs President Sukarno, amidst disturbances which followed a cabinet reshuffle by Sukarno Monday.

The two students were wounded when troops opened fire on anti-government demonstrators of the powerful Students Action Command (Kami) as they tried to reach President Sukarno's palace.

Armored cars were brought up against the students who climbed over them shouting "hang Subandrio" (the foreign minister), "dissolve the Communist party," and other slogans Some were armed with knives and daggers.

CLIMB OVER FENCE

Meanwhile, a rival group of students climbed over the high iron fence in front of the U.S. Embassy shouting "go home Yankees" and "to hell with Green"—U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green. They then tore down the flag.

Some of the 300 demonstrators stayed outside the fence bearing placards which read "long live President Sukarno" and "Green trying to topple our president."

Police fired warning shots into the air dispersing the demonstrators.

MAC-POWELL APPEALS SALES TAX DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Macmillian, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced Tuesday it will appeal a supreme court decision regarding a company appeal against a provincial sales tax assessment.

The company protested an assessment of $8,541,000 tax on 39,000 acres of some 139,000 acres that were purchased from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway in 1964.

Macmillan Bloedel contended the government should have assessed the entire property at one time, not just a portion of it.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer dismissed the company's appeal Monday.

In a statement issued Tuesday, the company said it does not dispute its liability to pay the tax, but objects to the method of assessment.

ruptcies in Quebec have developed over the last 30 years into a $100,000,000 racket. He estimated 85 per cent of the racket was concentrated in Montreal.

There has been a quiet, but steady procession of cases through the Montreal courts.

The Quebec government may act at the current session on recommendations made by Lucient Mercier, internal auditor of the revenue department who reported last August on a 10-month investigation into bankruptcies. He recommended changes in various laws to make it tougher for the fly-by-night bankruptcy operators.

Mr. Mercier found the method of the rings was to form a company, buy goods on credit, sell them and then dissolve the firm.

"These adventures usually proceed by incorporating a series of many companies," Mr. Mercier said. "We traced as many as 60 companies in one ring, the operations of each company usually lasting only a few months."

"By astute means the first company buys on credit all that it can possibly acquire. These goods are sold at minimum prices to other companies in the ring and these specialists in fraud appropriate the receipts in different ways as soon as they are paid in."

Once the merchandise was sold the company went into bankruptcy. The remaining goods were sufficient only to pay costs of the federally-licensed trustee charged with supervising the bankruptcy. There was never enough left to allow the creditors to open an inquiry.

government," shot back Mr. Gibson.

Later, Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kjernan protested the language used by Mr. Gibson would not be tolerated in any legislature in the country.

"There are two sides to this coin," replied Mr. Gibson. "I didn't hear you say that last year when I flattered him — and you knew it wasn't right. Take the bitter with the sweet."

The Liberal member said in last year's budget debate he had suggested a monument should be raised to the premier atop the Peace River Dam.

"But, for his actions Friday night I will rescind that. I am going to build him a cage to wander around in, up there."

(He was referring to an incident in the speaker's office where the premier was reported to have threatened a snap election when the speaker disagreed with him over a procedural matter.)

"Last Friday night in this house I witnessed the most arrogant, childish display I have seen in my life," he said. "The premier seemed like a man who had lost control of himself and was in no position to hold the honored position of premier.

"It was just another display of either his or the government's lust for power — if he couldn't have his way about house rules, he acted like a little baby, like a kid."

Mr. Gibson opened his speech with sarcastic references to the fact the premier frequently leaves his seat during a session.

"It seems that whenever a backbencher speaks, the premier is here. He seems to love flattery.

"But when a little opposition comes in from this side of the house, he doesn't want it.

"That's what he's paid to listen to but he doesn't want it.

"I'm very sorry he's out of his seat now for a cup of tea. If he doesn't come in I'll send him a copy of my speech."

Mr. Gibson said when the Social Credit government was formed, "they would have done much better if the minister of highways (P. A. Gaglardi) had been premier instead of the one we have had. That's my honest thought and it's not very flattering to the minister of highways either."

When Waldo Skillings (SC — Victoria) tried to heckle, Mr. Gibson recalled the Sommers case in which the Socred minister went to jail for accepting bribes.

He pointed out that several other charges involving others in the case resulted in hung jury findings but were never resolved by being tried again.

"Even the judge said the case wasn't over — that there should be more evidence brought in and charges by the attorney-general. But that wasn't done.

"Well, I'm just as happy because a great many more people would have been involved."

Mr. Gibson said the premier talked as though the budget was his money and not the people's.

"There is enough money (in the budget) to do all the things that are needed in B.C., but instead of this, the money is being spent with only one idea — how will it get more votes?

"Apparently the only thought for the old aged and the sick is — why bother? they may be dead before the next election."

"This government has bought all the votes it can in the north of the province and on Vancouver Island," he said.

Mr. Gibson claimed that Premier Bennett would not build a bridge across Burrard Inlet because he was holding the motorists "for ransom, like a kidnapper."

He said the daily frustrations of drivers caught in traffic jams was counter-pointed by "dirty, ugly rumors going around every cocktail lounge and beer parlor and in so-called society groups in West Vancouver — 'If you want a bridge, learn how to vote. Get rid of Gibson.' "

"Get two more political puppets, get two more Bennett-branded sheep. How low can politics sink when people can no longer pick the party of their choice."

Mr. Gibson offered to resign if it meant that Premier Bennett would build a second crossing.

He said that the premier acted only "for the benefit of his party or from political greed" and claimed that from the start of his political career he had worked to bring everyone to his heel.

but they appeared to be a group of extremist officers and politicians known as "the Young Turks" who have advocated a speedup of socialism.

Bitar, 53, took the premiership Jan. 1 after assurances from the military that the Syrian army would stay out of politics. Today's communiques, however, declared the armed forces must be "the vanguard of the people" and must be made an integral part of the party.

The Baath regime rose to power March 8, 1963. Hafez, 43, became the strongman of Syria four months later when he put down an uprising by supporters of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

based on the profit motive and on the conclusion that men are selfish and must be rewarded.

Thomson, who has amassed huge newspaper holdings, said there are some advantages in using massive central planning to carry out new developments. But his observation suggested that much of the Soviet central planning is not efficient, perhaps because national planning on the Soviet scale "requires a group of supermen and these just do not exist." Many of their directors had university training but no practical experience.

Communist countries now were bending their principles, prepared to compromise with capitalism.

"Surely it is our responsibility to meet them halfway."

In Bulgaria, Thomson said he was surprised to find the government offering to participate 50-50 in a profit-making company which would sell goods to the West as well as to Communist countries, and the Bulgarian government would guarantee the investment. Premier Todor Zhivkov had supported Thomson's plans to build a holiday villa on the Black Sea.

"I am going ahead with this and I look forward to having many happy holidays in my villa in Communist Bulgaria," Thomson said in his prepared speech.

Police Action Was Described

In the Times report on Saturday of police action in detaining certain persons in connection with the investigation of the Bank of Montreal holdup, it was stated that the detectives "converged on the Olympic Cafe, 636 Johnson Street."

Owner of the cafe, George Zabaras, says this reference has had the effect of injury to his restaurant business.

The Times reference was made only for the purpose of establishing the location of police action. There was no intention of imputing that the cafe, open to all the public, had any connection with the persons who were apprehended by police.

Behind it some clearing will take place in the interior but the Pacific storm will continue to feed fairly moist air to the coastal areas, becoming gradually dryer by Thursday. Another disturbance approaching the north coast will bring rain to that area Thursday.

Army Coup Succeeds In Syria

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Left-wing army officers in Damascus overthrew the Socialist government of Syria before dawn today, arrested government leaders and closed the country's borders and communications.

It is not clear whether the coup was bloodless or not.

News of the coup d'etat—the 15th since 1949—was broadcast by Damascus radio in a series of communiques that indicated the rebels plan to speed up the country's march toward socialism.

Army units seized power at 3 a.m. by arresting Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian head of state and chairman of the presidency council, Prime Minister Salah Bitar and Defence Minister Gen Mohammed Omran.

(Reuters news agency said Aleppo radio announced that negotiations aimed at ending the crisis were taking place between the coup leaders and the international leadership of the Baath party.)

OPPOSITION MOUNTS

As military communiques announced the coup, opposition was mounting in northern Syria. A radio broadcast from Aleppo in the north, Syria's largest city and its business capital, declared the army garrison there was against the rebellion.

The military garrison in the central Syrian city of Hama also was reported against the Damascus coup.

The Aleppo broadcast demanded that power be handed back to the old regime, with Hafez as head of state and the international command of the Baath party as the government.

Damascus radio said the coup was a shuffle of power inside the ruling Arab Baath (reawakening) Socialist party that came to power itself in a rebellion in 1963, but the list of those arrested indicated the Baath regime had actually been obliterated.

The rebel command, calling itself the "temporary command of the Baath party," said party founder Michel Aflak also was under arrest along with party Chief Mouniff Razzaz.

THEY'LL BE 'CRUSHED'

Broadcast communiques said Hafez and the others would be brought to trial and "crushed." They were denounced as "rightists" who had betrayed Syria's Socialist revolution.

The communiques did not identify the rebel commanders.

Body Discovered In Trunk of Car

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sought to establish today whether there is any connection between the revolver-slaying of a lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases and government efforts to stamp out a bankruptcy racket.

Investigation of the shooting of Francois Payette, 36, was being carried out amid reports that he was slain before he could turn over to police evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

The slaying recalled statements made last fall by Justice Minister Wagner when police were smashing a widespread arson racket in the province. At that time, Mr. Wagner said at least seven persons and perhaps as many as 12 had been killed in an underworld attempt to stop disclosures about the arson racket.

Four lime-covered bodies were recovered last fall in an area south of Quebec City. Later a fifth body was recovered in the Lake St. John district.

Five men have been found criminally responsible by coroner's juries, but none has yet come to trial.

SHOT FOUR TIMES

Detective-Captain Roland Jodoin of Montreal police said Mr. Payette, found in the trunk of his car Tuesday in the city's north end, had been shot four times.

Capt. Jodoin said he could not comment on a possible connection between the killing and a bankruptcy racket.

He also declined comment on published reports that the dead lawyer had been on his way to keep an appointment Tuesday with city police officials to turn over evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

But he said:

"We have taken Mr. Payette's files from his downtown St. James St. office and are examining them at headquarters."

Mr. Payette, a civil lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases, was last seen by his family about 9:30 a.m. Saturday. He left home following a phone call to meet someone in a restaurant.

His wife reported him missing early Sunday and a search began for his car. It was found on Laverdure Street by a motorcycle policeman Tuesday.

Payette's body was in the trunk, frozen by the weekend sub-zero temperatures. There were no identification papers on the body.

The Quebec government started its drive on phoney bankruptcies in 1962 and the pressure has been increasing since.

Special investigators were appointed to study and report on ways to stop the racket. One of the investigators was Gerard Laganiere, now a judge but formerly deputy chief crown prosecutor for Montreal.

Less than a year ago Mr. Laganiere said that phoney bank-

Canadian Selected As Chairman

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth sanctions committee on Rhodesia met today and named Canada's high commissioner, Lionel Chevrier, as chairman of this and future sessions.

The 20 delegates—representing all Commonwealth countries except Ghana and Tanzania—gathered at Marlborough House amid persistent reports that an oil embargo on Rhodesia is being foiled to some extent by shipments from South Africa.

Chevrier's selection as chairman was significant in that a debate over who should preside arose at the first meeting Jan. 25 of the committee, established by an emergency conference of Commonwealth prime ministers at Lagos.

A communique at the end of today's 2½-hour meeting said merely that the committee "examined the progress of sanctions and agreed to keep the matter under continuous review in further meetings of the full committee."

FIREWORKS FIRM

Plant Ripped By Explosion

DUNBAR, Pa. (UPI) — An explosion ripped a fireworks plant where workers were filling sky rockets and Roman candles with powder today, killing five women and injuring seven other women and a man.

Three of the injured women were hospitalized. Four women and the man were treated and released. The condition of those detained at the hospital was not know immediately.

The owner of the plant, Bedy Liza, 74, collapsed after hearing news of the blast and also was hospitalized.

The blast occurred in a one-storey frame assembly building of the Keystone Manufacturing Co. The walls of the specially constructed building were designed to cave outward in event of a blast.

"We just don't know what happened," a plant employee said. "The women were filling rocket tubes with powder, and then—wham—the building went up."

The dead had been working in the same structure. Five other frame buildings nearby were damaged, and the blast could be heard three miles away. The injured had been working in the other buildings.

Police at first said all six women in the assembly building were killed, but one of the blast victims was found still to be alive when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The plant, which produces only fireworks, was in the midst of its busy seasop, preparing an inventory for the Memorial Day and Fourth of July holidays.

PM Rejects Probe In Spy Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today rejected any judicial inquiry into the case of alleged spy George Victor Spencer of Vancouver.

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons that after a review of the case he wished to confirm the view expressed Jan. 31 by Justice Minister Cardin that a judicial inquiry is not necessary.

Mr. Cardin has said that Spencer will be kept under surveillance as long as he remains in Canada although he will not be prosecuted. Spencer is alleged to have supplied information to two Soviet embassy officials who were later ordered out of Canada.

Mr. Pearson said he has personally examined all the reports and documents in the case, taking a "great many hours" in doing so.

The issues involved were important and had aroused genuine uneasiness in the minds of MPs. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas had asked for a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Pearson said he also examined other security cases of the last 10 years which might throw some light on the Spencer case.

Gibson Makes Bitter Attack on Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett was the target Tuesday of one of the most caustic attacks ever heard in the legislature. He didn't hear it but he'll read it.

Gordon Gibson (L — North Vancouver) poured vitriol at his empty seat, then told the silent house he would send the premier a copy of his remarks.

Mr. Gibson said the premier was so power mad that he used "exactly the tactics of Huey Long, of Al Capone, of Hitler and of Castro" to buy and bully voters."

He said the premier thought he was a god but "he isn't some one we must pray to."

Mr. Gibson accused the premier of "stinking, rotten, low" whispering campaigns, threatening voters, intimidating university and hospital administrators and municipalities.

He also squashed a heckle by recalling that he had touched off the Forests Minister Robert Sommers case and warned that it was still not finished.

There were only two interruptions.

After he said the only "real danger (to the province) is the mind and brain of the premier," Deputy Speaker William Speare stopped Mr. Gibson and told him there were to be no further personal attacks.

"I thought it was the government I was talking about, because Premier Bennett is the

'MAKE FRIENDLY APPROACH'

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publisher, today pleaded with the West to show greater friendship and accommodation towards the Soviet Union, maintaining that the gap between communism and capitalism has narrowed sharply and that the Kremlin has no intention of initiating a war against the West.

"I am firmly of the opinion that almost no development short of an actual attack on them could cause the Soviet Union to go to war with us," Thomson said in a European Club speech.

"Let us make some genuine friendly approaches to them with the determination that they shall succeed and that the difficulties between us shall be minimized."

THOMSON
. . . Reds envy us

Thomson, who conferred with Soviet Premier Kosygin last year, maintained that remaining Soviet hostility towards the West results partly from envy over capitalist achievements and partly from the need to maintain Communist world leadership. If the Kremlin lost this leadership to the Chinese, "this would be a great disaster for the world."

From his own talks with Soviet officials, he said, it appeared possible Soviet disputes with the Chinese over their long border might result in bloodshed. He was convinced top Soviet officials were deeply concerned with the Chinese problem.

As for the Soviet Union's own system, he believed it was moving gradually towards private ownership.

TESTING SOVIET MANNED MOON SHOT

Flying Pups Higher Than Anyone

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two dogs are spinning around the earth in a Soviet satellite today in a move expected to help space scientists decide whether they need to send dogs to the moon before men.

The dogs, Veterok (breeze) and Ugolyok (little lump of coal), apparently are flying higher than man or beast has ever been—some 550 miles. They soared into space Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110.

The highest-flying Soviet cosmonauts, Pavel Belyaev and Alexei Leonov, were about 310 miles above the earth at the high point of their orbit aboard Voskhod 2 in March last year.

Another cosmonaut, Gherman Titov, said recently scientists would have to send dogs to the moon before man could land there. But Russia's first spaceman, Yuri Gagarin, disagreed with him.

Though Russia orbited a number of dogs between 1958 and 1961, this apparently is the first time a Cosmos satellite has been used.

There never has been any information whether the Cosmos satellites are brought back to earth, but Western space experts say they usually orbit for about eight days and then return.

Soviet space scientists can almost certainly study the dogs' reaction to their flight by means of data radioed back to earth. But they are thought likely to want to see whether the flight has any permanent effects, including that of cosmic radiation.

BRITISH DOG LOVERS 'SPEAK FOR MILLIONS'

LONDON (Reuters) — British dog lovers protested today over Veterok and Ugolyok, the dogs now orbiting the earth in a Soviet satellite.

The protest letter delivered to the Soviet embassy by the Canine Defence League said it voiced the opinion of millions of dog lovers.

Sendin' two dogs inta space? Who kin they be lookin' for?

VANCOUVER — Boiled as a Boot wants to stay that way.

Boot, hero of a skid road hotel fire Friday in which he rescued six elderly men, had this message Tuesday for his admirers:

"Tell them to quit buggin' me. I just want to be left alone."

His real name is Jaydee Dymons, but he told police after the fire his name was Boiled as a Boot. He has been swamped since his rescue effort with offers of money, clothes and jobs. But he doesn't want them.

"I'm a happy lush who wants to stay that way. I just want to be left alone. When I want to get a job, I'll get one. Not until. So tell people to quit buggin' me."

Boot made his plea in a city newspaper office and was later driven back to the skid road area.

"I'm going to drink all night and I'll be happy," he said as he got out of the car. "As long as I'm left alone."

LONDON—A man in perfect health has been admitted to between 300 and 500 hospitals and had 15 abdominal operations during the last 15 years a psychiatrist reported today.

The man, a 29-year-old truck driver, is one of six surgery addicts who have cost Britain $300,00" in unnecessary treatment, Dr. John Barker wrote in the British Journal of Clinical Practice.

The doctor, a hospital consultant, studied the six addicts—people who tell lies about their condition to keep going to hospitals—since 1957.

Barker said hospitals should be given more up-to-date information on these addicts, whose condition is not mentioned in surgical reference books.

LOS ANGELES—Rev William H. DuBay, the rebel priest who once asked the Pope to remove Los Angeles' archbishop, has come up with a new idea: A collective bargaining union for the 58,000 Roman Catholic priests in the U.S.

"We need an American federation of priests just as teachers need their American Federation of Teachers — because priests, like teachers, are employees," says the chaplain of St. John's Hospital.

Through collective bargaining, he says, "priests can arrive at a formal contract with their chancery on the issues of professional standards and rights, personnel practices and wages."

He favors AFL-CIO affiliation, but: "We can hardly ask the AFL-CIO to charter us until we get our union off the ground. Only priests can organize priests."

2 Students Wounded In Jakarta Protest

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Two students were wounded today when government troops opened fire and the United States flag was pulled down at the American Embassy as rival pro- and anti - government demonstrations broke out in the Indonesian capital.

The flag was ripped down by students affiliated to the National party, which backs President Sukarno, amidst disturbances which followed a cabinet reshuffle by Sukarno Monday.

The two students were wounded when troops opened fire on anti-government demonstrators of the powerful Students Action Command (Kami) as they tried to reach President Sukarno's palace.

Armored cars were brought up against the students who climbed over them shouting "hang Subandrio" (the foreign minister), "dissolve the Communist party," and other slogans Some were armed with knives and daggers.

CLIMB OVER FENCE

Meanwhile, a rival group of students climbed over the high iron fence in front of the U.S. Embassy shouting "go home Yankees" and "to hell with Green"—U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green. They then tore down the flag.

Some of the 300 demonstrators stayed outside the fence bearing placards which read "long live President Sukarno" and "Green trying to topple our president."

Police fired warning shots into the air dispersing the demonstrators.

ruptcies in Quebec have developed over the last 30 years into a $100,000,000 racket. He estimated 85 per cent of the racket was concentrated in Montreal.

There has been a quiet, but steady processlon of cases through the Montreal courts.

The Quebec government may act at the current session on recommendations made by Lucient Mercier, internal auditor of the revenue department who reported last August on a 10-month investigation into bankruptcies. He recommended changes in various laws to make it tougher for the fly-by-night bankruptcy operators.

Mr. Mercier found the method of the rings was to form a company, buy goods on credit, sell them and then dissolve the firm.

"These adventures usually proceed by incorporating a series of many companies," Mr. Mercier said. "We traced as many as 60 companies in one ring, the operations of each company usually lasting only a few months."

"By astute means the first company buys on credit all that it can possibly acquire. These goods are sold at minimum prices to other companies in the ring and these specialists in fraud appropriate the receipts in different ways as soon as they are paid in."

Once the merchandise was sold the company went into bankruptcy. The remaining goods were sufficient only to pay costs of the federally-licensed trustee charged with supervising the bankruptcy. There was never enough left to allow the creditors to open an inquiry.

MAC-POWELL APPEALS SALES TAX DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Macmillian, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced Tuesday it will appeal a supreme court decision regarding a company appeal against a provincial sales tax assessment.

The company protested an assessment of $8,541,000 tax on 39,000 acres of some 139,000 acres that were purchased from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway in 1964.

Macmillan Bloedel contended the government should have assessed the entire property at one time, not just a portion of it.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer dismissed the company's appeal Monday.

In a statement issued Tuesday, the company said it does not dispute its liability to pay the tax, but objects to the method of assessment.

government," shot back Mr. Gibson.

Later, Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan protested the language used by Mr. Gibson would not be tolerated in any legislature in the country.

"There are two sides to this coin," replied Mr. Gibson. "I didn't hear you say that last year when I flattered him — and you knew it wasn't right. Take the bitter with the sweet."

The Liberal member said in last year's budget debate he had suggested a monument should be raised to the premier atop the Peace River Dam.

"But, for his actions Friday night I will rescind that. I am going to build him a cage to wander around in, up there."

(He was referring to an incident in the speaker's office where the premier was reported to have threatened a snap election when the speaker disagreed with him over a procedural matter.)

"Last Friday night in this house I witnessed the most arrogant, childish display I have seen in my life," he said. "The premier seemed like a man who had lost control of himself and was in no position to hold the honored position of premier.

"It was just another display of either his or the government's lust for power — if he couldn't have his way about house rules, he acted like a little baby, like a kid."

Mr. Gibson opened his speech with sarcastic references to the fact the premier frequently leaves his seat during a session.

"It seems that whenever a backbencher speaks, the premier is here. He seems to love flattery.

"But when a little opposition comes in from this side of the house, he doesn't want it.

"That's what he's paid to listen to but he doesn't want it.

"I'm very sorry he's out of his seat now for a cup of tea. If he doesn't come in I'll send him a copy of my speech."

Mr. Gibson said when the Social Credit government was formed, "they would have done much better if the minister of highways (P. A. Gaglardi) had been premier instead of the one we have had. That's my honest thought and it's not very flattering to the minister of highways either."

When Waldo Skillings (SC — Victoria) tried to heckle, Mr. Gibson recalled the Sommers case in which the Socred minister went to jail for accepting bribes.

He pointed out that several other charges involving others in the case resulted in hung jury findings but were never resolved by being tried again.

"Even the judge said the case wasn't over — that there should be more evidence brought in and charges by the attorney-general. But that wasn't done.

"Well, I'm just as happy because a great many more people would have been involved."

Mr. Gibson said the premier talked as though the budget was his money and not the people's.

"There is enough money (in the budget) to do all the things that are needed in B.C., but instead of this, the money is being spent with only one idea — how will it get more votes?

"Apparently the only thought for the old aged and the sick is — why bother? they may be dead before the next election."

"This government has bought all the votes it can in the north of the province and on Vancouver Island," he said.

Mr. Gibson claimed that Premier Bennett would not build a bridge across Burrard Inlet because he was holding the motorists "for ransom, like a kidnapper."

He said the daily frustrations of drivers caught in traffic jams was counter-pointed by "dirty, ugly rumors going around every cocktail lounge and beer parlor and in so-called society groups in West Vancouver — 'If you want a bridge, learn how to vote. Get rid of Gibson.' "

"Get two more political puppets, get two more Bennett-branded sheep. How low can politics sink when people can no longer pick the party of their choice."

Mr. Gibson offered to resign if it meant that Premier Bennett would build a second crossing.

He said that the premier acted only "for the benefit of his party or from political greed" and claimed that from the start of his political career he had worked to bring everyone to his heel.

but they appeared to be a group of extremist officers and politicians known as "the Young Turks" who have advocated a speedup of socialism.

Their leader is Maj. - Gen. Salah Jedid, former chief of staff of the army who was ousted from power last year.

Bitar, 53, took the premiership Jan. 1 after assurances from the military that the Syrian army would stay out of politics. Today's communiques, however, declared the armed forces must be "the vanguard of the people" and must be made an integral part of the party.

The Baath regime rose to power March 8, 1963. Hafez, 43, became the strongman of Syria four months later when he put down an uprising by supporters of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

REJECT NASSER

The Baath party supports the principle of Arab unity but is bitterly opposed to the concept of an Arab union dominated by Nasser. Egypt and Syria were linked in the United Arab Republic in 1958, but Syria broke away three years later.

based on the profit motive and on the conclusion that men are selfish and must be rewarded.

Thomson, who has amassed huge newspaper holdings, said there are some advantages in using massive central planning to carry out new developments. But his observation suggested that much of the Soviet central planning is not efficient, perhaps because national planning on the Soviet scale "requires a group of supermen and these just do not exist." Many of their directors had university training but no practical experience.

Communist countries now were bending their principles, prepared to compromise with capitalism.

"Surely it is our responsibility to meet them halfway."

In Bulgaria, Thomson said he was surprised to find the government offering to participate 50-50 in a profit-making company which would sell goods to the West as well as to Communist countries, and the Bulgarian government would guarantee the investment. Premier Todor Zhivkov had supported Thomson's plans to build a holiday villa on the Black Sea.

"I am going ahead with this and I look forward to having many happy holidays in my villa in Communist Bulgaria," Thomson said in his prepared speech.

Police Action Was Described

In the Times report on Saturday of police action in detaining certain persons in connection with the investigation of the Bank of Montreal holdup, it was stated that the detectives "converged on the Olympic Cafe, 636 Johnson Street."

Owner of the cafe, George Zabaras, says this reference has had the effect of injury to his restaurant business.

The Times reference was made only for the purpose of establishing the location of police action. There was no intention of imputing that the cafe, open to all the public, had any connection with the persons who were apprehended by police.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures were again on the mild side overnight in B.C. They ranged from 13 at Kimberley to 47 at Spring Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island. A Pacific storm off the west coast this morning is moving northward and weakening. A minor disturbance which had moved out of the storm giving showers to southwestern B.C. is now producing snowflurries to the eastern sectors. This disturbance will be out of the province today. Behind it some clearing will take place in the interior but the Pacific storm will continue to feed fairly moist air to the coastal areas, becoming gradually dryer by Thursday. Another disturbance approaching the north coast will bring rain to that area Thursday.
